The bride was gowning beautifully in white. There were no attendants but two little girls, Edith Runge and Alberta Knollenberg, acted as flower girls and carried the bride's bouquets of flowers.

The house was decorated in a lavish manner with flowers and potted plants and the rooms presented a very handsome appearance.

NAKAGAWA JAPANESE ARTIST

pictures are now on display at the art exhibition on at the Garfield building.

Mr. Nakagawa's work can not be regarded as typical of modern Japanese painting, as he has adopted the European mode of expression, the motif, treatment and composition being wholly Western, altho' the technique betrays the Oriental, but viewed from the catholic standpoint of Art, and as exquisite examples of accomplishment in the medium—Mr. Nakagawa working entirely in water-color—they are charming, and delight the fancy as well as hold attention for their workmanship. The ten examples of his work here on exhibition are representative, and in subject are all of native scenes, the one little genre—if it could so be designated—"Interior of Farm House,"—being somewhat more worked out than his landscapes and interesting in detail. Mr. Nakagawa expressing something of a preference for this particular product of his brush; another for which he has a certain fondness being "Cherry Blossom and Temple Gate in Rain," the latter having a subtle expression of moisture very cleverly suggested.

Perhaps his most virile piece of work here displayed is his single marine—"Resting Fishing-Boat at the Shoshi Harbor," a remarkable feeling for texture being evident, resulting in a certain effect of realism without hardness, an end rather difficult of attainment, especially in marine subjects. Indeed the remarkable softness in all his pictures at once holds the attention. "Midsummer at Ushibori," in instance, radiating sentiment, and, in composition, color and treatment, very much resembling the work of the "Hoosier Group" of painters. A rather curious picture in subject is "The Country Festival," being a holiday scene, Mr. Nakagawa's treatment of the trees and foliage in his particular example of his work, being more suggestive of the methods of his countryman than in any other seen here, altho' perhaps the excellence of technique shown in "Chrysanthemum in the Farmer Yard," makes the latter his best piece of work exhibited in Richmond.

Mr. Nakagawa is himself a very interesting personality but is modestly reticent in expressing himself with reference to his own accomplishments. He is in this country for study and expects to go to Brookville this summer to be with some of the Indiana group of painters who paint in that environ each season. He returned to Indianapolis today.

"Royal Oak Day."

May 29 is celebrated in many parts of Great Britain as "Royal Oak day," it being the anniversary of the restoration of Charles Stuart to the throne in England as Charles II. The celebration is not what it formerly was, having died out entirely in many of the southern counties of England. The day was formerly commemorated not only as the day of "restoration," but on account of the marvelous escape of Charles, who, after the battle of Worcester, climbed into an oak tree and hid from his pursuers among its branches. On "Royal Oak" those who celebrate wear sprigs of oak in their hats and use the leaves for various decorations.

Heathen Business Methods.

Business among the Chinese, according to a Russian traveler from Manchuria, is on a co-operative basis. There are neither proprietors nor employees, but all who work in an establishment are partners.

From time to time small allowances are doled out to them—barely enough to live on—but at the end of the year all the profits are divided.

The Chinese merchants are so honest that among all the ten branches of the Russo-Chinese bank located in China there has been no record since their establishment of a single protested note.
