PROF. RUSSELL OF EARLHAM

DELIVERS AN ADDRESS AT PLAINFIELD MEETING.

TENDING TOWARD CREED

Is the Society of Friends—Influence of Methodism on Friends' Society.

At the Friends Yearly meeting at Plainfield, Ind., last Saturday what was regarded by many as the most important address made to the yearly meeting in years was that by Prof. Elbert Russell, of Earlham College, on the subject of Quaker literature and the need of the society to return to it.

The speaker is one of the youngest ministers in the Friends' Society and he made a clarion call for Friends to return to their great literary-religious heritage, that the distinguishing and vital characteristics be not lost.

Professor Russell said the early Friends were a literary people as regarded the great output of writing on religious questions and those relating to the belief of Friends.

The vast store of these writings was practically unknown to the progressive Friends. The old writings were frequently regarded as antique and tiresome, the speaker said. When the grand revival occurred, thirty years ago, he said, Friends were saved from death through stagnation, but lost a large part of their conservative members, and with them the old Friends' literature.

Without this literature the Friends had no guide in the days which followed the great revival, and instead of consulting the writings of the great and inspired founders of the society, Friends had to fall back on their own observations. They saw that the most successful evangelists were Methodists and of the Moody type. The literature Friends began to read, was nonquaker, and if not of some other denomination, was at least interdenominational.

Resulting from this, Professor Russell said that Friends were tending toward a creed. Their separation from the great heritage of Quaker literature was causing them, also, to place too much emphasis on literal external authority of Scripture. The early Friends' teaching was that everything found in the letter of Scripture was not necessarily authoritative, the speaker said that Friends would immediately have to recede from their position regarding capital punishment, and would have also, to abolish their ministry by women. He said Quakerism should mean the interpreting of the Scriptures not by the letter, but by their entire spirit.

Another result of the loss of the old Quaker literature, the speaker said, was the great influence of Methodism on the Friends' Society. Methodism emphasized the experience and emotion of the moment when the soul found God, Prof. Russell said. Quakerism did and should continue to emphasize the presence of Christ in the soul continually, which produced the even high-leveled, honest, benevolent, pure type of historic Quakers.

"Moody and Shankey gave Friends their songs, but only the revival ones, and Friends today have no songs to express the Quaker emotion, of service, love and abiding faith in loyalty, which were the inspiration of Quaker like and character," Professor Russell said.

"So far have Friends departed from the fountain head of their teaching that it would hardly be safe for a minister to quote Barclay and escape the charge of higher criticism," the speaker continued.

In his eloquent plea for a Quaker literature, Professor Russell said that the three yearly meetings—Western Indiana and Wilmington—held the future destiny of the society in their hands.

From these three yearly meetings are going the teachers and ministers to the other yearly meetings, and unless they be rightly grounded, the great and important message of Quakerism to the world will be lost, he said.

There was a demand that Professor Russell's address be printed, and it is likely this will be done and copies will be sent to meetings throughout the yearly meeting.

LAND OF DIZZINESS

Come to Hundreds of Richmond People.

There are days of dizziness; Spells of headache, sideache backache; Sometimes rheumatic pains; Often urinary disorders.

All tell you plainly the kidneys are sick.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Here is proof in Richmond.

Mrs. C. B. Stevens, 29 North Fifth street, says: "My loins and back were so weak and sore I could hardly keep up and around and was often entirely unable to get up at all. The pains extended through my loins and in the thighs. Severe headaches, accompanied by such spells of dizziness were almost of daily occurrence. I was doctoring steadily but without much, if any relief. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills, got a box at A. G. Luken's drug store and began their use. They acted promptly and effectively and the pain soon left my back."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co.

Remember the name—Doan's and take no substitute.

There is one rational way to treat nasal catarrh; the medicine is applied direct to the affected membrane. The remedy is Ely's Cream Balm. It restores the inflamed tissues to a healthy state without drying all the life out of them and it gives back the lost senses of taste and smell. The sufferer who is tired of vain experiments should use Cream Balm. Druggists sell it for 50 cents. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York, will mail it.

INDIANA'S PRIZES

First For Shorthorns, Herefords and Polled Durhams.

St. Louis, September 19.—In a field of twenty-eight, the largest that has competed in any event at the World's Fair cattle show, Fair Queen, a Short horn, owned by E. W. Bowen, of Delphi, Ind., defeated all comers in the two and under three-year-old class for cows.

This was not Indiana's only victory, Lorna Doone, W. S. VanNatta's nomination in the aged cow event in the Hereford class, won the first prize over a large field. The cow is a picture of the white-faced type, and is one of the high-priced animals in Mr. Van Natta's herd, at Fowler, Ind.

F. S. Hines, of Malott Park, Ind., carried away first and second honors in the Polled Durham cow event for three years or over. A. C. Wood, of Pendleton, took third prize, and Harter & Cartner, of North Vernon, Ind., fourth. Indiana stock carried all but the last prize in this event.

J. T. Robbins, of Greensburg, Ind., won distinction for the State by obtaining the fifth prize for Jersey cows. Indiana stock again occupied a prominent place in the Jersey cow class for two-year-olds or under. J. E. Robbins, of Greensburg, won second prize. J. H. Miller, of Peru, carried off fourth honors in Poland Durham heifers, and Harter and Cartner fifth.

The Brookside Farm Company of Ft. Wayne had everything its own way in the Galloway heifer class, taking both the first and second prize. F. S. Hines, of Malott Park, was again in evidence in the Polled Durham heifer class, taking third money. In this same class J. H. Miller, of Peru, won fourth prize.
