

BRILLIANT ORATORY

Senator Beveridge Adds to His Ind-
Laurels in Recent "Love Feast" Address.

A CONSECRATION TO HIGH IDEALS

While the Forces of Capital and Labor
Are Working Out Unheard-of Prosperity for the American People, the Forces of Righteousness Are Working Out Unheard-of Upliftment of American Character Under the Leadership of "the First Figure in the Contemporaneous World."

The people of Indiana are continually finding new cause for the honest pride they take in the name and in the achievements of the brilliant senator from this state, the gifted Albert J. Beveridge, and his every public utterance is awaited with interest, its always thoughtfully considered message being received with the closest and most respectful attention.

At the recent Republican love feast held at Indianapolis, Senator Beveridge gave expression to some uplifting sentiments that may well be borne upon the consciousness of this people. In his address on that memorable occasion he said:

Fellow Republicans: These are glorious days for Republican love

His life and work are the pride of every American. In the field where American blood was flowing for liberty, and there compelling victory by his valor; he was in the council room of warring powers when humanity demanded that the struggle cease, and there compelling peace by his kindly wisdom and the sheer might of his amazing character. Interpreting the Monroe doctrine as a living principle instead of a lifeless reminiscence, giving to our foreign policy a dignity and force unequalled since the days of Washington and Jefferson, and recalling the high spirit of that heroic period, on the one hand, our president, on the other hand, exacts just dealing among ourselves at home, insists that all men and corporations are equal before the law, and crowns his practical statesmanship by demanding that that law shall be right—that defective laws shall be made adequate, mistaken laws corrected and new statutes written for those new conditions that find no law to fit them.

But through all and above all he preaches the saving power of that higher law which, working itself out in individual conduct we call human character. Theodore Roosevelt wants good laws, but he wants good men more. He wants battlefields, but he wants brave hearts to man them. He wants American prosperity to be the greatest in history, but he wants it won by the best and purest methods in history. He wants the American people to be the most powerful of nations, but he wants them to be the most righteous of nations. He paraphrases for the republic the Master's saying for the individual and makes this his motto: "What shall it profit a nation if it gain the whole world and keep clear of that list of power which, in all human experience, has paralyzed the most carefully developed strength and lighted the most brilliant records.

The senator said he was proud of the Republican party and of the splendid men the party has given to the service of the republic and state. Mention of Oliver P. Morton, Benjamin Harrison, Albert G. Porter, James A. Mount was applauded.

"And," said the senator impressively, "we glory in the work of our living leaders. Our congressmen form a group of composite efficiency in the national house of representatives not surpassed now nor in the history of the republic. Our junior senator, wise, indefatigable, devoted to the interests of the people and the country's welfare, deserves the high esteem in which we hold him, and our distinguished and renowned vice president, who presides with dignity, firmness, justice and kindly grace over the greatest legislative body of the world, who has the enthusiastic support of us all, and around whose banner, if he wishes or will permit us, we will rally to a man striving to win for him the supreme honor of our party's nomination for the presidency at the next national convention—we are proud of him and of all the others we have sent to the service of the nation.

"Yes, we are proud of them all," continued the senator, "but we look with equal pride on those who now and in the past, conspicuously serve and have served the commonwealth. What a remarkable company of governors we have given to Indiana—Porter and Hovey and Chase and Mount—whose administration won the admiration and gratitude of the people; Winfield T. Durbin, who, when a great emergency challenged the supremacy of law and the dignity of the state, met it on the instant with a courage and wisdom that made the whole land ring with applauding praise; and our present gallant chief executive, J. Frank Hanly, whose administration is distinguished by rigid enforcement of the law in spirit and in letter, and is one of the most sternly vigorous in the whole history of the commonwealth—Indiana has produced no stronger men, no more unselfish and devoted servants of the state than those superb chief magistrates.

"And now, fellow-Republicans," exclaimed Senator Beveridge, looking about the room, "let the record of each brilliant leader be the common glory of our party over which every Republican may rejoice. Let selfishness and its counsels of destruction find no place among us. Let our service to our party be inspired by our devotion to the nation and our party spirit be akin to that of an army marching to war in a righteous cause—no single soldier thinking of himself, but only of the army's common victory, that the cause for which it fights may be triumphant and established. And let us never forget that that cause is the good of the American people.

"The American people! As long as we are true to them they will be true to us, for the people never betray those who serve them with single-hearted devotion. And we will be true to them. The welfare of the American millions, the ongoing of the republic, the honor, power and glory of the nation—to these high purposes the Republican party has, under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, consecrated itself anew."

NOT A "PATENT MEDICINE."

Scott's Emulsion is not a "patent medicine." It has no secret ingredients. Your doctor can, no doubt, tell you as much about it as we could. We have merely perfected the method of blending the Norwegian cod liver oil, hypophosphites of lime and soda and glycerine. As one grocer will blend coffee better than another so we have succeeded in making Scott's Emulsion a little better than any other cod liver oil preparation. There's no "patent" and the only secret is the secret of knowing how, with the perfected mechanical means at hand to do it. Get Scott's and you get the perfect emulsion. It's the greatest thing in the world for regaining strength and flesh lost through wasting.

CRITICISM;

Of late the magazines and daily papers have had much to say by way of criticism of certain life insurance companies, and especially with regard to the legal organizations of such companies, and of the manner of their control. These criticisms do not apply to The Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company of California, but demonstrate the truth of the assertion that "for policyholders The Pacific Mutual has the best legal organization."

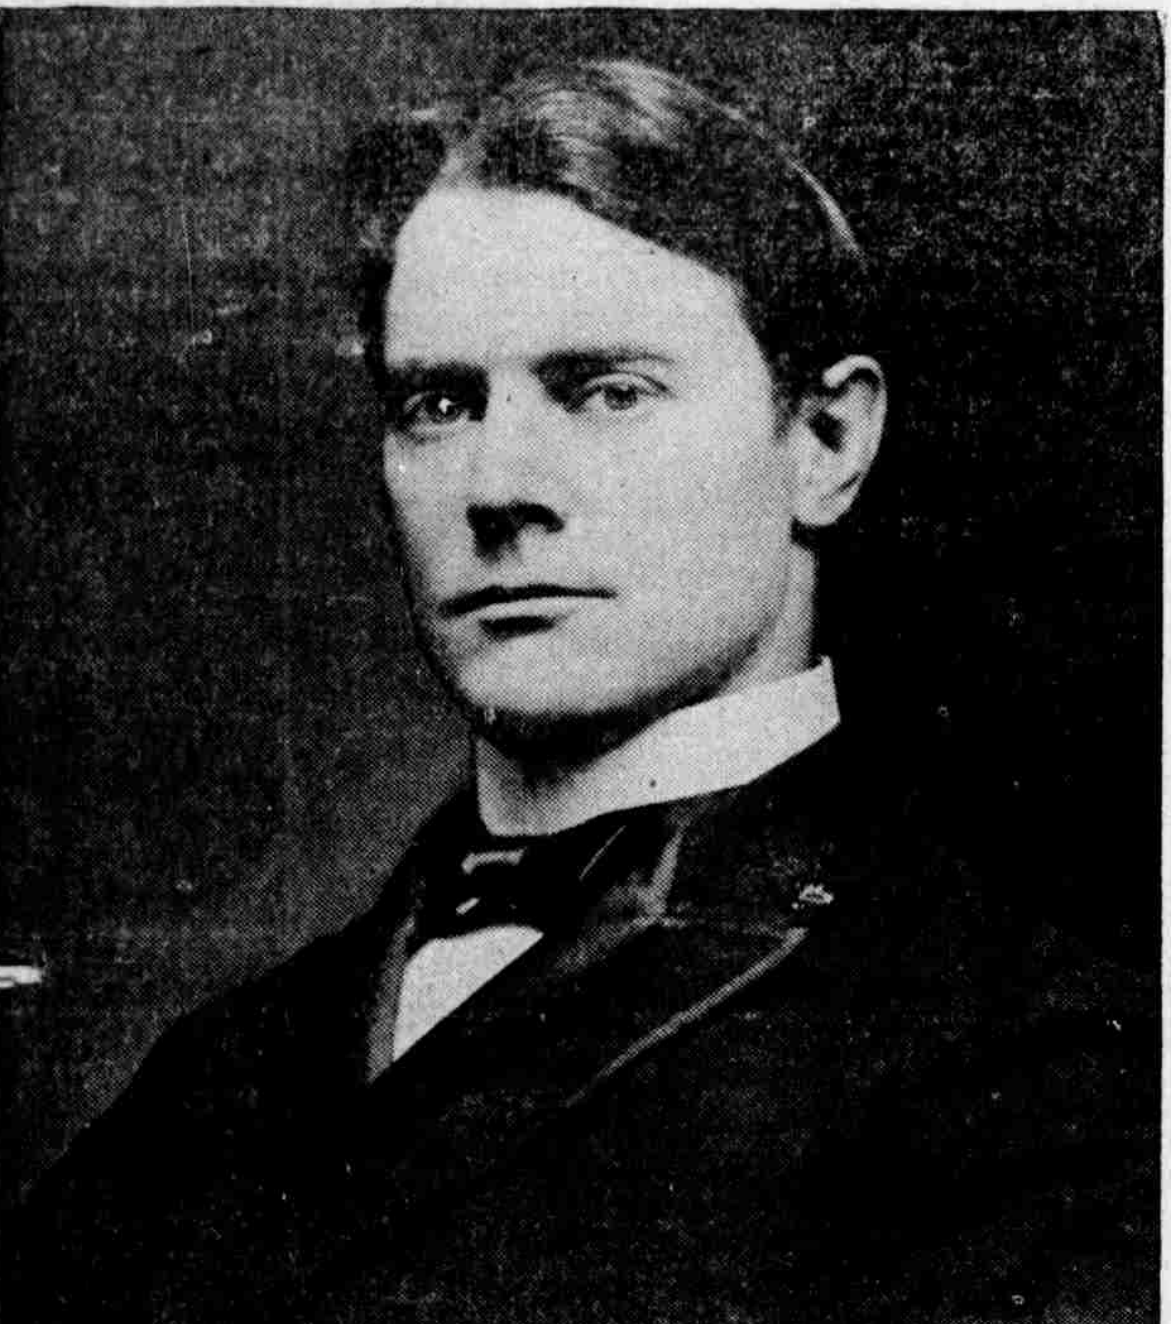

It is not controlled by 1 or 2 men having no pecuniary interest or responsibility save as policyholders or recipients of salary, but it is controlled by a Board of fifteen Directors, not mere dummies, but stockholders in their own right, holding a large amount of the Company's stock, and policyholders as well. The Directors of the Company are men of high financial and commercial standing, and are by law made responsible for the acts of the Officers of the Corporation.

reasts. For, when the nations combined, those holidays bring happiness to the American people. The most fortunate man in all the world today is the man who can lift up his voice and cry, "I am an American citizen."

Free Institutions Perish.

It is in the nature of democracy to deteriorate character. It is in the nature of wealth and power to generate corruption; but it is in the nature of free institutions, thank God, to preserve and cleanse. And so, while the forces of labor and capital are working out unheard-of prosperity for the American people, the forces of righteousness are working out unheard-of upliftment of American character. In the period of our richest material welfare as a nation we are experiencing our noblest spiritual revival as a nation. At the moment of our greatest consequence in the councils of all the world we are entering upon a renaissance of public spirit that is making the civic life of the republic the proudest in all the world. At the hour when we are strongest abroad we are becoming most upright at home. And thus we are reversing history and proving the prophecies of pessimism to be false. The First Figure in Leadership.

And under whose leadership has come this new consecration of the American people to high ideals? Whose voice for years has sounded the call to civic righteousness, in the beginning almost alone? Who first lit the sacred fire that today is everywhere burning brightly out of American public life? I but voice the name upon your lips, as it is in the hearts of the American people, when I say it—he who wrought his words into deeds; he who from the first moment of his chief magistracy has whipped himself from the service of the government and insisted that Republicanism means honesty and honor; he who guarantees and gives to all men that sum of human justice, a square deal; he who in creative statesmanship, as evidenced by laws enacted and permanent policies announced, has made a record equalled by but one president in the history of the republic; he, the first figure in the contemporaneous world, the president of the whole American people, Theodore Roosevelt.

lose its own soul?"

From this devotion to high ideals the Republican party must never fall away. Not always can we have mighty questions and issues of destiny to champion. Not always can we have such questions as sound money and the nation's honor; not always can we have the brilliant conduct of glorious war in a just cause; not always can we have expansion and the administration of civilization among alien people—not always can we have such master issues as those which move millions of men by the sheer power of sentiment and conviction. But always we can have ideals of national life at home and abroad. If always we cannot have great days we can always have just days and righteous days. If we cannot always have the assistance of fate, we can always have the spirit of the square deal, without which, after all, no victory is worth the winning.

Party Name Will Not Win.

This is the spirit that must animate our party. We cannot win merely by wearing the name Republican. We can continue to win, in the absence of epochal issues, only by living up to the meaning of the word Republican. We must be as wise, as a party, as our great president is wise as a leader. All men must be made to feel that the Republican party stands for the welfare of the whole people; that the Republican party welcomes every upright citizen to its ranks, and that every member of the Republican party has equal rights and equal welcome to party councils with every other member.

We must remember those great and simple truths in every phase of party management. Our organization must be as broad as the party itself. Let us take care that we forfeit not the confidence of the people. For, after all, in the confidence of the people and there alone reside power and victory. Let us take wise and righteous counsel among ourselves and then march united to that success which undivided effort alone can bring. Let the harmony produced in the past by mutual forbearance and tolerance of one another's honest views be continued by the same methods of good feeling and good sense. Let us each
