SMOKING AMONG UPPER CLASS OF WOMEN

New York, Jan. 20.—Mrs. Hugh Fraser, the authoress, in a talk about her life abroad told of the universality of the custom of smoking among the upper class of women of all nationalities.

"Strange as it may seem to you," she said, "among the Japanese women I have never seen one of the nobility smoke. No Japanese woman of the nobility, in fact, has ever admitted to me that she smoked. I presume that they do in their own homes. They may not have spoken of it, feeling that a western woman would object, and it would not be courteous to do so."

"But the upper class women are not seen smoking, the middle and lower class women smoke constantly. On long railroad journeys you will always see the women smoking. They smoke the three whiffs of tobacco that the little pipe contains, and then fill and light it again. They have told me that they smoke in this way because it is the first whiff of the tobacco which is agreeable. For my part I think their tobacco is very bad. I believe it is home grown, and it is not at all agreeable."

"My little Japanese maids always smoked, though never in my presence. They used to sit on their steps and smoke, but that was in their own quarters. I once raised the wages of my personal maid, and the first thing she was did was to engage a maid for herself, and the duties of this little girl was chiefly to prepare her tea and make ready her pipe."

"All the upper class women abroad smoke—English, French, German, Italian and Russians. In many cities in England it is expected that cigarettes shall be passed to the women after dinner, and we have a peculiar there about smoking in public. At after-theatre suppers one always smokes."

"All Russian women smoke, and smoke a great deal, and I presume that it is through them to a great extent that the women of other countries have taken up the practice. They have an excellent tobacco that they use and which is difficult to find, though it is to be had in London in some of the Russian shops."

"Turkish women, of course, smoke constantly, and they use a very good tobacco. French women I know less about than those of other nationalities, and they vary, some using tobacco and others objecting to it. German women smoke, also the Italians. A woman of the upper class, a Roman, would be surprised not to be offered a cigarette after dinner."

"But in speaking of smoking, the women who smoke most of all are the Austrian women. They smoke cigars. I shall never forget a dinner that was given to the Prince of Wales by the British embassy in Vienna. Sir Henry Elliott was the ambassador and my husband was secretary of the embassy. The guests for this dinner had been selected with great care; they were distinguished people, and all the most beautiful women had been brought together. The Viennese women are charming and they wear exquisite gowns. The dinner passed off as it should and at its close Sir Henry arose to conduct the prince to the smoking room, when to our surprise every woman at the table rose and trooped after them. Those beautiful women in their comely low-cut gowns and covered with diamonds disappeared into the smoking room to finish their dinners and cigars."

"Lady Elliott and I said there was nothing for us to do but to sit down and have a little friendly chat together, for we could not possibly stand the smoke of that room."

"I have seen fine old white haired ladies in Vienna sitting tired out in a ball room, waiting to take home the daughters they were chaperoning, each with a great cigar in her mouth."

"An Austrian woman is never expected to smoke until she is married, though I suppose the young girls do it in their own apartments. There was one little Austrian duchess, whose name I have forgotten, who was burned to death while attempting to hide a cigarette in the pocket of a light frock when her governess came unexpectedly into the room when she was smoking."

"In America I have found that women who have traveled often smoke, and otherwise there has been very little objection, and no one minds if I open my cigarette case after dinner where they are not accustomed to using them. The most rigid objections I have found in Maryland and Virginia."

AMUSEMENTS

Nine Acts at the New Phillips This Week.

Nine acts have been provided for the vaudeville at the New Phillips this week by Manager Murray, one produce. This is done because he more than it has been customary to wishes to give his patrons all that it is possible to give them for the money, although there has never been any complaint in this regard in reference to the New Phillips, the wonder being how so much can be given for the money. The bill, which will be inaugurated this afternoon, offers a pleasing variety and it is confidently believed it will be highly satisfactory and will bring one of the biggest week's business in the history of the house.

There will be something to interest nearly every class of theatre goers, as the program ranges from a piano overture to motion pictures, with a one-legged wire act, a Swedish dialect character sketch, character changes, novelty act, comedy sketches and illustrated songs, thrown in between.

At the Gennett.

Manager Swisher has prepared a bill for presentation at this house during this week that no doubt will prove satisfactory as any of its predecessors. The bill will be presented every afternoon and evening, except Thursday, when another attraction will occupy the boards. The features of this week's bill are among the best known to the vaudeville circuits. Be Harney and Jessie Haynes, originators of the rag time Octoroon impersonations are said to be without a peer in their line. The Lavarie sisters are recognized as the greatest female duettists extant. They introduce Dutch comedy rapid fire conversation in a way that brings forth unrestrained hilarity on the part of the audience. Mr. Ernest Renk will sing two popular songs that will be illustrated by the best stereoscopic slides that can be produced. La Rex, the wonderful flexible artist, has been seen in the city and was accorded the highest praise by all who witnessed his marvelous work. Douglas and Douglas are comedy acrobats of more than ordinary talent. George Hillman is one of the best German comedians appearing in vaudeville. The motion pictures that will complete the bill are unusually amusing.

"A Message from Mars" was performed in London over five hundred consecutive times and its success in New York City was equally as great. No wonder it leaves a pleasant thought in the memory. Its quality is high throughout. The dialogue is clean cut, vigorous, Saxon, lightened by much wit. The action leaves nothing to be desired. The cast of twenty-five people is unusually large for a comedy and the scenic and light effects are what are usually seen in high class drama. For its production here, David Proctor and the original London Company have been secured. This play will be presented at the Gennett Theatre, matinee and night, Thursday, January 25th.

Drop by Drop the offensive discharge caused by Nasal Catarrh falls from the back of the nose into the throat, setting up an inflammation that is likely to mean Chronic Bronchitis. The certain, rational cure for Catarrh is Ely's Cream Balm, and the relief that follows even the first application cannot be told in words. Don't suffer a day longer from the discomfort of Nasal Catarrh. Cream Balm is sold by all druggists for 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

The Palladium wants the news. It will pay one dollar, ($1.) for the best piece of L.O.-CAL news brought, sent or telephoned EXCLUSIVELY to this paper before February 1.

Can you Believe Your Senses?

When two of them, taste and smell, having been impaired, if not utterly destroyed, by Nasal Catarrh, are fully restored by Ely's Cream Balm, can you doubt that this remedy deserves all that has been said of it by the thousands who mit has cured? It is applied directly to the effected air passages and begins its healing work at once. Why not get it today? All druggists or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York, on receipts of 50 cents.

Do you suppose it is really true that the railroads are not issuing any passes to Congressmen this year?

THE STATE PRESS

PURITY IN THE AIR.

(Muncie Star.)

Political as well as moral reform is in the air. It is talked of among the people; it is preached from the pulpit; it is written about in all the newspapers; it is the subject of the orators, and the theme of practical business men everywhere.

THE COMMON VOTER.

(North Manchester Journal.)

The Journal believes that the man who has been known as the "common voter," and who lives in the back part of the township is just as much interested in the welfare of his country, his state and his country as the professional politician who sits up nights to formulate plans by which he may beat the other fellow and secure to himself the emoluments obtainable from being in close touch with the winning side.

CAN'T HELP WANDERING.

(Fort Wayne News.)

When the people today see a newspaper supporting the attitude of certain senators as against that of President Roosevelt, they can't help wondering just who is furnishing the money.

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS.

(Kokomo News.)

The old adage has it that politics makes strange bedfellows, but it should be remembered that many times the poor accommodation of the political hostelry forces things a bit.

FOUR TOO MANY.

(Kokomo News.)

Senator Bailey expresses the belief that there are no more than four senators who are considered dishonest. Is that not four too many?

A FEW SHORT BITS.

Mayor McClellan is treating Tammany leaders as though he believed all that Mr. Hearst said about them in the last campaign.

Massachusetts is to grow melons that will carry their own colic cure. Still the favorite colic cure will be put up in bottles as usual at Louisville and Peoria.

There are people in Russia whose sole object in life is to think up new kinds of trouble for the czar.

In its fight on the Standard Oil, the nation can rest assured that it will always have Kansas to back it.

There is gratifying reason to believe that the life insurance companies are going to make an effort to do better this year.

"Mr. Bryan was conservative in his response," says a cable from Manila. Mr. Bryan must have grown some.

Some one proposes that the Senate be asked to define what is the Monroe Doctrine. If the Senate will attend to the ebusiness before it, it will be fully employed.

The indictment of a foreman of a grand jury for land frauds in Montana, may help to explain why convictions are so difficult to secure.

Mr. Bryan is to be personally conducted through the Philippines, which seems to be a needed precaution. Energetic white men have been lost in those regions occasionally.

General Booth, of the Salvation Army accounts for his robust health by the fact that he has been a vegetarian for seven years. Which reminds us of those centenarians who attribute their long lives to the fact that they have always eaten, drank and smoked when and what they pleased.

There is no political activity in Japan, it is reported, because everybody is too busy to talk politics. That's something that never happens in this hustling nation.

New York will know soon what kind of a police commissioner general Bingham makes by the kind of people that attack him.

The testimony at the hazing trials indicates that the peculiar kind of "honor" in vogue at Annapolis is not incompatible with perjury.

Thousands of people are starving in Japan. Thousands of bushels of grain are going to waste in the United States for want of a market. Couldn't they be brought together somehow?

It is believed that if John D. Rockefeller can not get a pass to Missouri, that that state would be willing to pay his expenses for the sake of having him come on and tell all he knows about Standard Oil.

Worry is the mother of sick, nervous and troubled mentality, upsets the entire physical system. The body is a net-work of nerves. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea soothes and rebuilds the entire system. 35 cents Tea or Tablets. A. G. Luken & Co.
