Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

HOPE FOR THE DISCOURAGED.

Oh, why will men sit round and moan About their cruel fate, In spite make faces at their luck Or for an opening wait, When they from chances all around With ease success might yank? If they have nothing else to do, Why don't they start a bank.

There are, if men would only see, Before them lying thick A lot of openings where they might Take hold and get rich quick. If banking isn't to their taste, The railroad field is wide, And they can build a stretch of track And let the people ride.

And there are many other ways And means the trick to turn— Make automobiles for the trade, And thus have cash to burn. And there are many other schemes To gather in the spoil— For instance, organize a trust As large as Standard Oil.

Then do not sit and warm a chair And say your chance is small, But, rather, formulate a scheme To warm the city hall. If there's no other way to get A fortune ready made, You surely can make millions at The life insurance trade.

Giving Him a Peck.

Members of the women's clubs have decided to take man in hand and do a little plain and ornamental uplifting, so that when he gets his name in the papers it will be for some good deed rather than the things for which he acquires fame now provided he cannot bribe the editor.

It has been common talk among the neighbors for some time that an uplift, even though of only a few inches, would improve man and make him more nearly resemble the specifications in the obituary notice.

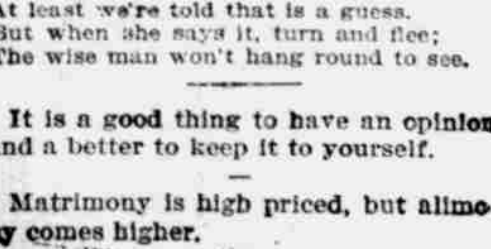

Women are specially interested in this grand work, for they not only have to associate with the men, but they must bring their children up in the same house with them, and in many instances the perverse children insist on taking the unpurified father as a model. So far man has not objected, but he would like to know if the uplift instrument is to be kind words or a rolling pin.

Don't Take Unnecessary Chances.

When a girl says "No" she may mean "Yes." At least we're told that is a guess. But when she says it, turn and flee. The wise man won't hang round to see.

It is a good thing to have an opinion and a better to keep it to yourself.

Matrimony is high priced, but alimony comes higher.

ALL STARS LOST GAME

Local Team Claims That of all the Raw Deals it Received the Worst at Ridgeville Sunday.

The All Stars lost a ten inning game to Ridgeville Sunday by a score of 5 to 4. The All Stars say that they don't believe in kicking every time they lose, but in this case they say they can't keep down their wrath. According to the Stars, the deciding out was made in the tenth inning when Stittish tagged a man so hard, five feet from third base that he nearly tore the cover off the ball. The umpire didn't see it. The Stars say that even the crowd yelled "rotten."

WILD ENGINE CUT CAPER

Its Eventful Run Was Only Ended by a Yardman Throwing a Switch and Wrecking It.

[Publishers' Press] Memphis, Tenn., July 9.—After colliding with a Southern railway passenger train at Orleans street, a Southern railway switch engine with two cars attached, dashed wildly without a crew three quarters of a mile to the Union depot, where it crashed into two mail cars. Nine men were injured, one seriously.

When the switch engine collided with the passenger train, Engineer Williams was thrown heavily against the boiler. He and his fireman then jumped, the engineer sustaining serious injuries. The switch engine, with no guiding hand dashed forward at increased speed.

The locomotive crossed 11 streets before arriving at the depot and the presence of mind of a yardman prevented the engine from dashing into the depot proper. The yardman threw a switch and the "wild" engine collided with the mail cars on a siding. One of the mail cars was thrown through a fence by the force of the collision.

To Stop Alien Impositions. Washington, July 9.—Carrying out a suggestion made by the house committee on foreign affairs, a board assembled at the state department to inquire into the laws and practice regarding citizenship of the United States expatriation and protection abroad and to report regulations for legislation to be laid before congress next session. The primary purpose is to devise means of checking the abuses of American naturalization by persons who take out papers with the deliberate purpose of returning immediately to their native countries where they have given much trouble to the state department by claiming immunity from all the obligations of the natives to their government, thereby causing great discontent and leading to much diplomatic correspondence.

Child Murdered.

Francis, I. T., July 9.—The mutilated body of Harry Peister, 8, of West Tulsa, was found in a St. Louis and San Francisco wheat car. The boy was abducted by a tramp last Thursday from his home and is supposed to have been murdered and his body placed in the car to hide the crime. The body was literally cut to pieces. There is no clew to the murderer.

BLEAK SHETLAND.

Its Swarms of Sea Gulls and Its Lone Tree.

Up a little lane off Lerwick's one street there is a garden. At least, it is an inclosed space. In the middle of this space there is a tree. It is not a very tall tree; you could, in fact, toss a biscuit over its branches, but still it is a tree—the only tree in Shetland. And Shetland is proud of it. Children who are brought for the first time to see the wonders of one streeted Lerwick are shown this tree. This is not fiction. It is the only tree in Shetland. As there are no trees in Shetland, there are no birds, except, of course, the sea gulls, which you can number by the thousand. The sea gulls are the sparrows of Lerwick, and, as such, they have a greater share in the town's life than have the sparrows of London. In the morning time you will note that a sea gull sits on every chimney pot. Sea gulls swoop and hover over every roof in the town.

The air is full of their strange, high, plaintive, haunting cries. Their sad, shrill, long drawn cries are to Lerwick as the chattering of sparrows or the cawing of rooks are to us in England. Every house has its own familiar sea gulls and every street its own band of sea gulls. They never mix. The children in each house have a pet name for their own particular sea gulls, and, having called them to them by those names, they feed them every day. And each sea gull knows what is meant for him. No sea gull attached to one house ever seeks to eat the food scattered from the house next door. He does not dare; the other gulls would kill him. So all day long the sea gulls hover and call over the roofs of Lerwick. The people of the town, if they come across a little pile of rice laid upon the roadway, step over it with care. They know that it is placed there for some sea gull. And at night the sea gulls leave their own appointed chimney pots and fly gracefully away to their resting places on the rocks of the Isle of Noss.—London Express.

Another of Men's Stardships.

"There is no place like home," said the man of gentle sentiments. "Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "But when you've got two country houses, a residence in the city and are paying board at three summer resorts, how are you going to know where it is?"—Washington Star.

In Their Own Coin.

"Here, wait a minute," cried the proprietor of the restaurant. "This half dollar is bad." "Well," replied the customer as he hurried out, "so was the dinner it pays for."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE HALL OF FAME.

Charles L. Ames of East Lebanon, N. H., aged eighty-four, husked 235 bushels of corn last season.

President Fallieres is the third president of France with a blacksmith grandfather, and he is proud of the fact.

Frederick W. Morris of New York recently purchased in Boston four folios of Shakespeare for $8,950. They were printed in London some time between 1623 and 1685.

The Hon. William Moore, chief secretary of Tasmania, who recently received congratulations on his eighty-fifth birthday, is the oldest working minister of the English crown.

Stephen Sanford has given $15,000 to the Montgomery County (N. Y.) Historical society for the maintenance of Fort Johnson, which was recently presented to the society by General J. Watts de Peyster.

Lord Masham, one of the most remarkable men of his generation, has just died in London. By his inventiveness he created at least three new industries—wool combing by machinery, the manufacture of velvet by power loom and the weaving of plush.

Captain James Moorehead, a lifelong Brooklynite, who followed the sea for over forty years, has fitted up a unique room in his home in facsimile of a ship's cabin. In no one particular does the "cabin" differ from a cabin on any of the full rigged clipper ships he so long commanded.

Sergeant Fred Calhoun Fagan of the thirty-ninth company of coast and artillery, now stationed at Fort McHenry, is the largest man in either the army or the navy. He weighs 280 pounds and is now serving his fifth enlistment of three years each. There are few better gunners in the army than he.

Andrew Paul, marshal at Girard, Pa., certainly works for the glory of working. His salary is $1 yearly, and he pays 50 cents each New Year's to the man who swears him in. This leaves him a big shining silver half dollar to show for his labor. He is required to furnish a bond in the sum of $1,000.

Dr. Joseph Wright, professor of comparative philology at Oxford university, at sixty years of age was a millionaire. He did not know how to read. Today he is considered one of the most learned men in England. He compiled the authoritative "England Dialect Dictionary" and has made a number of translations.

Common Sense in Exercise.

Exercise in itself is no doubt excellent, but is it well for a sane man to make it a fetish? Does it do a business man any good to swell the muscles of his back by wrestling with a rowing machine or to make his legs as hard as railroad ties by galloping about a canvas track? Is there any advantage, after all, in developing the sinews of a man who does a man who works with his brain gain anything by trying to imitate a hodgepodge? The notion that the average business man will be benefited by developing the muscles of a stevedore is based on nothing more tangible than wild theorizing. In favor of it is the allegation that physical or brute strength spells health. Against it is the obvious and undoubted fact that millions of men who take no more exercise than their ordinary avocations require live to hale and hearty old age, and the further fact that the average athlete, for all his sinew and vigor, is seldom more healthy than the average desk slave or soft muscled man.—Baltimore Herald.

Paris on Nations, 1704.

Paris is on nation, like a besieged city. Each person receives from his section a baker's card and is thereby entitled to receive from the baker at the maximum price as much bread as the municipals consider sufficient for him and his family. This ration varies weekly. The baker is bound to calculate from the number of mouths he feeds the quantity of corn he will need to buy from the municipals, who distribute it weekly. We, who are not obliged to faire queue at the bakers' doors—thanks to my employer, I am exempt from this, and a bare sufficiency of bread is delivered, together with meat and vegetables, at my lodging daily—have very little conception of the sufferings of those who are. The queues are somewhat differently regulated in different sections, but my host's daughters, who take it in turn to go, are often waiting from 4 o'clock until 8 or 9 in the morning.—Journal of a Spy.

DEATH OF CLAYTON BROWN Died Last Night at Home on North Ninth Street After Illness Caused by a Complication of Diseases—Born Near Boston.

Clayton P. Brown, aged 77 years, died last night at twelve o'clock at his home 105 North Ninth street. His death was caused by a complication of diseases supplemented by kidney trouble. His wife and three daughters, Mrs. Nellie Kaufman, Columbus, O., and Misses Bessie and Marion living at home, survive.

Mr. Brown spent most of his life in Wayne County, being born near Boston. About six years ago he moved to the present dwelling place on Ninth street.

The Melancholy Cuckoo.

The American cuckoo belongs to the woodpecker tribe and is only a summer visitor, coming about the 1st of June and leaving early in the fall for Florida. Unlike the English cuckoo, ours builds its own nest and raises its young, to whom it is a most devoted parent. We have two species in this country—the yellow bill and the black bill, the latter being best known in Pennsylvania. Both are smaller than the old world species and differ from it in color, being greenish olive above and bluish white beneath, while the European bird is black winged. The American cuckoo has a tail longer than its body, which gives it a hawklike appearance, and the plumage is soft and silky, like that of the owl, which enables it to fly without making any noise, so that we often hear its call without being able to see the bird. Burroughs says, "This call of the cuckoo has a solitary, hermitlike sound, as if the bird were alone in the world and called on the fates to witness his desolation." He has never heard the call answered, nor has he ever seen two birds together. The call is heard most in cloudy weather and before a rain, from which the bird gets the name of rain crow.

PALLADIUM WANT ADS PAY.

Greatest County Paper

THE RICHMOND PALLADIUM IS ESSENTIALLY the greatest county paper published in Richmond. Going to press at three forty-five every morning the PALLADIUM is issued in time to make every rural route reached by morning mail in the county.

Double Other Papers' Rural Route Circulation.

INTELLENT RURAL ROUTE PATRONS have been quick to realize the advantages of receiving a local paper the same day it is published, and have subscribed to the PALLADIUM pushing its rural-route list up by leaps and bounds, until now the PALLADIUM has more rural route readers than the other two local papers combined.

Reaches Routers Day of Publication.

THE BIGGEST ARGUMENT IN GETTING rural route subscribers has been the fact that the PALLADIUM is the only Richmond paper reaching them the same day of publication. Neither of the evening papers of Saturday reach the rural routers until the following Monday. Saturday's PALLADIUM reaches the rural router on Saturday, and Monday's PALLADIUM reaches him on Monday, the same day that the Saturday issue of the evening papers arrives.
