

ASK FIELD ESTATE TO PAY BACK TAX

Chicago Board of Review Levies Against the Property for $2,800,000.

ESTATE OF $180,000,000

AMOUNT IS LARGEST TAX EVER ASSESSED AGAINST ANY INDIVIDUAL PROPERTY OWNER—MEANS MUCH TO CHICAGO.

[Publishers' Press]

Chicago, July 25.—Marshall Field's executors will be asked to pay taxes amounting to about $2,800,000. This will be by far the greatest tax ever levied upon the property of an individual taxpayer and is the practical result of the decision by the board of review today, fixing the personal property on which the Field estate must pay taxes at $180,000,000. The real estate is worth about $50,000,000 additional, making the total amount of property on which that estate will have to pay taxes approximate $180,000,000.

The larger portion of the assessment against the Field estate is for back taxes on personal property upon which the late Mr. Field is held by the board of review to have avoided paying taxes. The board has gone back for seven years.

HOT AND COLD WATER.
How to Use These Remedies to the Best Advantage.

Hot or cold water is excellent as an application for inflammation, congections or abrasions, but how many people know which to apply in particular cases while awaiting the arrival of medical relief? Not many, and the mistakes made in some instances are dangerous.

Take the barber, for example, who has cut his patron's face. He generally washes the face with a towel soaked in warm water, often pressing it right into the injury, and then wonders why the blood flows from the cut so freely. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred if he had used cold water, and the colder the better, the blood would have ceased to flow from the injury altogether, as the cold would have a tendency to contract the openings in the torn blood vessels. In all cases of such cuts or abrasions very cold water will at least reduce the amount of bleeding if it doesn't stop it altogether, and yet, singularly enough, boiling water will have the same effect.

Water below the boiling point increases the flow, but above that degree decreases it. In surface inflammations or congections cold water ought to be used, while if the condition is situated below the surface hot water is necessary as an application because it draws the blood toward the surface and thus stimulates the circulation through the part where it is most needed.

In cases of abscesses or pimples with pus forming in them, but which have not yet come to a head, the secretion of pus can be rapidly increased and the duration of the annoyance thereby decreased by applying hot water to them at frequent intervals.

Where the eye is inflamed or smarted, after a period of eye strain, such as night work often induces, hot applications are the things for relief, but the water used should be gradually allowed to cool off toward the end. Tired eyes will invariably be rejuvenated by adopting this method of treatment, and many headaches resulting from such a condition may thereby be prevented or cured.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE UNCROWNED QUEEN.

Mary Eliza Betsy Smith of New York were not a myth. Her life had only just begun.

She would not marry—no, not she! She'd rather independency.

She said that love was balderdash; But, being very short on cash And having no old rich relation, She had to take the situation.

A dry goods store she first essayed.

Although she rather balked at trade. Here she was treated like a slave Until she'd one foot in the grave.

She gave that up, and blossomed forth In some other field, fit for her worth— Companion to a lady there.

With salary increased to ten!

Ah, this was really very good!

She'd lots of cash and lots of food,

She'd heaps of reason to complain,

But, having none, she was at all,

Maybe up to the servant maid,

But that was all that could be said.

One day she woke up to the fact

That there was something still she lacked

To gain the liberty she craved

Her life's right were to be saved.

Her woman's right to cook.

And straightway took a place as cook.

And now it is her vaunted boast.

She rules the mistress, house and roast;

She bosses all, and that's the pith.

Of woman's rights says Mary Smith.

Could Stand Another.

A commercial traveler tells the following of a little social gathering in eastern Ontario:

Dinner was a little late. A guest asked the hostess to play something. Seating herself at the piano, the good woman executed a Chopin nocturne with precision. She finished, and there was still an interval of waiting to be bridged. In the grim silence she turned to an old gentleman her right and said, "Would you like a sonata before dinner?" He gave a start of surprise and pleasure. "Why, yes, of course," he said. "I had a couple on my way here, but I think I could stand another."

THE BRAVE BLACK WATCH.

Building and Tablet in Honor of Its Dead at Ticonderoga.

A notable incident of the attack of the British on Fort Ticonderoga in 1758, during the French and Indian war, was the attempt of the famous "Black Watch" regiment to carry the breastworks, partly by mounting each other's shoulders and partly by placing their feet in holes which they dug with their swords and bayonets. Notwithstanding the desperate efforts of the British to storm the fort they were at that time unsuccessful in taking it, and after a struggle of four hours General Abercrombie ordered a retreat. The order had to be thrice repeated before the "Black Watch" would withdraw. In this one engagement the regiment lost 8 officers, 9 sergeants and 207 men killed and 17 officers, 10 sergeants and 306 men wounded. The bravery of the regiment has been commemorated by a library and historical building, the gift of Andrew Carnegie, which is to be opened on the Fourth of July, and at the same time a tablet in honor of the soldiers of the "Black Watch" who fell before the French lines at Ticonderoga and which has been placed upon the walls of the memorial building will be unveiled. It is the gift of the present officers of the "Black Watch" regiment, which is now stationed at Fort George, Scotland.
