

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.
Is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse because of the uncertainty as to their harmless character, but is a medicine of known composition, a full list of all its ingredients being printed in plain English, on every bottle wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol in its composition. The "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is in fact the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, sold through druggists, that does not contain alcohol and that too in large quantities. Furthermore, it is the only medicine for woman's special diseases, the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of some of these endorsements will be sent to any address, post paid, and absolutely free if you enclose same by postal card or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
Don't forget that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for woman's weaknesses and delicate ailments, is not a patent or secret medicine, being the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated and graduated physician, engaged in the practice of his chosen specialty—that of diseases of women—that its ingredients are printed in plain English on every bottle wrapper; that it is the only medicine especially designed for the cure of woman's diseases that contains no alcohol, and the only one that has a professional endorsement worth more than all the so-called "testimonials" ever published for other medicines. They are free for the asking.
If you suffer from periodical headache, backache, dizziness, pain or dragging down sensation low down in the abdomen, weak back, have discharges and weakness, catarrhal pelvic drain, or are in distress from being long on your feet, then you may be sure of benefit from taking Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets the best laxative and regulator of the bowels. They invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. One a laxative; two or three a cathartic.

Farmers' Sunday Paper

THE Richmond Palladium is the only paper published in Richmond on Saturday which reaches the people living on the rural routes for Sunday. Mail-order free delivery is not delivered on Sunday, therefore Saturday morning's Palladium is the only local paper which is delivered before Monday.

This fact proves conclusively the value of the Palladium as a medium reaching the rural routes. Saturday morning's Palladium is the only paper they have to read on Sunday—the day they have the most time to read.

Pygmy Ota and His Pet Chimpanzee

MUCH interest attaches to the presence at the New York Zoological park of a little fellow from Africa named Ota Benga, a pygmy of the tribe known as Bachochi, meaning bushmen. He is the only specimen of the African pygmies at present in the United States, though six little black people from the same part of Africa were a part of the exhibit in ethnology at the St. Louis world's fair. But the fact that little Ota is here all by himself and is a rare specimen of the human race does not account altogether for the interest taken in him.

Ota Benga was brought to this country by Dr. Samuel P. Verner, the explorer and ethnologist who had charge of the pygmies at St. Louis. After restoring the latter to their homes in the African wilds Dr. Verner came across Ota Benga on one of the southern tributaries of the Congo, where he was a captive in the hands of a cannibal tribe. Knowing that he was liable to be eaten by his captors, Dr. Verner rescued the little man and tried to send him back to his tribesmen. This proving impracticable, Ota begged to be taken to the United States.

On arrival here the explorer tried to put him in an orphan asylum, but was unsuccessful. It thus happened that he was placed under the care of Director William T. Hornaday at the New York Zoological park. Here he was quartered in a room vacated for him by a keeper containing a bed and running water. He took a bath every morning and was allowed to run about the park, but in the afternoon to allow people to see him was placed in a big open air cage, there being no platform suitable for the purpose, where he deposited himself, made nests and hammocks and arrows, counted his money and played with a chimpanzee. It was this latter feature which proved objectionable. It was noised abroad that a man was being exhibited in a cage with a monkey to show the supposed close connection between the two species of beings, and this led to protest, particularly on the part of the colored people of New York, who regarded the matter in the light of a special insult to them. The director of the park decided that the pygmy was placed on view with any subtleties.

The incident raises many interesting questions respecting the comparative development of different branches of the human race and the time man as a human being, supposing he was ever anything else, has been on the earth. Though there are interesting and curious points of resemblance between a member of the simian tribe and any member of the human race, black or white, red or yellow, it is yet a far cry from Ota Benga, the pygmy, to the chimpanzee, with whom he plays. Ota Benga is twenty-three years old and four feet eleven inches in height. It might be supposed that he and his tribesmen, being so small, are more nearly related to the apes, granting that any relationship between the human and simian species exists, than men of races which attain larger size. But Ota Benga is not a representative of the lowest order of savage. There are larger tribes which are less developed than he and his tribesmen. He is bright and has mastered a good many English words already and is skillful at manual work. How long the pygmies have lived in Africa, where they came from and how they came to be smaller than the tribes around them are questions the scientists have not yet been able to answer.

The Marigold.
The marigold goes to sleep with the sun and remains quiescent until sunrise.

A Supply of Potting Soil.
It is always well to lay in a good supply of potting soil in good season. The want of it when badly needed is always a great annoyance. Cut sods from a rich old pasture and pile them up where they will speedily rot. Haul sharp sand, muck, fine woods earth, etc. Dig the old manure out of the hotbeds and make a compost heap, mixing in all other materials suitable for potting, hotbed and cold frame soil.

For the Thorn on the Rose.
Peroxide of hydrogen is recommended for those who have sore hands resulting from handling cut flowers, especially roses. It comes in liquid form and should be applied directly to the sores. A four ounce bottle can be had at any drug store for 25 cents. Gardening.

Clapboards.
To put in position a thousand clapboards requires the use of about eight hundred pounds of sixteen nails.
