CHILD DEAD AND THE FAMILY HAS NO BURIAL FUND

from her people at Mt. Washington as her father and a sister are now at the point of death, and their money means won't allow them to help her. For forty years her father has suffered with epilepsy and has been unable to clothe himself. Mrs. Vincent seems to have inherited her ill fortune for her parents have seen but little of the blessings of life.

Misfortune, misfortune, misfortune has been the Vincent's family lot for some time. At Middletown Mrs. Vincent through her husband's illness had to live in the poor house after she had failed to make a living by washing. This did not last long however, for Mr. Vincent secured work in Richmond and moved his family to Westville where he felt that he could live happy and raise sufficient garden stuff to supply his table. But his injury came and with it sickness. Debts were paid as well as they could be but they accumulated without resources to meet them, until the present crisis.

Child of Great Promise.
The little child now dead was one of great promise. He with his mother attended the East Main street Friends church Yearly Meeting Sunday and there the little fellow attracted a great deal of attention. The youngster was very devout and the neighbors about the Vincent home say that he frequently played preacher. The mother is nearly prostrated over the loss of her child. She had hoped to educate him for the ministry and the money she had put in bank, was for that purpose.

The Vincent family is in peculiarly sore straits. They have received a little help but nothing like they need. It is imperative that they should have help and it is to be hoped that many will respond to the Palladium fund, and if possible visit the home personally. Those who wish to help the family need only send word to this office and the Palladium will attend to collecting the money.

Elliott of South 9th street a part of last week. Berry is a catcher of note and has very flattering offers for the season of 1907. He is well known to many local base ball enthusiasts.

MODEL TENEMENT PLAN MANY WANTS TO BE CARED FOR

Common Kitchens, Laundries, Hospital, Kindergarten and Gymnasium Features of the Project Proposed by Mrs. Frances M. Norton—Building to Cover Whole City Block.

Mrs. Francis M. Norton is the latest to tackle the housing problem in Chicago with plans for a model tenement in the congested ghetto, says the Chicago Tribune.

In a public statement issued over her signature and fortified with a sketch obligingly furnished by a draftsman Mrs. Norton slipped easily over the financial difficulties in the way of her philanthropic venture to reveal in the domestic details of a huge family barracks that is to usher in Utopia at the corner of Jefferson and West Thirtieth streets.

A "family hotel" would best describe the scheme in its present proportions. Only these ghetto families will have kindergarten and hospital facilities thrown in and some of the gymnasium advantages for which members of the Chicago Athletic club pay $120 a year.

Mrs. Norton's general proposal to start a public subscription looking toward the erection of a model tenement won a pledge of support from President R. R. McCormick of the sanitary board. He said he would place $100,000 worth of stock among the wealthy men of the city.

On the other hand, some of the details in which Mrs. Norton is reveling at present have brought out considerable criticism from settlement workers in that district, who suggest that she is not allowing anything for strongly rooted racial habits in her desire to "uplift" the neighborhood all at once.

Mrs. Norton proposes a building four stories high, covering an entire block, with a large court in the center, entered from the street by a lane piercing each side. She thinks it would be nice to cut the courtyard into four sections for the children of different ages, though this, it is pointed out, would go hard with the "little mothers" who have whole families to care for. Stores will occupy the first floor.

"The whole of the second and third stories is to be divided into apartments of suitable size for the accommodation of good sized families," the report continues. "Each family is to have only a large living room and as many bedrooms as are needed. No individual kitchens or laundries will be provided, because all the cooking, baking and laundry work will be done by experts on the top floor in the cookroom. Baking and cooking will be done in a far more economical and satisfactory way than could be possible by each family in separate kitchens."

"In addition, there should be a hospital, a nursery, a kindergarten and an amusement auditorium, all on the top floor. Every evening there should be an entertainment of some sort in the auditorium. Resident talent could be developed, assisted by humanitarian workers from the outside—something to give recreation for the women and keep the men from the saloons."

"It would be necessary to have rooms for the manager's family and for the servants, these to be on the top floor. There should also be a library."

"On the ground floor should be a gymnasium adjoining the playrooms. On each floor should be commodious bathrooms and lavatories; also fire escapes and stairways easily accessible."

"We must not allow disease breeding centers or conditions under which decent moral living is impossible longer to exist in our midst. For our own protection we who are prosperous must spend our wealth in remedying evils that the evil surely will overtake us, no matter how we hedge ourselves about our fine homes and pleasant, healthful surroundings."

Mrs. Laura Dainty Pelham, for several years a resident of the Langdon apartments, erected by the heirs of the Langdon estate near the outskirts of the ghetto, shook her head at Mrs. Norton's details.

"She is making no allowances for the cosmopolitanism of the people nor for their fixed habits," said Mrs. Pelham.

HAS-BEENS WILL FIGHT TO LIMIT

McGovern and Corbett Agree to Meet in Ring First Week in January.

PLACE IS NOT DECIDED

DIFFERENT SPORTING CLUBS WILL BE ALLOWED TO BID FOR RIGHT OF HOLDING THE MATCH.

New York, Oct. 23.—"Terry" McGovern and "Young" Corbett, lightweight prize fighters, met this afternoon at the Metropolitan Hotel with their representatives, Joe Humphreys and Harry Pollok, and signed articles to fight the first week in January, the place of the battle to be decided by November 15, and no limit to the number of rounds.

There was considerable squabbling between the two principals over the terms of the match, McGovern insisting that fully ten weeks be allowed to have the hand he injured in Pennsylvania treated. He also wanted to reserve the right to accept any other fight offer that might be made in the interval.

To this Corbett would not agree and for a time it looked as if the match was off. The fighters left the conference and finally Terry returned to say that he would stand by the agreement made by Humphreys. The articles were then drawn up calling for the battle and naming the place and club which would make the highest bid.

Both fighters agreed to post forfeits of $1,000 and not to make any side bets. The referee will be chosen at the time the place for the meeting is selected. Both principals insisted that the fight must be a finish.

His Barometer.

He thought the times were out of joint;
This was the reason why
He had a line of gold sticks fine,
And no one came to buy.
Although he made a bargain rate,
He couldn't understand
The reason why good men were shy
And left his stock on hand.

He heard prosperity was here
With plenty in its mitt.
But he was shy of a supply,
And much he doubted it.
Though men in many other lines
In profits took delight,
He still picked flaws in things because
The suckers would not bite.

The game that one time brought him cash
Now only brought him woe,
For suckers who looked good were few
And wouldn't try a throw.
No wonder he was sad of heart,
For men and had the blues
And prone to fret. He couldn't get
What seemed his honest dues.

'Tis thus we gauge prosperity
And call it very fine
When all the fish that we could wish
Are dangling on our line,
But with a long range telescope
Its form we could not spy
If suckers only came to grin
And wink the other eye.

Reason Enough.

"Why don't you quit your foolishness and settle down and be decent?"
"Oh, but everybody hates a quitter,
you know."

Getting Their Money's Worth.
Too much censure should not be visited on the sightseers at the country fair who by their jeers caused a balloonist to go up when his balloon was unsafe, thereby forcing him to take a moonlight ride over Lake Michigan for all the world to see.

The dear public has been bunked so often in its amusements that it may be pardoned for having thought that the balloon ascension was only advertised for the purpose of selling tickets. If a man pays admission with the full expectation of seeing some one killed or frightfully mangled, he doesn't want to stand around all afternoon staring at a canvas bag full of wind looking for all the world as though it had been stuck to the earth with a barrel of glue, particularly if his ticket doesn't read, "Money refunded if nobody is killed."

Now They Don't Speak.
"I couldn't marry a man, no matter how much he might be in love with me, unless he were a hero."
"Oh, that difficulty adjusts itself! He'd be a hero to love you, my dear."

Wanted Evidence.
"If you will marry me I know that I will be strong enough to build up a great fortune."
"You will have to show me a blue print of the fortune first."

Not He.
"I love a nice lawn more than anything else about a house."
"You are different from me. I don't love any kind of a lawn mower."

Pacific Moments.
Frederick III. of Germany was styled "the pacific" on account of his dislike to resort to war as a means of settling international differences. Olaus III. of Norway bore the same title for a similar reason.

The Double Eagle.
The twenty dollar gold piece was authorized by act of congress March 3, 1840, and its coinage was begun in 1850.

JAPAN GROWS WARLIKE

[Publishers' Press]

Tokio, Oct. 23.—Japan wants to know whether President Roosevelt meant what he said, when he gave informal assurance last year that there would be no conflict between Japan and America during his tenure of office.

The Mikados subjects see something strange, after this utterance, in the hostility manifested toward them of late on the Pacific Coast of the United States. If the President was serious, they argue, why are not Americans more anxious to conform to his wishes.

The same idea is voiced in several of the Tokio newspapers. The Kokumin Shimbun takes the Presidents remark at its face value and urges moderation on both sides during the present period of trying relations.
