

brought to the court room with them. It was said that the members of one party did not speak to the other throughout the noon recess and no sign of recognition passed between them.

Statement by Miss M.
The family however, is to keep internal discussions the outside world as was shown by a statement made by Mae McKenzie to the reporters today:

There is absolutely no trouble over me between Evelyn and the members of Mr. Thaw's family," declared Miss McKenzie as she entered the court room today. "Evelyn and I understand each other. There is no truth in the report that the Countess of Yarmouth demanded that I be kept from the court room. Why, the Countess will be here today."

As Miss McKenzie spoke Mrs. William Thaw, the Countess of Yarmouth and Mrs. George Carnegie swept by her on their way to their seats. They did not even look at her. Miss McKenzie turned and made a remark to Evelyn Nesbit Thaw that caused that young woman to smile.

Lawyers Hartridge and Peabody, who held a twenty minutes conference with Harry Thaw in the jury room before the session opened today, also denied that there was any difference in the Thaw family over Mae McKenzie or anything else.

Matter Fought Out Sunday.
Mrs. Evelyn Thaw and the McKenzie girl however, carried the fight to the Thaws last night, if court rumors are to be believed. Aroused by the stories that the Thaws were objecting to her, Miss McKenzie packed up her belongings and announced that she was going to leave the hotel Lorraine. She proclaimed that she was tired of being misunderstood and misrepresented.

Mrs. Harry Thaw became hysterical at the prospect of losing the only friend she really has confidence in. Miss McKenzie said she would not stay if there was any objection on the part of Mrs. William Thaw and the Countess of Yarmouth.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw ran to her mother-in-law and begged her to keep Miss McKenzie from leaving the hotel. The elder Mrs. Thaw said that neither she nor her daughters had any objection to Miss McKenzie's friendship for Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and that it was their desire that the actress remain at the hotel. When this message was communicated to Miss McKenzie she unpacked her belongings and re-established herself in the suite which is held by Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, whose guest her chum has been.

The Greensfork lads took the lead in the first half and were never overtaken by the visitors. The excellent team work of the home team was largely instrumental in winning for it. TALKED ON CHILD LABOR

The Rev. Mr. Huntington Gave Earlam Students an Interesting Lecture Yesterday.

The Rev. Mr. Huntington of the St. Paul's Episcopal church spoke very interestingly yesterday morning in the Earlam chapel on the "Child Labor" question which is so confronting the American people today. Rev. Huntington cited various instances which had come to his attention while living in the east, where the lives of children were warped by their being compelled to slave day in and day out the year round.

RICHMOND HAS A "HAND CUFF KING"

He is None Other than Ellsworth Livelsberger, the Popular Patrol Driver.

IS VERY MODEST ABOUT IT

HE HAS SLIPPED EVERY STYLE HANDCUFF HE EVER SAW OFF HIS WRISTS WITHOUT USING A KEY.

While many people are taking great interest in the appearance of the Fords, handcuff and shackle artists showing at the Phillips this week, but few of them know or realize that Richmond has a handcuff king and an expert in removing the obstructions, and that is no other than Ellsworth Livelsberger, the patrol driver at police headquarters. Livelsberger has shown his ability to let a few friends therefore many people are unacquainted with his prowess.

Livelsberger can remove any kind of a cuff and but recently started a deputy warden of the Michigan City penitentiary by easily removing a pair of handcuffs which were guaranteed to withstand any such actions. Just thirty seconds were required. The handcuffs at police headquarters consisting of several different brands are "easy" for the patrol driver, he having placed the keys for all of them in the possession of friends and with the knowledge which has acquired during his service in the police department and a few quick and nervous moves has been able to remove the "irons." When asked as to how he did the trick, Livelsberger last night said "Well you can't do it by looking at them, that's a cinch." He has successfully removed every pattern of handcuffs in the city, not even the old timers of ex-Sheriff Smith being able to withstand his prowess. He is modest about his power and it is only after the greatest amount of persuasion that he can be induced to give an exhibition.

NEWS OF HIGH SCHOOL

Principal Ellabarger Inaugurates System which Greatly Helps in Making Out Next Term's Program—Lecture by Prof. Davis.

Rev. Conrad Huber read the scriptures and gave a short talk to the high school students in chapel yesterday morning. His subject was taken from the nineteenth Psalm, which he read to the pupils.

Prof. Jones, teacher in the commercial course, was called to Detroit Friday, on account of the death of his brother and as a result his classes did not recite yesterday.

Prof. Ellabarger has inaugurated a new plan for the benefit of the juniors and seniors. He has had cards printed with blanks for the names of studies taken this term and what studies the pupil wishes to take next term. This will greatly aid the work of making out a program for the term, as he can then see what studies will be taken and how to best avoid confusion of classes. The seniors have two electives next term, physiology and commercial geography, both of which seem to be in demand.

Prof. Davis gave an illustrated talk to his American history class yesterday on the subject they are now studying. These lectures are interesting and helpful, as Prof. Davis has a very fine set of lantern slides that give a fine idea of conditions at that time.

THE SHIPPLERS BLAMED

FIGURES GIVEN AS PROOF

Division Freight Agent McCabe Shows How the Shortage of Freight Cars is Not Due Entirely to the Railroad Companies.

While manufacturers all over the state are crying against the apparent car shortage on all of the railroads, it is interesting to note that the greater portion of the shortage in this state is attributed to the shippers and not the railroads.

In speaking of the matter yesterday, Guy McCabe, division freight agent, said and produced figures to prove his assertions, that out of the 85,000 cars controlled by Indiana railroads for Indiana service, 6,078 cars were delayed over forty eight hours, while the average delay in moving freight cars including box, gondola and coal, was 1.74 days. Of this delay the railroads of the state were responsible for .54 per cent while the consignees were responsible for 1.20 per cent.

In the United States the average delay of 5,700,000 freight cars is 1.83 days of which the railroads are responsible for .38 per cent while the consignees are responsible for 1.83 per cent.

ITALIANS STARTED FOR HATED JUDGE

Were Angry at His Strict Enforcement of Law and Made Rush for Him.

COURT OFFICERS READY

MEMBERS OF "BLACK HAND" SOCIETIES HUSTLED INTO CORRIDOR, ALL THE TIME BEING SEVERELY THUMPED.

[Publishers' Press.]
New York, Jan. 28.—Prompt action by court officers prevented several Italians who were gathered in the county court in Brooklyn this afternoon, from making an attack on Judge Dike, who had angered them by declaring that he would send any "Black Hand" member brought to him to prison for life. The Italians grew excited and started toward the bench, but the court officers were prepared and without hesitation, rushed the crowd into the corridors and out of the building before any harm was done. Incidentally the Italians were well thumped by the officers who used their batons to good effect.

The trouble grew out of a sentence inflicted on Giuseppe Aurchello, an Italian, for assaulting his sixteen-year-old sweetheart, Anna Parma, of 638 Grand avenue, Brooklyn. In pronouncing sentence of ten years, Judge Dike said:

"I am going to put a stop to these criminal Italians and 'Black Hand' societies, if it can possibly be done. The only way to eliminate them and bring them to a stop is by giving them the limit prescribed by law. I wish to say now that if any member of this so-called Black Hand society or any one supposed to be a member of such a society, is brought before me for sentence, I will give them the limit—life if I can."

While the judge was making these remarks, several Italians in the court room, together with the prisoner, began to grumble angrily, and as Judge Dike concluded, they arose from their seats and started toward him.

Instantly the court officers were in action. The prisoner was hustled out of the room, while several court officers made a rush for the oncoming Italians, and before the latter realized what had happened, they found themselves in the corridor, and a few seconds later, in the street.

Only quick work prevented probable violence. Aurchello, the prisoner, was aggressively in love with pretty Anna Parma. She had heard, however, that he was a member of a Black Hand society and refused to marry him. She kept putting him off with excuses. On the night of December 18, 1905, he met her coming from business and waylaid her. Grabbing her by the throat he drew a razor across her throat from ear to ear. He then fled. The girl lingered between life and death for many months, and one day received a letter from Aurchello. Several decoy letters were sent to Aurchello at the request of the police, but each time Aurchello failed to appear at the meeting. One night he walked to the girl's home and she hearing him coming, locked herself in. Aurchello broke in the door and was about to attack the girl when neighbors summoned several policemen and he was captured.

LEGAL FIGHT OVER

CHANGES IN "CLEO"

Mrs. Leslie Carter Wants All the Bright Lines and the Author Objects.

CASE GIVEN A HEARING

MR. ROYLE THE AUTHOR NOW HAS A TEMPORARY INJUNCTION AGAINST THE "STAR" AND WANTS IT MADE PERMANENT.

[Publishers' Press.]
New York, Jan. 28.—Judge Leventritt, in the supreme court today heard argument and reserved decision on the application of Wilder and Anderson, counsel for Edward Milton Royle, author and playwright, to make permanent a temporary injunction, restraining Mrs. Leslie Carter and her manager, Charles Dillingham, from producing the play "Cleo."

Mr. Wilder declared that last September Royle was engaged to write, or rather revise, the old play "Article Forty Seven," as there was no time to write a new play in which Mrs. Carter might appear. The lawyer said that the contract reserved to the author the right to make any changes or additions.

"After several acts of the play had been submitted, Mr. Royle discovered that Mrs. Carter was making changes and objections. He then wrote to Mr. Dillingham, calling his attention to the contract, and told the manager that Mrs. Carter was going to make trouble for both author and manager," said Mr. Wilder. "She wanted bright lines that had been given to some one else given to her, but this the author refused to do. Mr. Royle refused to tolerate the play in order to give Mrs. Carter a stunt at the end of the fourth act."

Edward Lautyrbach, counsel for the manager declared that the author desired to change what was the key-note of the whole play. "Mrs. Carter," he said, "did not consider the play as written, but wanted a play that should address itself to the heart of her audiences. Shakespeare is not now enacted as the author wrote it."

The lawyer said that upward of $50,000 had been expended on the play and that it was to open in Buffalo next Monday night. He wanted to know if the injunction was made permanent, what was to be the managers' relief, and he also declared that "a woman's artistic reputation will be ruined."

Mr. Beveridge met this with a criticism of the growing power of the judiciary committee, of which Mr. Spooner is a leading member. He characterized it as a junior supreme court which was attempting to assume the functions of the greater body.
