MRS. JANE PARSONS, AGED 87, IS DEAD

Was a Well Known Resident Of Hagerstown.

FUNERAL NOT ARRANGED.

Hagerstown, Ind., May 23.—Mrs. Jane Parsons, aged 87 years, died at the home of her son George W. Parsons, Wednesday evening, after months of painful sickness. Among the living children are George W. Parsons, Hagerstown; Benjamin F. Parsons, Richmond; Mrs. D. A. Rudy, Indianapolis and Mrs. Edwin Searles, Muncie. There are a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren and more distant relatives.

Mrs. Parsons was a native of Virginia, but has lived here almost all of her life. Her husband, Amos Parsons, was engaged in business for many years in Hagerstown until his death. The devoutness and deep religious fervor of her life have distinguished Mrs. Parsons always. The funeral arrangements have not been made at this writing.

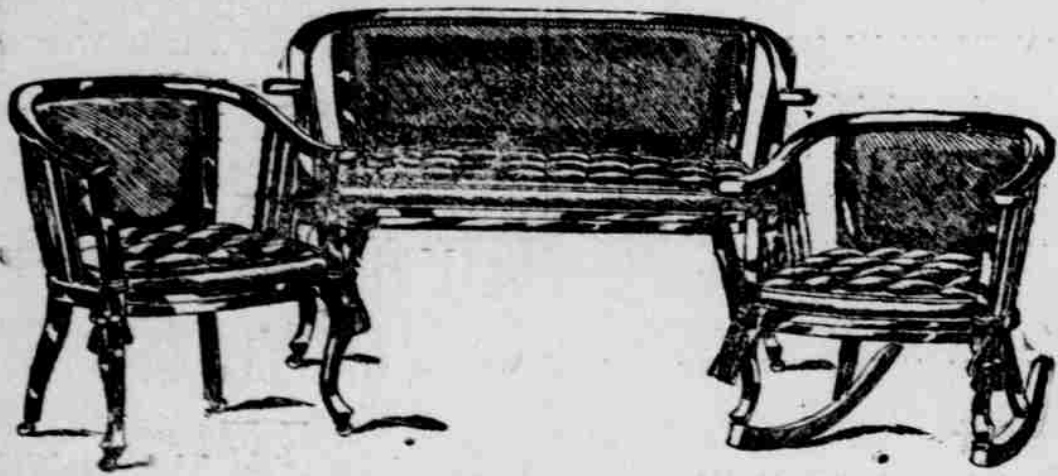

The amount of heat given out by the sun is constantly varying, and at times it is not less than one-sixth greater than at other times—that is, amply sufficient to account for exceptionally cool summers or warm winters on the earth. Indeed, there can no longer be any doubt that we owe our weather to a great extent to the solar luminary.—Reader Magazine.

IS A MUD TURTLE A WILD ANIMAL?

This Question Served as Subject for Hot Discussion
In Circuit Court.

OPINIONS DIFFER MUCH.

WHOLE MATTER ARISES FROM
THE FACT THAT "TESSIE," THE REID HOSPITAL TURTLE, HAS PASSED INTO STRANGE HANDS.

Is a turtle a wild animal? This question was a subject of a hot discussion among several attorneys at the circuit court. It came up through an amusing incident.

"Tessie," the monster turtle was the ruler of the pond at the hospital grounds until its domain was stolen. "Tessie" is now the property of Frank Egly, a saloon keeper, and it looks as though the big fellow is doomed for the soup. It is claimed that some person after the pond had been let out captured "Tessie" and disposed of her to Egly. One of the hospital officials desired to return the turtle to the hospital and offered Egly $1.25 for her. The offer was turned down. The question now is—can the owner of a wild animal which escapes captivity reclaim it? Judge Fox maintains that if the owner can establish the identity of the animal he can reclaim it. John F. Robbins takes the opposite view. He is of the opinion that a wild animal which escapes captivity, and he thinks "Tessie" went out of the pond through the sluice in the bank, is no longer the chattel of its original owner and becomes the property of whoever obtains it after it has escaped from captivity.

Prosecutor Jessup states that "Tessie" is not a wild animal. He states that it has been thoroughly domesticated through its long residence in the pond, and that it regularly appeared each day to be fed by one of Colonel Miller's employees during the time the pond was owned by Mr. Miller, and since then "Tessie" has been fed by one of the attaches of the hospital.

Two Anecdotes of Beau Nash.

Upon his first going to Bath Mr. Quin, the actor, found himself very extravagantly charged for eatables and drinkables, as well as for washing and lodging. At the end of the first week he took aside Beau Nash, the master of ceremonies, who had recommended Bath as being the cheapest place in England for a man of taste and a bon vivant. Nash, who loved his joke and knew that Quin loved a pun as well as himself, replied, "They have acted by you upon truly Christian principles." "How so?" queried Quin. "Why," resumed Nash, "you were a stranger, and they took you in." "Aye, but," replied Quin, "they have deceived me instead of clothing me."

A few nights after Nash was in company with Quin when he was in one of his satirical moods and was taking off most of those present in the rooms. Nash, expecting to be the next, got up and was on the point of retiring when Quin asked him why he was going so soon. "In order to save you the trouble of taking me off, I think it is best to take myself off," quietly replied the master of the ceremonies.—Chambers' Journal.

AMONG THE CLERGY.

Coffee Being Replaced by Postum
Food Coffee.

"I am the wife of a minister. About three years ago a warm friend, an exemplary mother and the conscientious wife of a minister, asked me if I had ever tried giving up coffee and using Postum Food coffee. I had been telling her of my excessive nervousness and ill health. She said: 'We drink nothing else for breakfast but Postum, and it is a delight and comfort to have something that we do not have to refuse the children when they ask for it.'"

"I was surprised that she would permit the children to drink even the food coffee, but she explained that it was a most healthful beverage and that the children thrived on it. A very little thought convinced me that for brain work, one should have food and the very best of food."

"My first trial of Postum was a failure. The maid of all work brought it to the table lukewarm, weak, and altogether lacking in character. We were in despair, but decided on one more trial. At the second trial we faithfully followed the directions, used four teaspoonfuls to the pint of water let it boil full fifteen minutes after the real boiling began, and served it with rich cream. It was delicious and we were all won."

"I have since sung the praises of Postum Food Coffee on many, many occasions and have induced numbers of friends to abandon coffee and use Postum, with remarkable results. The wife of a college professor said to me a short time ago that nothing had ever produced so marked a change in her husband's health as the leaving off of coffee and the use of Postum in its place. EARLHAM IS AFTER COACH FROM YALE

Hoped to Get Fast Man for Football Team.

HEZE CLARK AFTER PLACE.

If Earlham is successful in her efforts, a Yale man will be secured to coach the Quakers in football the coming season. Propositions have been made to three Yale graduates who are now engaged in athletic work. As yet none of them has accepted. A coach of the calibre Earlham is after with the prestige of Yale behind him is hard to get as many prop schools in the east give much attention to athletics and gobble up the desirable material.

A large number of applicants have bid for Coach Wilson's shoes, among them Heze Clark, the Indiana University football star. It is said Clark stands little show of getting the place.
