Wife Appreciated It.

They have just "discovered themselves" for a new bed, an old fashioned, colonial sort of bed, that looks as though it might have been in somebody's family for a hundred years or so, and they think a great deal of it. They have discussed its many merits time and again, but it remained for the young wife to discover one feature of the new bed that had never appealed to the husband.

"There's one thing I like about the bed," said she, "about the sideboard and a way it's put on."

"What's that?" asked he.

"It's so low I don't believe a man could crawl under it," said she.—Indianapolis News.

The Trials of Life.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of the Third Ward of the City of Richmond, Wayne Township, Wayne County, Indiana, that I, the undersigned, a male inhabitant of the State of Indiana, and a continuous resident of said township for more than ninety days prior to the time of the filing of said application, and a person over the age of twenty-one years and a person of good moral character, intend to apply to the Board of Commissioners of said County and State at their next regular session commencing on the first Monday of August, 1907, for a license to sell intoxicating, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than five gallons at a time, and permit the same to be drunk on the premises where sold, in accordance with the provisions of an act of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, approved March 17th, 1875, and all amendments and additions thereto, and all other laws of the State of Indiana, now in force in relation to said business.

The precise location and description of the room in which I desire to sell and will sell intoxicating, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors should a license be granted me, is as follows to-wit:

The front room on the ground floor of a certain story and a half frame building, fronting on the west side of North 12th street, in the city of Richmond, and being number 608 North 12th street; situated on the following described real estate, to-wit: Not No. 14 in the Yearly Meeting of the Society of Friends addition to the said city of Richmond, in Wayne county, Indiana, on the west side of North 12th street, between F and G streets, said lot being 35 feet wide and 160 feet deep, and being in the Third ward in the said City of Richmond, Wayne township, Wayne county, Indiana.

HENRY LENNARD.

USED BIBLE AS CIPHER.

A Verse From Solomon Told of a Marriage Engagement.

When she left her home in the small town to come to New York to take up a special course of study her pet sister was fast reaching the crisis of a love affair. The pet sister was a most winsome young lady and had long kept a goodly train of suitors a-sighing. This was a trial to be the grand affair? The older sister hoped so, for she liked the young man cordially—thought he was just the sort to make a proper brother-in-law.

But the weeks passed, and not a bit of definite news about the progress of the affair did the older sister receive in her city boarding house. She became anxious. Louise, she thought, must not go on recklessly trifling in such important matters.

Then one night about 10 o'clock, just as she was going to bed, came a telegram. The servant brought it up. The elder sister was country girl enough to be thoroughly frightened by the pale manila, black inked envelope. How ominous it looked! At length she gathered courage to open it. This is what she read:

Solomon six three. Louise, the world! Oh, why, yes, stupid, it of course meant the Song of Solomon, sixth chapter, third verse! But—and her cheeks flushed with shame—she had no Bible!

There was a great scurrying about the boarding house to find a copy of the sacred book. The girls were routed out in vain. On all sides the cry arose, "Who's got a Bible?" Just think of the sister trying to sleep that night without knowing what that verse meant! It would have been just like a woman to lie down to pleasant dreams, content to know that she could satisfy her curiosity in the morning—not!

The landlady, good soul, came to the rescue. She was no heathen. She had a Bible. Up to her room with it flew the sister and shut the door. Such a turning over of pages by eager, nervous fingers! Solomon six three. She found it, and then she cried "Hurrah!" and laughed, for the verse was:

I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine.

THE SPECTER SWIMMER.

A Legend of the Sea That Still Appeals to Sailors.

The sailor as a class still holds fast to the superstitions that have been his especial heritage throughout all ages. To him the sea is still peopled with phantoms. Men there are still who sail the sea believing in the power of the Swimmer, men who believe in the Walrus of unholy fame and in the existence of the specter bark Lucy to be seen at any time dodging in and out of the creeks and bays of the South Carolina coast. This is the tale of the Swimmer.

Near Cape Finisterre there lived a fisher maiden in days when the world asked fewer questions than now, and with her lived her fisher sweetheart. On their wedding night, runs the yarn, smugglers came down on their village, a thieving, drunken band. When they left, having done all the damage they could, the fisher maiden's sweetheart had disappeared, whether with them or through them was never known. Instead of pining uselessly, as would most women, she dressed herself in men's clothes and started to find him, dead or alive.

For years she wandered over the earth and ocean, and though her disguise was penetrated several times and she passed through a host of troubles which vary with each telling, she succeeded in keeping up her hunt. Finally after escaping from an English prison the vessel she was on was lost at sea, and the simple Breton fisherman enshrined her in a legend which has her forever swimming the seas all in search of the man she loved and a little each craft she nears. A sailor, he be Yankee or Portuguese, matter of fact in all things else or grossly superstitious, believes firmly that if you hear the hall of the Swimmer on a dark night at sea and answer it not you follow swiftly.—New York Herald.

The Perfect Servant.

The thoroughly trained English servant is in his way the most perfect kind of servant to be found anywhere, and in his station and for his duties he is not to be matched in the world. Where will you find any men so competent in their work, so completely trained and apparently emotionless in manner, so punctual, so clean, so smart, as an English butler, coachman, footman or valet? Certainly not on the continent of Europe, in the United States, in Canada or in Australia.—Country Life.

Metals and Metaphors.

"It is most amazing," said a metallurgist, "how the world relies on metals for its metaphors and similes. Thus an orator is silver tongued or golden mouthed. An explorer is bronzed by African sun. A resolute chap has an iron will. A sluggish moves with leaden feet. An ostrich has a copper lined stomach. A millionaire has a tin. A swindler is as slippery as quicksilver. A borrower has brass."—New York Press.

Mamma Remembered.

Papa (enraged)—Well, Constantia, daughter, I've never in all my life seen as soft, green, unsophisticated, spoony an idiot as young Puddington. Mamma (emphatically)—I have!—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A son never realizes how much his own father knew until he starts to advise children of his own.—Florida Times-Union.

It is believed that the oldest charity fund, apart from hospitals, which is still maintained, is the royal maternity
