Games Sunday.

Portland at Richmond. Van Wert at Kokomo. Bluffton at Decatur.

Kokomo 12; Richmond, 0.

Kokomo, with spiked shoes, jumped our quivering anatomy Friday afternoon and ground us into third place so deep that we probably will be found limping along in that position when the flag drops, Sunday. The Wildcats Friday afternoon administered to the locals the worst beating they have received this season, 12 to 0. While Chuck Lacey held the Quakers helpless his team mates pounded Casey Horn in to the clear in the middle of the second inning. Fisher was placed in the box and a general shift in the lineup was made. Tacks went along nicely until the fifth inning, then he commenced to get his with monotonous regularity. In the fifth, sixth and seventh innings the Wildcats banged the southpaw for eight clean hits, which were combined with the usual number of errors.

The locals were completely outclassed in every department of play. Our weakthrowing outfield allowed the Kokomo base runners to cavort at will on the bags. Everything that Horn and Fisher offered the visitors was hit a mile or two. The one redeeming feature of the game from a local stand point was the fielding of Weaver. Buck took six chances, three of them pop flies, which he had to sprint in for, without a wobble.

This afternoon the locals are meeting Hunt's Portland outfit at Athletic park and will make a desperate effort to dislodge the Jays from second place. The failure to win this game means that the Quakers have third place clinched. Score of Friday's game:

BASEBALL GOSSIP.

(By Tort.)

Portland is the attraction at Athletic park today and Sunday. Portland is now in second place, two games in the lead of the locals. Portland has won 25 and lost 19 games. Richmond has won 23 and lost 21 games. If the locals take the games from Portland today and Sunday, both teams will be tied for second place with a percentage of .543. If Richmond should lose both of the Portland games and Kokomo should defeat Van Wert today and Sunday, Kokomo would beat us out of third place. If Kokomo should win both games from Van Wert and Richmond would split even with Portland, both Richmond and Kokomo would be tied for third place. Decatur has the rag clinched, but it is a pretty fight among Richmond, Portland and Kokomo for a place.

It has definitely been decided that Richmond will have independent baseball as long as the weather permits. Manager Jessup is recruiting several Central league and I. O. league stars to strengthen the local team and when this aggregation takes the field it will be the fastest ball team that ever wore Richmond uniforms. The lineup of the new team will be announced later.

The I. O. league season closes Sunday. Independent ball will be played by the locals from that date probably until the middle of October. Manager Jessup will try to arrange dates with the Columbus American association champions, the Springfield Central league champions, the Indianapolis league team, the Cincinnati Reds, and strong independent Indiana and Ohio teams. It is probable that a game between Richmond and Cambridge City will be arranged.

Windy Orr got into an oratorical contest with Manager Jessup Friday and the Kokomo backstop had the following handed him for his pains: "If all your brains would turn to dynamite, you would not have enough to blow a dead off a tree."

All construction work on the Manila railway company's new lines is performed by Filipino labor, under the supervision of American engineers and superintendents. The company is running first class trains lighted by electricity. Its new Manila line is a success. It parallels the pipe line which is to bring water from the mountains to Manila.

PANBESA'S LETTER.

An Account of an Egyptian City Thirty Centuries Ago.

Probably the oldest letter in the world is the letter of Panbesa, written fifteen centuries before Christ to his friend, Amenemhat, a scribe.

The manuscript is of perishable papyrus, and it is amazing that it should have survived for more than thirty centuries and still be legible.

It is preserved in the collection of the British museum. It has been several times translated. It presents an interesting picture of life in Egypt in the time of Rameses II. It is more in the nature of a literary production, a poem composed in celebration of the visit of Pharaoh to the city of Panbesa, than an ordinary letter of today.

Panbesa "greeted his lord, the scribe Amenemhat, to whom he life, health and strength," and then goes on to describe the verdant fields, the thrashing floors, the vineyards, the groves of olives, the orchards of figs, the great daily markets, with their fish and waterfowl and swarms of purchasers.

The citizens had their "sweet wine of Khemi, pomegranate wine and wine from the vineyards," and to these they added "beer of Kati."

There was music in plenty furnished by the singers of the school of Memphis.

On the whole, Panbesa seems to have been a pleasant place to live in. "The lesser folk are there equal with the great folk," and Panbesa writes that its maidens were "in holiday attire every day," with locks "redolent of perfumed oil."

THE CITY OF CANALS.

Venice and the Many Islands Upon Which It Is Built.

Venice is one of the most singular and famous cities in Europe and is built upon a cluster of islands in the lagoon.

On the whole, Panbesa seems to have been a pleasant place to live in. "The lesser folk are there equal with the great folk," and Panbesa writes that its maidens were "in holiday attire every day," with locks "redolent of perfumed oil."

The chief of these islands is called Isola de Rialto, or Island of the Deep Stream. The islands, in many places mere shoals, afford no adequate foundation for buildings, and the city for the most part is built upon an artificial foundation of piles and stones.

The Grand canal divides Venice into two equal parts and is the main thoroughfare for traffic and pleasure. The city is subdivided by some one hundred and forty-six small canals or water streets, and the gondola is used for the carriage. Access can also be had to various parts of the city by land, there being over three hundred bridges across canals. The Rialto, the most famous bridge, spans the Grand canal. There are also narrow lanes in among the houses.

The Overruling of a Judge. A judge once awoke in the night to find his room in the possession of two armed burglars. Covered by the pistol of one of the marauders, the judge watched the proceedings with his usual judicial calm. One of the deprecators found a watch. "Don't take that," the judge said; "It has little value and is a keepsake." "The motion is overruled," replied the burglar. "I appeal," rejoined the judge. The two burglars consulted, and the spokesman then replied: "The appeal is allowed. The case coming on before a full tribunal of the supreme court, that body is of the unanimous opinion that the decree of the lower court should be sustained, and it is accordingly so ordered." Pocketing the watch, court adjourned.

Logic and Metaphysics.

Joaquin Miller was once conversing with a learned professor who was visiting California. To the poet's query, "What do you do?" the professor answered that he held the chair of metaphysics and logic at a New England university. Whereupon the venerable Miller, with an encouraging smile, reassuringly patted the professor on the shoulder. "Logic and metaphysics, eh? Well, I suppose we must have people to look after those things, even if they don't exist."

Torture.

"The Carthaginian mercenaries," he said, "incensed their prisoners in a cement that as it hardened contracted. You can't imagine how uncomfortable this was."

"Oh, yes, I can," she answered. "I once had on a tight bathing suit when it began to shrink."—Los Angeles Times.

Doctor—I must know what you have eaten today in order to understand your stomachic disorder.

Patient—Oh, doctor, only a little pork. It was left over from last week and was perhaps not quite fresh.

Doctor—Would it not have been more sensible to let the pork spoil entirely rather than to upset your stomach?

Patient—But, doctor, you can cure a diseased stomach, but what can you do with spoiled pork?—Fliegende Blatter.

ARCHBISHOP AND G. A. R.

HIS SYMPATHY.

It Would Have Been Worth More Only He Lacked Presence of Mind.

In the criminal court in Baltimore a dandy was on trial for stealing a watch, which he had pawned. He was identified by the owner as the person who grabbed the watch out of his pocket, yet the dandy claimed to be innocent. When asked how he came in possession of the watch he said:

"I was standing on the corner when a man comes up to me and says he is hard up and hasn't a cent to buy food with, and he wants to sell me this watch for $3. I knew I could get $4 out of it in pawn, and I felt sorry for him and bought the watch for $3 and pawned it for $4. That's how I got the watch."

The prosecutor then asked, if he had bought the watch for $3, knowing he could pawn it for $4, simply to help the man along because he felt sorry for him, why he did not advise him to pawn it himself, and then he would have had $4 instead of $3.

"Well, you see," said the prisoner, "I didn't have the presence of mind to do that."—Judge's Library.

The Old Suez Canal.

Few people are aware that there had been a canal across the isthmus of Suez before De Lesseps ever conceived the idea of his monumental enterprise. A canal across the isthmus was actually constructed 600 years before the Christian era and served as a waterway for small vessels until about 1,000 years ago, when it was allowed to fall into disuse. Napoleon revived the idea and instructed one of the great engineers of his day to investigate the matter, but though a favorable report was presented to him, in which M. Lepere recommended the restoration of the canal, the work itself was never touched.

When M. de Lesseps undertook the task of cutting the canal he thought at first to follow the idea of Napoleon and restore the ancient waterway, but this plan was abandoned and the present plan determined upon.

The Other Way Around.

The loyalty of the Scottish highlander to his kilt is a picturesque thing. He will never admit that it makes him cold, and highlanders who were suffering from cold in the ordinary dress of civilization have been known to substitute the kilt for it in order to get warm, though this would be much like removing one's coat and waistcoat and rolling up one's shirt sleeves for the same purpose.

It is said that a stranger, seeing a soldier in full highlander uniform shivering in a cold wind, asked him:

"Sandy, are you cold with the kilt?"

"Na, na, mon," the soldier answered indignantly. "but I'm nigh kilt with the cauld!"

In all France there are only 1,100 persons who are millionaires in our sense of the word (in dollars). Of millionaires in francs, there are about 15,000 apart from the 1,100 already counted.

The success of Norway in setting up as an independent nation has affected Iceland, which has a party that also seeks national independence from the mother state, Denmark. King Christian's early visit to the island is designed to quiet the succession spirit, independent republic if given the opportunity. In any event, observes the Springfield Republican, it would be an interesting study compared with the little republics of the tropics. The relation between political science and the weather would be illuminated.

THE BEAUTIFUL HISTORICAL PICTURE, IN COLORS,

Christopher Columbus at the Royal Court of Spain.

This beautiful picture is after the famous painting by Brozik and shows the intrepid Columbus explaining to Queen Isabella his great plan of sailing due west "around" the globe until he came to Asia. Before the Queen on a table are her jewels of fabulous worth, which she later sold to buy the little fleet with which Columbus set out on his remarkable voyage of discovery. The scene which the picture portrays is shown as taking place in a beautifully decorated room of the Queen's palace, and the two principals, Columbus and Queen Isabella, are surrounded by a group of richly dressed Spanish grandees.
