

LOCAL AND GENERAL SPORTS

BUSH IS IN DOUBT ABOUT HIS FUTURE

Does Not Know to What American League Team He Will Be Assigned.

THINKS DETROIT IS O. K.

FISHER IS MYSTERIOUS ABOUT HIS WEDDING ARRANGEMENTS—WEAVER WILL STAY WITH THE LOCAL CLUB.

Owens Bush, the fast little short-stop playing with the locals, is in some doubt as to what major league club controls his services for next season. Before the drafting season it was reported that Bush had been sold to the Boston Americans. It was then reported that he was purchased by the Detroit Americans. When the drafting season came along it was announced that the Pittsburgh Nationals had secured him. Bush thinks he belongs to the Detroit club. He would not be adverse to playing there under Hugh Jennings' management. Detroit has one of the top notch teams of the country.

Fisher is Mysterious.
Wednesday is T. Fisher's wedding day. Fisher is keeping the arrangements for this important event a deep secret. He is now hinting that the ceremony will not be performed in Richmond. He says in a mysterious manner that he will wed Miss Schwab at his home in Martinsville. "Today may be my last day with the Richmond team and I may not winter in Richmond," says Fisher.

Coming Next Week.
The Medicine Hat team, so called, will be the attraction here again Wednesday and Thursday of this week. This fast aggregation is composed of some of the best known minor league stars in the country.

Players Pleased.
The members of the local team, who are not on salaries but receive a percentage of the gate receipts, are exceedingly pleased over the attendance at the two games which have so far been played. If the attendance keeps up the boys will receive quite a nice little nest egg. As long as the locals continue to play as good ball as they did Saturday and Sunday, they can expect to see the games well attended.

Watch for Home Run.
A local jeweler has offered a nice little gold watch for the first Richmond player who poles out a home run. Stokes Weaver has gone in for the watch. Bush, Plummer, Parker, Burns and Johnson also announce that they are after the prize.

Weaver Will Stick.
Plummer and Johnson, are under reserve to the Quincy team. Fisher has been reserved by South Bend. Bush is probably the property of the Detroit team. The other players on the team are free lances and the local fans would be pleased if Manager Jessup would secure the names of all of them to Richmond contracts for 1903. Weaver has already announced that he will be with Jessup next season.

Jessup is Away.
Manager Jessup did not play in the game this afternoon. He went to Indianapolis this morning on business. In his place behind the bat was the ever reliable Billy Meredith.

Want Sunday Date.
A Richmond fan who was in Cincinnati Sunday met Frank Bancroft, business manager of the Cincinnati Reds, and he states that Mr. Bancroft told him to tell Manager Jessup that the Reds would like to get a Sunday date here after the close of the league season, which is the middle of October. The Reds will be accommodated.

Krebs are Coming.
Manager Jessup has booked the Hamilton Krebs here for Sunday, Oct. 13. This team won the K. I. O. league championship. At shortstop is the wealthy Ernie Diehl, who for sport, finished the season with the Toledo American association and hit at a .391 clip in twenty-two games. Every major league club in the country has sought the services of Diehl but he only plays when he feels like it. Supposing you owned several valuable pieces of Cincinnati real estate and a big distillery in Hamilton—would you tie yourself up to a base ball contract?

The New Pure Food and Drug Law.
We are pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and Drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. A. G. Luker & Co.

To elderly persons London is no longer a pleasant place of residence. The streets have become a labyrinth of horror and difficulty, a region of hideous sounds and foul smells. With motor buses toppling over on the sidewalk, and private motors knocking down lamp-posts and impinging on the shelters, the unfortunate citizen knows not whether to wend his trembling steps—London Graphic.

WEBSTER WON FROM FOUNTAIN CITY TEAM

Contest Was More Interesting Than Score Indicates.

NEXT TO WILLIAMSBURG.

Webster, Ind., Sept. 24.—Webster won Sunday's game from Fountain City in a contest of much more interest than the score indicates. Webster took the lead at the jump and was never headed. Next Sunday Webster will cross bats with the fast Williamsburg bunch. Although the burg has a much faster team than Webster, the Webster lads are going with a determination to hold the burg to a low score. Score on Sunday:

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED
BY IDLEMAN'S TEAM

Willing to Meet Hunt Aggregation at Bowling.

LINEUP OF THE TEAMS.

Monday evening the Palladium published a challenge issued by Ed Hunt's bowling team to any other bowling team in the city. P. L. Idleman has organized a team and he states that he will accept the challenge of the Hunt team, the match to be played off at the City bowling alleys, North Ninth street, Wednesday evening of this week. It is very probable that the match will be pulled off. The two teams are composed of crack bowlers and the match should be an interesting one to watch. The two teams will probably line up as follows:

Hunts.
Ed Hunt.
Bert Martin.
Harry Parry.
Roy Carmen.
Freed Hoover.

VAIL GETS A LINE
ON EARLHAM SQUAD

Was Impressed With the Earnestness Displayed by the Football Candidates.

THINKS PROSPECTS GOOD.

THE FIFTEEN MEN WHO REPORT-ED ON REID FIELD MONDAY NIGHT WERE WELL PLEASED WITH VAIL.

"From what I have seen, I am impressed with the earnestness displayed on the part of the candidates. In some sections of the country, football candidates go into the affair with half heartedness, but the squad which was on Reid Field tonight had the true Pennsylvania spirit, which is to be commended. The prospects I think are good for a winning team. I will not endeavor to stick to entire eastern methods in my coaching this fall. Conditions have to be met and a coach teaching his protegee, is a consummate ass when he says 'his' way, peculiar to the territory where he attended school, is the only way. I am new to western football and will adapt myself to conditions." Thus Earlham's new coach, Fred C. Vail, spoke of the present football season at the Quaker college after a light practice which was indulged in by the fifteen candidates reporting on Reid Field Monday night.

Captain Thistlethwaite, the big tackle who has played with Earlham for three years, feels very optimistic as regards the success of the coming season, but stated that practically an entire new backfield would have to be developed. The prospects are good, he said, and we hope to make the season a success.

The fifteen men, some old and a few new, who reported on Reid Field Monday night for the first round of the season's football grind, were highly pleased with the manner in which the new coach, Mr. Vail, went about his business. As the practice was merely a preliminary one, and not a regular called practice, the men were taught how to pass the ball, and how to handle themselves in the line. A few of the more likely kickers were lined up before the goal and drops were practiced for some time. Walter Gaston of this city, who is a candidate for this year's team, neatly placed several over the bar, besting every other man on the field in this department of the game. Catching punts and kicking also occupied much time. But little rough play was indulged in. Toward the close of the practice Vail assembled his candidates in the center of the field and told them just what, to expect in the future and at the same time encouraged them to give their best efforts. This evening the first hard practice will be indulged in.

Gaston is Promising.
Among the likely candidates for the team who appeared Monday evening, were Walter Gaston, a former "prep" school star. His home is in this city. Gaston was a member of the Stanton Military academy team of the east. He is well built physically, and has a good knowledge of the game, which should land him a berth in the lineup. Phillip Bruner of Greenfield, a strong high school player, was in a suit. Rupert Stanley, a blocky built youngster from Carthage, cut a few capers which indicated that he was not by all means unfamiliar with the game. Lawrence Barrett, of Indianapolis, who has played two years on the second team at Earlham, will this year be a candidate for a line position. "Happy" Wann, erstwhile captain and pivot man for the Quakers, was in a suit. Ralph ("Turk") Guyer of Richmond, who last year pulled off a few stellar stunts for the Quakers at an end position, is a candidate and his playing is expected to make him a strong member of the eleven. Everett Brubaker of West Alexandria, Will Elliott of Greenfield, Calvert of Indianapolis and Captain Thistlethwaite were among the others who reported.

"Mike" Harroll as they are pleased to call him at Earlham, catcher for Earlham's baseball team last spring, will don the mole skins, as will Wilmer Lindley, the big tackle of two years ago. Both men arrived at Earlham Monday evening too late to report in suits. John Hancock of Indianapolis, the gritty little end of last year's team, will report for practice tonight. Lowell ("Pert") Wilson, of Spiceland, who last year played quarterback in several games will arrive before evening and report for practice. There are many new men who will report whose past records are not known. A number of young men who gathered on Reid Field last night to pay courtesy to the "dope" bucket, and who had no intention of donning mole skins, were induced to by Vail. In the course of the next three days a squad of at least thirty is expected to report each evening.

Coach Vail and Captain Thistlethwaite realize that some rapid and strenuous practice has to be indulged in, if the Quaker squad is in fit condition to meet Wabash one week from Saturday. The Quakers have always been in prime condition when they met Coach Cayou's scarlet clad warriors in the past, and such an early game does not please the followers of the Quakers this year. Wabash, with her veteran men, and she will have almost an entire old team, seems to have a shade the best of the argument according to dope, as the Quakers will have to organize a team from the start. Work, that requisite which means so much in the success of a football team of any school, will be indulged in to the bitter end by the Quakers, that when they meet Wabash a good account of themselves can be given.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

What This Great British Institution Represents.

At first sight there is not much likeness between the comfortable country gentlemen, retired lawyers, blase men of fashion and liberal subscribers to party funds, who now drop into rather than frequent their magnificent hall, and "the mail covered barons, who proudly battle led their vassals from Europe to Palestine's plain" in the days of the Henrys and Edwards, but in one point the house has always maintained its character through centuries—it is an aristocracy of birth, but it is still more emphatically one of wealth. The law of entail and primogeniture has kept the landed estates together as far as the law can. Many have passed by heiresses to new names or been sold by spendthrift lords, many holders of ancient titles have lost the wealth that gilded their ancestors' coronets, but new peers are almost always rich, and a title is still an attraction to an heiress. We sometimes hear that the house of lords represents nothing. This is false. It represents property. Tennyson's new Lincolnshire farmer, whose horse's hoofs trotted "property, property, property," is the type of a vast number of Englishmen. Such men are not only content, but proud, to be represented by the house of lords. They know that as long as the lords have their say "property" will have a staunch body of organized champions.—William Everett in Atlantic.

NATURAL KITCHENS.

Places Where Cooking is Done in Boiling Springs.

There are one or two countries—Iceland, for example—where washday is not dreaded, because nature provides the hot water at one's very door in the shape of steaming springs of spouting geysers. But there is only one country where the native women do practically all their cooking by unaided nature, and that is the North Island of New Zealand. Here is a wonderland of a thousand square miles so volcanic that a fire may be lighted by inserting a few sticks in the earth, and wherever one makes a hole he speedily has a pool of boiling water, into which a pudding may be lowered incased in a cloth and cooked expeditiously.

Frequently in perfectly cold streams a boiling hot current may be seen and felt running along the edge of the river, and here the Maori women do their own and the white man's washing. Naturally the volcanic region of New Zealand is a dangerous country to wander in without a guide, and many tourists have lost their lives as the result of such carelessness. Maori servants boil coffee and eggs in this way.—New York Tribune.

A Vill Performance.

On the occasion of his brother's benefit Edwin Booth was standing behind the scenes when a character actor who had been giving imitations of noted actors was about to respond to an encore.

"Whom do you imitate next?" inquired Booth.

"Well," was the reply, "I was going to represent you in Hamlet's soliloquy, but if you look on I'm afraid I shall make a mess of it."

"Suppose I imitate myself?" remarked the tragedian, and, hastily putting on the other actor's wig and buttoning up his coat, he went on and delivered the well known lines.

Next morning the newspapers stated that the imitations ruined the performance, "the personation of Edwin Booth being simply vile enough to make that actor shudder had he seen it."—Toledo Blade.

Costly Windsor Castle.
No royal castle has cost Great Britain more in hard cash than that of Windsor, says the London Chronicle. When George IV. announced his intention of making it a family residence parliament granted him $300,000 toward its reconstruction. For four years the work went merrily on under fresh grants, and the king then took possession of the private apartments. That did not end the expenditure however. By the time William IV. had satisfied himself that there was nothing more to be done the castle had swallowed up close to a million pounds.

Pope's Skull.

The skull of Alexander Pope, the poet and satirist, is in the private collection of a phrenologist. During some alterations in the churchyard where Pope was buried it was necessary to move his coffin, which was opened at the time to ascertain the state of his remains. By bribing the sexton of the church possession of the poet's skull was obtained for the night, and in the morning a different skull was returned instead. The cost of the skull, including the bribe, was $50.

His Stubbornness.

"Haven't you and your friend got through that argument yet?" asked a parent of his youngest son.

"It isn't any argument," answered the boy. "I am merely telling Jimmie the facts in the case, and he is so beastly stubborn that he won't understand."—Chums.

COUPLE WERE HELD AT WIFE'S REQUEST

John Post and Mrs. Lola Beeler Arrested by a Cambridge City Officer.

WIFE PLAYS A DETECTIVE.

MRS. BEELER ENTERS A DENIAL TO THE CHARGE THAT SHE WENT TO CAMBRIDGE IN COMPANY WITH POST.

Connersville, Ind., Sept. 24.—John Post and Mrs. Lola Beeler were arrested by a Cambridge City officer, on request, by wire, sent by Mrs. Post, and spent the night in jail. Mrs. Post went to Cambridge City by train but declined to appear against her husband and the woman so they were given their liberty. No formal charge was preferred against them.

Mrs. Post says that she has suspected her husband was visiting Mrs. Beeler, but he earnestly denied the charge. Learning that they had gone together to Cambridge City she caused their arrest that she might confront him and convince him that she could no longer be deceived. Mrs. Post stated that there was no truth in the statement current that she would no longer live with her husband.

It is said that Mrs. Post did some detective work in getting trace of her husband and the Beeler woman, that was quite creditable.

The names of John Post and Mrs. Beeler have long been associated and it seems that they have an affinitive attraction for each other that bids defiance to marriage vows and legal requirements.

Mrs. Beeler states that she did not go to Cambridge City in company with John Post and had no arrangements for meeting him there; that she was in company with another person and Post was accompanied by a woman who has not been named in connection with the affair; that Post's wife, learning that he had hired a livery rig and set out for Cambridge, jumped to the conclusion that he had gone with her; that calling Mrs. Beeler's residence by phone and receiving no answer, she felt corroborated in this opinion and immediately telephoned to the authorities at Cambridge City to arrest Post and Mrs. Beeler.

The officers did this, Mrs. Beeler says, first arresting Post and his company, and then, finding that the woman did not answer the description of she whom they had been advised to detain, they released her and after a time found Mrs. Beeler, who was with another man, and arrested her. The two were not placed in jail, she says, but spent the night in the Council chamber. In the morning Mrs. Post arrived, secured the services of an attorney and then finding that she could place no charge against either of the parties, the matter was dropped. Mrs. Beeler further avers that the matter was no more than an outburst of jealous wrath, which she had done nothing to excite.

Robbins, Elizabeth Maudlin, Arthur Charman, Mrs. Ella Steele and daughter Essie and Esther George.

THE SHREW MOUSE.

Some Queer Superstitions About a Harmless Little Animal.

The shrew, or shrew mouse, as it is commonly called, is found in nearly all parts of the world. It is distinguished by an elongated, pointed muzzle, small eyes, plantigrade, six foot feet and glands that secrete a musky fluid. Altogether it closely resembles a mouse, but it is really not related to the mouse family.

When at home it is either under a pile of rubbish or in a hole which it has burrowed in the earth. It is nocturnal in its habits, but perfectly harmless, yet at one time it was much disliked and persecuted because it was thought to be a dangerous, mischievous animal. Among the Italians the notion was prevalent that the bite of a shrew was extremely poisonous. The French and the English believed that if a shrew ran over an animal's foot the animal felt great pain and eventually became paralyzed; hence if a horse, a cow or a goat became a little stiff in its limbs the foolish people at once declared it "shrew struck," and the poor shrews had to suffer in consequence.

Of course the "shrew struck" animal had to have something to cure it, so an ash tree was selected, and a deep hole was bored into its trunk. Then a shrew was captured, put alive into the hole, the hole was securely plugged, and the innocent little animal was left to die of starvation.

The ignorant believed that after such an act the ash tree had power to cure "shrew struck" animals, and whenever an animal became inactive or a little numb in its limbs its owner hurried to the "shrew ash," cut a switch from it and switched the "shrew struck" beast. The smarting caused by the switching naturally made the helpless animal move about as much as it possibly could, and in a short time it was pronounced cured.

A Gallant Highwayman.

A highwayman recently held up a gasoline runabout on the outskirts of Rome. The highwayman stopped the runabout with a shot in the air. Then he ran forth from the tomb that had concealed him—the holdup happened on the Appian Way—and found to his surprise only a woman in the little car.

"Where, madam, is your husband?" he demanded sternly and suspiciously. "He's under the seat," she answered, flushing.

"Then," said the highwayman, "I will take nothing. It's bad enough to have a husband like that without being robbed into the bargain."

When Vivian Burnett entered Harvard his hazing consisted of an enforced impersonation of "Little Lord Fountleroy," the book hero, for which he had served as a model to his mother Frances Hodgson Burnett. Attired in a suit of velvet knickerbockers, with a broadrufted collar and wearing a wig of long golden curls, he was compelled to roam about the campus, to the great delight of his fellow students. There is little trace of the "Lord Fountleroy" in the serious-faced man of today. He lives in a handsomely appointed studio in New York.
