12-INNING CONTEST
TAKEN BY QUAKERS

Medicine Hat Made a Ninth Inning Rally and Tied up The Score.

YINGLING WAS IN THE BOX.

HE WAS HIT FREELY BUT WAS EFFECTIVE AT THE PROPER TIME—PLUMMER'S PLAYING A FEATURE.

(By Tort.)

Richmond, 6; Medicine, 5.

In an exciting twelve-inning battle Sunday afternoon at Athletic park the Quakers took the fast Medicine Hat team by a score of 6 to 5. Tacks Fisher, our noble first bagger, broke up the game in the twelfth inning, by a stinging three bagger which brought 645 frost bitten bugs to their feet yelping like a Sioux war party. A second game was to have been played, but after this second contest had gone three innings, Ump Lally called it on account of darkness. The score in this game stood one to one at the close of the third.

The first game was featured by hard hitting and some clever fielding on the part of both teams. Yingling, the Dayton star, was in the box for the locals, and while he was hit hard in spots, he was effective when hits meant runs. Yerkes, the Nashville Southern league star, worked for Medicine Hat. He was touched up for five hits, which counted with two errors for five runs, in the first two innings. From that time on the big fellow was very effective until the twelfth, when Fisher landed on one of his grove balls for three bases. Yingling then drove one through Barton, who played in poor form, and Tacks romped home.

Tied in the Ninth.

At the close of the eighth the score stood five to three in favor of Richmond. With two down in the ninth, Medicine Hat made a sensational rally and tied the score. But for a remarkable stop by Parker of a single over second base, Medicine Hat would have made three runs in this stanza, winning the game. The ninth was of the hair-raising variety. With Nippert down, Yingling walked Barton. Bateman singled and Geyer brought Barton home with a single to left. Valdise then hit a liner across second which brought Bateman home with the tying run. Geyer made an attempt to score on this same hit, but Parker's sensational stop held him at third base. Decker ended the inning by fouling out to Jessup. In the tenth Medicine Hat again became threatening. Benney reached first on Fisher's error. Zur Lage singled. The next two men popped out and Barton was retired at first. In the local tenth Plummer led off with a single. A double play ended our hopes in this inning. The Canucks went out in order in the twelfth. Fisher led off for the locals in this inning and smashed a triple to right center. Yingling scored him by poking one through Barton.

The feature of the game was the excellent playing of plummer. In the field he accepted three hard chances and threw a man out at the plate. At bat the big fellow secured a neat sacrifice and lined out two clean singles. Parker played in great form at second base, secured his usual three bagger, and lined out a single for good measure. Fisher had a bad day at first, but at that he pulled down some difficult chances. Score:

Sunday afternoon at Beallview park the Nationals defeated the Elks by a score of 5 to 3. The game was the Elks until the eighth inning when with three men on bases Fieselman hit a hot one over third sending in two men. The features of the game were Mull's pitching, two fast double plays and the batting of Fieselman for the Nationals. Score:

GREENSFORK BEATEN
BY CAMBRIDGE GRAYS

Hard Contest at Latter Place Resulted in Victory for Locals, 9 to 8.

CONNER WAS IN THE BOX.

HE PITCHED A GOOD GAME FOR THE GRAYS, ALLOWING BUT SIX HITS—MEREDITH WAS BEHIND THE BAT.

Cambridge City, Ind., Sept. 30.—The Grays were successful in handing a defeat to the renowned Greensfork team yesterday afternoon. The teams were evenly matched and fought hard for the victory all the while; score 9 to 8. "Tick" Conner, the twirler from Dublin, was in the box for the locals and seemed to have the visitors at his mercy from start to finish, striking out nine men and only allowing 6 hits. Meredith took them off the bat easily and protected the home plate in a professional like manner. Fink, local third sacker, hung on to some hot ones, but made several over throws to first, allowing five men to score in this way. Suffering from a lame arm he was unable to throw the ball with his usual accuracy. The playing at short by Shiverdecker was almost phenomenal. He has credit for five put outs. He also displayed his aptness with the big stick by securing four nice hits. First and second were safely guarded by Thomas and Sebring. The players in the outfield did not have any opportunity to display their ability.

Boyd pitched a good game for the visitors; in fact, it was the best game he has ever pitched in this city. Undoubtedly, if his team had given him better support the result would have been much different. The catching of Wise was favorably commented on. The general makeup of the visitors has the appearance of a strong amateur aggregation, and in addition to their good ball playing, they are a gentlemanly lot of fellows—their playing and conduct won for them many admirers. They are considered one of the best ball teams that has played here this season. The cold, drizzling weather made ball playing lifeless and difficult. A large attendance was prevented by the cold and threatening weather. Score:

THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

One Day's Work of a Sixteenth Century Law Student.

If law students of the present day are laboring under the delusion that when the world was younger there was less law to study and more relaxation for young men of their class, let them read the following extract that an English contemporary has taken from the "Memoirs of Henri de Mesmes," descriptive of a day's work of a law student at Toulouse in the sixteenth century:

"We used to rise from bed at 4 o'clock, and, having prayed to God, we went at 5 o'clock to our studies, our big books under our arms, our tabourets and candles in our hands. We heard all the lectures without intermission till 10 o'clock rang. Then we dined after having hastily compared during a half hour our notes of the lectures.

"After dinner we read as a recreation Sophocles or Aristophanes or Euripides and sometimes Demosthenes, Cicero, Virgil or Horace. At 1 o'clock to our studies, at 5 back to our dwelling places, there to go over and verify passages cited in the lectures until 6; then supper, and after supper we read Greek or Latin.

"On holy days we went to high mass and vespers; the rest of the day, a little music and walks."

SKILL OF THE ANCIENTS.

The Old Timers Apparently Did Many Things Better Than We.

"We are losing all our secrets in this shabby age," an architect said. "If we keep on, the time will come when we'll be able to do nothing well."

"Take, for instance, steel. We claim to make good steel, yet the blades the Saracens turned out hundreds of years ago would cut one of our own blades in two like butter."

"Take ink. Our modern ink fades in five or ten years to rust color, yet the ink of mediaeval manuscripts is as black and bright today as it was 700 years ago."

"Take dyes. The beautiful blues and reds and greens of antique oriental rugs have all been lost, while in Egyptian tombs we find fabrics dyed thousands of years ago that remain today brighter and purer in hue than any of our modern fabrics."

"Take my specialty, buildings. We can't build as the ancients did. The secret of their mortar and cement is lost to us. Their mortar and cement were actually harder and more durable than the stones they bound together, whereas ours—honors!"—New York Press.

Presence of Mind.

The Duke of Wellington was writing in his library when, chancing to look up, he saw a stranger near him who had entered unheard.

"Who are you, and what do you want?" asked the duke.

"I am Apollyon and have been sent to kill you."

The nobleman realized that he had an insane person to deal with, but he was equal to the emergency. With the utmost carelessness he inquired, "Got to do it tonight?"

"No."

"I am very glad, as I am quite busy now. Just send me word before you come again, and I shall be ready for you," politely bowing the crazy person out of the room.

Shortly the fellow was safe in the bedlam whence he had managed to escape.

The Home of a Genius.

Beethoven was born in a small house in Bonn. His father had inherited the vice of drinking, and often Beethoven and his younger brother were obliged to take their intoxicated father home. He was never known to utter an unkind word about the man who made his youth so unhappy, and he never failed to resent it when a third person spoke uncharitably of his father's frailty. Young Beethoven was thus taught many a severe lesson in the hard school of adversity, but his trials were not without advantage to him. They gave to his character that iron texture which upheld him under his heaviest burdens.

The Influence of Books.

Books have always a secret influence on the understanding. We cannot at pleasure obliterate ideas. He that reads books of science, though without any desire fixed of improvement, will grow more knowing. He that enters trains himself with moral or religious treatises will improve in his goodness. The ideas which are offered to the mind will at last find a lucky moment when it is disposed to receive them.—Samuel Johnson.

Precious Spices.

There are portions of the globe today where spices are worth more than gold or silver. "In the arctic region spices are essential to health and happiness," wrote an explorer. "A dash of pepper a pinch of ground cinnamon, a little nutmeg or a piece of ginger root revives the faded appetite wonderfully in the north. I have seen shipwrecked sailors fight over an ounce of spices with more fierceness than they ever did for money."

This One Especially.

From a Paris paper we take the following conversation in a police court: The President—It appears from your record that you have been thirty-seven times previously convicted. The Prisoner (sententiously)—Man is not perfect.—London Globe.

In Terms of Pig.

The ingenuity of the Chinese in surmounting difficulties is well illustrated by the following dialogue, which recently took place on the Imperial Chinese railway.

Traveler—I wish to ship these two dogs to Peking. What is the rate?

Railway Official—No not any rate to dog. One dog all same one sheep. On sheep all same two pig. Can book four pig.

Traveler—But one dog is only a pup pig. He ought to go for half fare.

Railway Official—Can do all right. Then turning to his clerk, "Write three pig," he said.—Lippincott's.

Not a Land Shark.

"I hear that you called me a land shark," said the real estate dealer hotly.

"Yes," said the customer, "and I desire to apologize for it. The lots you sold me are under water at high tide. You're really a marine shark."

However, even this concession did not seem to restore the entente cordiale.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Beat Sast in the House.

Executioner—How is this? We are going to cut your head off today, an yet you are laughing. The Condemned—Yes; I was thinking how glad some people would be to occupy the seat behind me at the theater tonight.—Rire.

Henpecked.

Major (to captain of militia)—You must give your orders in a louder and firmer tone. Captain—I don't dare. My wife is watching me out of a window.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

It never occurs to fools that merit and good fortune are closely united.—Goethe.

"Did they have any trouble in taking out his appendix?"

"I should think they did. They had to kill him first."—London Journal.
