EARLHAM TEAM WAS IDLE; GOT NO GAME

Heroic Effort Put Forth on the Part of Coach Vail Proved Unavailing.

NOTIFICATION TOO LATE.

QUAKERS HAVE A GAME WITH BUTLER NEXT SATURDAY AND THE FOLLOWING SATURDAY WITH DEPAUW.

Heroic effort on the part of Coach Vail of Earlham, to schedule a football game for today, after it was learned here yesterday that Rose Poly would not play, availed nothing, and for that reason the Quaker pig skin enthusiasts will remain idle. The action on the part of the Terre Haute school in notifying Earlham at such a late hour is being criticised by the students at Earlham and even Coach Vail thinks the action not the best. Earlham was not notified until about eleven o'clock Friday, although it was known at Terre Haute on Thursday that the team would play no more this season. Had Coach Vail been apprised of the disbanding immediately, he could easily have arranged a game on the local field. Nine schools were corresponded with Friday by wire in the hope that at least one would consent to come to Richmond. The Dayton, O., and Sheridan, Ind., athletic clubs were also asked for games, but neither schools nor athletic clubs desired to risk the game on so short a notice.

Two Games Remain. But two games remain on the Quakers' schedule. The one with Butler next Saturday on Reid Field is not looked upon with fear, and Earlham hopes to register a victory as the Indianapolis institution is just recovering from the effects of a house cleaning, administered two years ago and the team this year is weak. Quaker lads will journey to Greencastle in two weeks where they stack up against Capt. Tucker's doughty De Pauw warriors, who have been fighting a fierce game during the present season. Earlham is not so sure of this game, but can get a better line on DePauw's strength when the Methodists play Washash next Monday.

SHEPHERD CARVERS.

The Lonely Sheep Tenders of the California Sierras.

There are few lonelier lives in the world than those lived by shepherds in the high meadows of the California Sierras. All alone they follow their sheep, seeing no one for many months of the year but the sheep, their dogs and perhaps an occasional—a very occasional—traveler. Probably this solitude dries up the springs of speech, for they are said to be very silent when they do encounter any one.

One of these strange men is a Basque from the Pyrenees. A lean, dark visaged, ragged fellow, he is now and then overtaken by some wanderer in the mountains. Along the trail before him his sheep feed. His mougril collar hangs at his heels. He may raise his stick in mute salutation; he may slouch by without a sign. Yet this uncouth being has one talent—he can carve. His amusement is carving quaint sheep buckles out of bone. Every herd has its bellweather, about whose neck hangs a bell. The bell depends from a leather collar, and it is the buckles of these collars that this old Basque shepherd and some of these other Sierra shepherds make in the course of their lonely days. Sometimes a buckle represents a summer's work, for some of them are very elaborate. Some are in the semblance of saints or angels, some have the monograms of the sheep owners or of the shepherds in curious designs. All are patiently cut, bit by bit, with the pocketknife of the shepherd.—Exchange.

BOXING MATCHES TO BE STOPPED PERHAPS

Governor Hanly Is Asking for An Opinion.

BINGHAM SAYS UNLAWFUL.

Indianapolis, Nov. 2.—That Governor Hanly contemplates executive action to stop boxing matches that have occurred with frequency throughout the state of late is made evident in a request he sent to Attorney General James Bingham for an opinion on the legal status of a "prize fight," and for a definition of the term. Attorney General Bingham submitted his opinion to the Governor yesterday. He holds boxing matches are prize fights and that they are contrary to statute. Governor Hanly would not discuss the opinion yesterday. He said he had received it, but had not read it, and that he could not state just what action he would take.

A Hard Debt to Pay.

"I owe a debt of gratitude that can never be paid off," writes G. S. Clark, of Westfield, Iowa, "for my rescue from death by Dr. King's New Discovery. Both lungs were so seriously affected that death seemed imminent, when I commenced taking New Discovery. The ominous dry, hacking cough kept before the first bottle was used, and two more bottles made a complete cure." Nothing has ever equaled New Discovery for coughs, colds and all throat and lung complaints. Guaranteed by A. G. Luken & Co., druggist, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

SMALL BALANCE IN BASEBALL TREASURY

Stockholders of the Richmond Amusement Company Held Annual Meeting.

BEST TOWN IN I. O. LEAGUE.

IT IS HOPED TO PUT A TEAM INTO A LEAGUE OF LARGER CITIES NEXT SEASON AND PROVIDE FASTER SPORT.

At a stockholders' meeting of the Richmond Amusement Co., held Thursday evening in the rooms of the Commercial club, an interesting report of the year's business was read by Secretary Will Bartel and discussed by the members present. The report showed all indebtedness met and paid, and a small balance left in the treasury. While no dividend was declared, the stockholders expressed themselves as highly pleased with the showing made for the first year, feeling that they have provided the citizens of Richmond with a clean, healthful amusement, and accomplished their main purpose, which was to keep Richmond money at home.

The report showed that over $12,000 was paid out by the company, all of which remained here, and it was generally agreed that $25,000 was a small estimate of the amount saved to Richmond, which has heretofore been spent by local baseball lovers, who have sought their favorite amusement in other cities.

The report further showed that Richmond was the best ball town in the I. O. league, as shown by the fact that they paid more money into the league treasury than any other team; more money to visiting teams than any other; and was the only team to show a profit on the season; the losses in the other cities ranging from $1,000 to $2,000. Had the other cities done as well, the financial end of the local report would have been very much better.

The character and deportment of the attendance was very gratifying to the company, including as it did, a large number of ladies, most of whom seemed to understand the game as well as the men.

After the acceptance of the report, plans for the future were discussed. It was decided to put a team into a league of larger cities, and provide faster ball than last season. Work will start shortly toward improving the grounds, mainly in left and center fields, where the knoll will be graded and holes filled up. With the completion of the grandstand this will give Richmond one of the nicest ball parks in the state.

A committee was also appointed to report on the expense of converting the field into an ice-rink for the winter.

In order to help raise funds for contemplated improvements it was decided to give a ball at the coliseum some time in December and the following committee was named to arrange the details. Three prizes of season tickets to the park will probably be given to the "fans" selling the most tickets to the ball, and a grand success is looked for.

DIET AND SLEEP.

Eating Before Retiring and Digestion During Slumber.

Diet has little influence on sleep except in so far as it may produce disturbances of digestion and through these of the general balance of health. The hypnotic effects of certain foods, such as onions, lettuce, milk, etc., are chiefly imaginary. Even the time of the last meal of the day is of relative little importance except that it is well to let this be at least two or three hours before retiring. But even this rule has many exceptions, as many healthy laboring men habitually fall asleep over their pipes directly after supper, and children after poking the spoon into their little eyes nod off over the tea table, with the bread and butter still clutched in their chubby fists.

The processes of digestion probably go on more slowly during sleep, but they are perfectly carried out, as is illustrated by the almost invariable habit among animals of going to sleep directly after a meal. Indeed, a moderate amount of food in the stomach or intestines seems to promote slumber. Many night workers, for instance, sleep much better for taking a light or even full supper just before retiring.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson in American Magazine.

The Tenors' Parts. Probably the composers are largely responsible for tenor worship. In Verdi's operas, with hardly an exception, the tenor plays a more important part than the baritone or bass, and the same is true of other opera writers. Mozart's "Don Giovanni" being a notable exception. Wagner wrote one opera, "The Flying Dutchman," in which the baritone is king, whereas in six of his works the supremacy of the tenor is indicated by the very titles, "Tristan," "Lohengrin," "Lohengrin," "Tristan," "Lohengrin," "Lohengrin," "Parsifal." This being so, we shall probably continue to be subject to the tyranny of one tenor or another, unless it be true, as was maintained at a convocation of French savants, that the tenor voice is a relic of barbarism, destined to become extinct.—Argonaut.

TESTED HIS LOGIC.

John Seemed to Make His Point, but Missed the Chicken.

The old couple were eating their first meal with their son after his return from college.

"Tell us, John," said the father, "what have you learned at college?" "Oh, lots of things," said the son as he recited his course of studies. "Then," he concluded, "I also studied logic."

"Logic," said the old man. "What is that?" "It's the art of reasoning," said the son.

"The art of reasoning?" said the father. "What is that, my boy?" "Well," replied the son, "let me give you a demonstration. How many chickens are on that dish, father?"

"Two," said the old man. "Well," said John, "I can prove there are three." Then he stuck his fork in one and said, "That is one, isn't it?"

"Yes," said the father. "And this is two?" sticking his fork in the second.

"Yes," replied the father again.

"Well, don't one and two make three?" replied John triumphantly.

"Well, I declare," said the father, "you have learned things at college. Well, mother," continued the old man to his wife, "I will give you one of the chickens to eat, and I'll take the other, and John can have the third. How is that, John?"—Judge.

MEXICAN CARRIERS.

The Cargadores Can Carry Enormous Loads on Their Shoulders.

Just as one finds the rickshaw everywhere in India, so one finds the cargador in Mexico. He is a beast of burden. In general he is a comparatively small man, with broad shoulders and stout arms and legs. To look at him one would not think he would be able to carry heavy burdens. But the weight he can carry is surprising. You have a trunk you can scarcely move, for instance. You send for a cargador. He gets it upon his back, high up on the shoulders, and he marches off with it as easily as though it were a plaything. A life dedicated to carrying heavy burdens has made this work easy for him. A slightly built Mexican will carry over 500 pounds on his shoulders for short distances.

Until recent years almost everything in the City of Mexico and everywhere else throughout the republic was carried upon the backs of cargadores. If you wanted to move your household furniture you hired a certain number of cargadores. For house moving they generally work in pairs, each pair having a hand truck, which they pick up and carry when it is loaded, for it has no wheels. In the City of Mexico there are still hundreds of these hand trucks, though one may now find plenty of carts, wagons and heavy moving trucks.—Mexican Herald.

The Only Place He Cared About.

"There was a French count," said a lecturer in the midst of a little sermon on selfishness, "who was traveling from Paris to Monte Carlo. On his journey he stopped at Mentone, where he sent for his valet, who had preceded him and was to have met him at that point. 'Alas, monsieur,' exclaimed the count's courier, 'poor Francois! I have just looked my last upon him. He was killed in a railway accident. His corpse lies on the outskirts of Mentone, cut in a hundred pieces.' 'Ah!' murmured the count, regretfully. 'Then just go back and fetch me the place that contains my trunk keys.'"

The Old Way and the New.

The young lady from Boston was explaining. "Take an egg," she said, "and make a perforation in the base and a corresponding one in the apex. Then you apply the lips to the aperture and by forcibly inhaling the breath the shell is entirely discharged of its contents."

An old lady who was listening exclaimed:

"It beats all how folks do things nowadays. When I was a gal they made a hole in each end and sucked." —Judge's Library.

What the Poet Says.

After their honeymoon to Niagara falls they came back and settled on the old farm.

"Gracious, Sils!" said Cynthia. "Why are you in such a bad humor?" "Making butter is blamed hard work," grumbled Sils, removing the beads from his brow.

"Oh, cheer up, Sils! Don't the poet say that it is 'love that makes the world go round'?"

"Yes; but, by gosh, it don't make the churn go round."—Chicago News.

A Change in Temperature.

"I hear the audience last night was rather cold," said Hi Tragedy. "They were at first," replied Lowe Comedy, "but when they remembered that they had paid good money to see the show they got hot." —Catholic Standard and Times.

The Worst Part.

"So your daughter is going to marry a title," said the old acquaintance. "No," answered Mr. Cumrox. "It's worse than that. She's got to take a fellow that I don't like along with it." —Washington Star.

WILL HONOR MEMORY OF GOVERNOR MORTON

Arrangements for Annual Exercises Complete.

UNION B. HUNT WILL SPEAK

About 300 old soldiers are expected to attend the annual service in memory of Oliver P. Morton, "Indiana's great war governor," Sunday afternoon at Fletcher Place M. E. church, Indianapolis. The principal address will be delivered by Union B. Hunt, chairman of the Indiana Railroad commission and former secretary of state who will discuss Governor Morton's life and deeds. The invocation will be by the Rev. George D. Wolfe, pastor of the church and music will be furnished by the church choir. Andrew Smith will sing a solo and the introductory remarks will be made by W. A. Ketcham, department commander of the Indiana G. A. R., who will preside. The decorations at the church are in charge of Capt. C. W. Wheat and Jesse Keithley. Flowers will be furnished by Col. W. H. Hollaway, brother-in-law to Governor Morton, in accordance with his custom in years past. It is probable that a wreath will be placed on the Morton monument at the east front of the state house. In addition to the many G. A. R. veterans who will be present there will be a large attendance of the Woman's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., and the Sons of Veterans.

THE FIRST ZOO.

China, It Seems, Counts That Among Her Many Records.

The Chinese had the first zoo. Menageries are thought to owe their origin partly to the cult of sacred animals and partly to the ambition of rulers to possess specimens of rare and valuable creatures from foreign lands or savage beasts from their own. In the simplest forms zoological gardens were one of the earliest developments of culture and were familiar to the Chinese, Indians, Greeks, Romans and pre-Spanish Mexicans in ancient times. The oldest recorded menagerie is Chinese, dating from 1150 B. C. The den of lions kept by Darius, as described in the book of Daniel, is an example of one of those primitive menageries, while the cult of sacred white horses by the ancient Greeks and Romans and that of so called white elephants in Burma and Siam are instances of a second type. A live giraffe was received at the menagerie of Schonbrunn as early as 1828.
