MANY OUT AT CAMBRIDGE.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS AT NEW PARIS,
FOUNTAIN CITY AND ELSE-WHERE—NEWS OF WAYNE AND ADJOINING COUNTIES.

Cambridge City, Ind., Nov. 2.—The observance of Halloween was general. People celebrating were out in great numbers. Less damage to property was done than in most previous years. It is not meant by this that the people here forgot to celebrate Halloween, as it is thought that more persons were abroad participating in the pranks than in recent years. On account of the malicious destruction of property heretofore, on Halloween many private watchmen were employed to protect property. The usual number of doorsteps, boxes, barrels and such were evenly distributed about town.

PARTY AT FOUNTAIN CITY.

Miss Ethel Gifford Entertained on Thursday Evening.

Fountain City, Ind., Nov. 2.—Miss Ethel Gifford gave a Halloween party Thursday evening for her Sunday school class and Prof. Voris's class. The evening was enjoyably spent in games and music. A ten o'clock luncheon was served in the dining room, which was lighted with jack-o-lanterns, giving the room a very weird appearance. Those present were Edna Voris, Inez Swain, Ruth Reece, Ruth Hiatt, Naomi Diggins, Eleanor Huff, Selma Williams, Freda Townsend, Irma Tharp, Pauline Conner, Fred and Wilbur Hiatt, Orval Clark, Howard Overman, Paul Edgerton, Raymond Swain, Willie Bond, Gifford Hunt, Clyde Hunt and Earl Clark.

YOUNG PEOPLE ENTERTAINED.

Pleasant Social Affair is Given at New Paris.

New Paris, O., Nov. 2.—On Halloween the Misses Bertrice and Elma Horner entertained a large number of young people at their country home, south of town, at a Halloween party. Each guest came masked in very unique costumes and the evening was enjoyably spent in the mystic amusements which are a part of Halloween and afterward refreshments were served. The following were present: Misses Mary Lesh, Lydia Lesh, Eva McKee, Roxie McKee, Nola Richards, Dona Morrison, Marna Newborn, Ruth Murray, Grace Murray, Marie Denny, Opal Lovin of Richmond, Ida Beck of Ft. WHY THE WIND BLOWS

A Study of the Circulation of the World's Atmosphere.

FORCES THAT MOVE THE AIR.

Contrasts in Temperature, High and Low Pressure and a Law of Nature Called the Deflecting Force of the Earth's Rotation.

It is a matter of common observation that when the window of a warm room is opened on a still winter night the cold air from without rushes into the room. Nearer the ceiling the warmer air is forced out of the window, thus completing a general atmospheric circulation on a miniature scale. These currents of air, which might properly be called wind, would not occur if the air within doors was not warmer and consequently lighter than the air without.

The range in temperature between the equator and the north pole amounts in winter to considerably more than 100 degrees F., and in summer the contrast is also great. Moreover, in summer the continents are warmer than the oceans, but in winter the reverse is true. These examples will serve to illustrate how such contrasts affect the winds of the world.

At the equator the temperature averages about 80 degrees throughout the year. Consequently the lower air flows in from regions of high pressure on each side, forming what are known as the trades. These winds cover nearly one-half of the earth's surface and blow with much steadiness the year round.

The monsoons, or "seasonal winds," of India and the Indian ocean are the most interesting of their class. In summer the cooler ocean air pushes in toward the land, while the warmer air over the continents rises to a considerable height and then flows out to sea, forming a systematic circulation between ocean and continent. In winter the ocean is warmer than the continent, and the winds reverse their direction.

The "land and sea breezes" occur with much regularity near large bodies of water in some parts of the world. The ocean is cooler than the land during the day and warmer at night, causing on a small scale a daily interchange of air similar to that caused by the monsoons.

A clear knowledge of the term "air pressure" is very helpful in studying the causes of wind. Air, like a stone, presses against the ground—in other words, it has weight, amounting to no less than 2,117 pounds upon every square foot of the earth's surface at sea level—but, unlike a stone, the atmosphere is elastic to a high degree and also presses in all other directions.

On account of this elasticity of the air, certain forces which arise from differences in temperature and the earth's rotation cause it to become dense or heavy in some regions and rare or light in other regions.

It is the effort of the atmosphere to overcome these pressure differences and resume a state of equal density that causes the winds to blow. The column of mercury in a barometer tube is always just balancing a column of air of the same diameter, reaching from the barometer to the top of the atmosphere. If the air is dense the mercury will of course stand high in the tube, and to express this condition we use the term "high pressure," but if the air is rare the mercury will stand low in the tube, and we then use the term "low pressure."

Over the United States, Canada and other parts of the world the pressure is ascertained each day at numerous stations. The barometer readings, expressed in inches of mercury, are telegraphed to a central point and there charted on a map. The exact regions where the pressure is high or low may then be seen at a glance. It has been learned from such observations that these areas are constantly moving eastward at an average rate of about 600 miles per day.

Technically the low pressure areas are called "cyclones," and the high pressure areas "anticyclones." They are frequently 1,000 or more miles in diameter. The little storms of great destructive force so often called cyclones are really tornadoes.

The higher the pressure in any particular region relative to some other region the greater will be the velocity of the wind. The winds blow much faster in winter than in summer, because the greater contrasts of temperature cause more decided differences in pressure.

Observations demonstrate, however, that the wind never blows in straight lines, because all bodies of air when in motion are acted upon by a law of nature called the "deflecting force of the earth's rotation." This force turns all wind to the right of its course in the northern hemisphere and to the left in the southern.

Thus if a wind in our hemisphere starts north it is soon turned slowly toward the northeast, or if it starts west it will soon turn toward the northwest. When it is remembered that at the equator the earth is rotating at the enormous velocity of 1,035 miles an hour, one will not wonder that such a deflecting force could exist. All areas of high and low pressure, from whatever cause, therefore become whirling masses of air, and a little thought will show that they must turn in opposite directions. In the northern hemisphere the low areas, or "lows," as they are designated on the weather map, always rotate in a direction contrary to that of the hands of a watch.—Youth's Companion.

THE WORST KIND

SOUP AT $35 A PLATE.

Sterlet Roe at $10 a Head and Peanut
Bud Jelly at $250.

Public interest has recently been excited by a remarkable dinner party given in London at which twenty-four people sat down and which cost $15,000. Some high class chefs who know the deepest mysteries of their business are inclined to say that this was really nothing after all.

The most expensive soup that can be served is Chinese bird's nest soup, which can hardly be done at less than $35 for a moderate plate of it for each guest.

When the fish course is reached in the menu the most expensive item possible is the newest caviare, made from sterlet roe and not from common sturgeon. There are only one or two London restaurants at which this rare delicacy may be obtained, and the charge for it is $10 per head.

Mullet roe, another rare dish, costs more than its weight in silver, while those who do not wish to advance quite to this point in expenditure might be satisfied with a more frequently served dish, Caribean poupono, which has to be brought to London on ice from Galveston or Pensacola and which costs $5 to $10 a pound.

A game pie, made of the little birds called ruffs—small things with long legs and a ruff of feathers behind their necks, belonging to the sandpiper family—is about the most expensive thing possible in this direction and cannot be done for less than $50 to $75, while if the ruffs are unusually scarce the charge for the pie may easily run up to $100.

Dunstable larks come next. They are fairly common on the tables of epicures, but it costs quite $7.50 to serve a single dish of them.

There are not so many possibilities for gigantic expenditure when the joints come on the table, gristle, steak or bison ribs at anything from $2.50 to $5 a head being about the best.

As for sweets, the thoughts of a millionaire host who wanted to beat the record and knew his business would naturally fly to a jelly of peanut buds and ginger, which would be sent to him in little pots from China at a charge of $250 a pot, one tablespoonful in each.

Forced strawberries in the middle of winter are most expensive to buy and may run to anything from $5 to $25 a head.

A great delicacy at one time was the double coconut, or coco-de-mer, which is only grown on two small islands of the Seychelles and which was last sold at $200. It is, however, so extremely rare now that an enactment has been passed forbidding its exportation under any circumstances.—London Stray Stories.

INVISIBLE SNAKES.

A Den of Reptiles That Eluded the Ordinary Passer's Eye.

The fact that snakes are rarely seen even when they are abundant was impressed upon the mind of the writer one day while waiting for a train at a small station in New Jersey. A nearby culvert, where a small stream flowed under the junction of the railway and a well traveled public road, seemed a favorable place for them. The stone wall, laid up without mortar, which supported the approach to the bridge had a southern exposure. The cracks afforded ample hiding place, and the reedy borders of the stream promised good hunting for the species which live upon small fish, frogs, toads and earthworms.

The flagman, who for several years had passed ten hours a day at his leisurely occupation there, denied that there were snakes in the vicinity. "No more than there be in Ireland, an' it's not me as would be tendin' this cross-in' if there was," he asserted. But a few minutes' search in the gutters and grass revealed four specimens which had been under his very eyes—a garter, a vurm, a De Kay and a newly hatched milk snake. A new flagman was installed there the following day, but crowds of people, many of whom would become hysterical at the sight of a snake, continue to pass within three feet of the wall blissfully unconscious that they are walking over a den of serpents.—Francis Metcalfe in Outing Magazine.

North Bros. Stock Company.

It is with pleasure that Mrs. Ira Swisher, manager of the Gennett, announces the engagement of the North Bros. Stock company, at the Gennett for one solid week, commencing Monday, Nov. 4th, with daily matinees starting Tuesday. The North Bros. company came into Richmond last season for a week's engagement practically unknown, but they had not been here long until they found a warm spot in the hearts of Richmond theatre-goers, and before their week was over, the house was packed at every performance, and Mrs. Swisher has had numerous inquiries as to when the North Bros. company would be here. They broke all house records here last season, and there is every reason to believe that they will enjoy even better business on this engagement than they did before. The management announces that they have a larger company and a much stronger one than they had last season, and judging from press reports from where they have appeared, this must be true, as they have as yet to get an unfavorable criticism. They have secured new plays, and will not repeat a single play during their engagement here. The advanced vaudeville which they introduce between acts is said to

"Isle of Spice."
B. C. Whitney will present the latest edition of the musical extravaganza, "Isle of Spice," with a talented company at the Gennett tonight. Charles A. Pusey is featured in the role of "King Bompoka." He will be assisted by a company of fully fifty.

The plot of "Isle of Spice" is plausible, interesting and abounding in laughable situations. The scenery borders on the spectacular, but as the locale of the piece is on a mythical island in the sea of Japan, it at the same time is a fairly accurate representation of the picturesque scenery and architecture of the Orient. Rose Fitch plays the role of Teresa. Others in the cast are Louis Gould, Minerva Chombraine, Belle Tufts, Margaret Wood, Bert Wainwright, Frank Wood, Jack Leslie, E. K. Armstrong, Louis Comstock and a number of others well known in the musical comedy field.

Vaudeville at the Phillips.
Next week's bill at the New Phillips, in vaudeville, presents only two familiar names, those of the house pianist, Miss Grace Miller, and the singer of the illustrated songs, Cal Lankert. All the others are new and believed to be very clever. For headliners Manager Murray is offering Ora Cecil's performing leopards, a trained animal act that is reported to be much out of the ordinary. The complete program for the week is given below:

Overture, Miss Grace Miller.
Seymour Sisters, singers and dancers.
Equillo, Europe's emperor of equestrianism.
Illustrated song, Cal Lankert, "If I Only Had a Home, Sweet Home."
Leonard and Lester, singing and talking comedians.
Ora Cecil's performing leopards, said to be America's greatest trained animal act.

The cameragraph, showing "The Easterners."
On Wednesday there will be a souvenir matinee, on Friday night an amateur contest and on Saturday a special matinee for the children.

Tonight's continuous performance from 7:30 to 10:15 will end the present bill, which has proven very satisfactory. Those who have not yet seen the trained cockatoos would find it profitable to take the time to do so.
