

FARMERS' INSTITUTE AT CAMBRIDGE SOON

To Be Held January 22-23 and Two Prominent Speakers Have Been Secured.

SUBJECTS TO BE DISCUSSED

SUCCESS AND FAILURE IN HOG RAISING AND SOIL BUILDING ARE TWO OF THE SEVERAL IMPORTANT TOPICS.

Cambridge City, Ind., Jan. 2.—The annual farmers' institute will be held in Cambridge City, January 22-23. The county chairman, Mr. Abner D. Bond, of Greensburg, was here consulting with the local committee in reference to the program. Two state speakers have been assigned to this meeting—A. O. Lockridge and R. L. Thompson, both men of experience in the work. Mr. Lockridge is from Putnam county and is an extensive and successful farmer. Mr. Thompson is from Lagrange county, which is one of the most progressive counties in the state. The high standing of these men assures a good meeting. The subjects to be discussed pertain to soil building, clover raising, drainage, the profitable production of beef on high priced land, business methods in farming, a discussion of special and mixed farming, and subjects relating to the home and social life of the farm. The program will be ready for publication next week. There will be music and recitations and altogether the institute will not only be profitable, but entertaining.

DAMAGE SUIT IS ON TRIAL.

Man Hit by Engine Wants $10,000 From Road.

New Castle, Ind., Jan. 2.—The $10,000 damage suit of John D. Casey, administrator of the estate of Henry Bouck, commenced in the circuit court. The suit is against the Big Four railroad company, Bouck having been killed by a train of that company two years ago near the rolling mill west of the city.

Bouck was engineer of a dredger which had taken a siding to allow the passenger train to stop. Bouck stepped from behind the dredger, then on to the main track just in time to get struck by the passenger train. It is charged that the company was negligent in that the proper warning whistles were not sounded.

THE WILDCAT.

Its Wonderful Power Shown in Its Leaping Ability. The wonderful power of a wildcat is shown in its ability to leap long distances. All of the cat tribe have immense power in their legs, and they make up in the length of their spring their inability to make a continued chase. African leopards in captivity have been known to leap from the floor of the cages and strike the top, twelve feet above. Tigers make tremendous leaps and strike down on their prey with a blow of their powerful paws as they alight. But the wildcat, for its size, is probably the most wonderful jumper of all the felines.

A hunter who is well known for his veracity told the following story of an adventure which illustrates this power: "I was hunting in the snow one winter and came across the tracks of a wildcat, which I followed for a long distance. Suddenly the tracks came to an end in a spot where the animal had crouched. I looked around to see what had become of the trail and away ahead of me saw a bunch of blood and feathers. From that spot the track led on again off into a swamp. The situation was susceptible to but one explanation—the wildcat had been hunting for his dinner and had discovered a pheasant wandering about in the snow. The cat crept as close as he dared to the unsuspecting bird and gathered himself into an animated spiral spring, such as the cat tribe coil themselves into when preparing to spring, and releasing the trigger, shot into the air, landing on top of the victim before the bird could even start. The distance from where the cat crouched to where it caught the bird was just thirty-three feet. I naturally supposed from the length of the leap that the cat was young and in full activity, and after I trailed it to the swamp and shot it I discovered that it was old and almost toothless. The animal's hunger may have spurred him to the great jump. If not, and the leap was an evidence of what a superannuated wildcat can do, I wouldn't be surprised to learn that a young and active wildcat could clear at least twice that distance when pressed by necessity.

Hungry Pike.

One of my sons, aged fifteen, went with three other boys to bathe in Ingemere pond, near the Ascot race course. He walked into the water to about the depth of four feet, when he spread out his hands to attempt to swim. At that instant a large fish came up and took his whole hand into its mouth, but finding itself unable to swallow it, relinquished its hold, and the boy, turning round, prepared for a hasty retreat. His companions, who saw the fish, scrambled out of the pond as fast as possible. My son had scarcely turned around before the fish came up behind him and, seizing his other hand crosswise, inflicted some very deep wounds on the back of it. The boy raised his free hand, which was still bleeding, and struck the great fish a hard blow on the head, when it disappeared. The other boys assisted my son to dress, bound up his hand with their handkerchiefs and brought him home. We took him to the surgeon, who dressed seven wounds in one hand, and so great was the pain the next day that the lad fainted twice. The little finger was bitten through the nail, and it was more than six weeks before it was well. The nail came off, and the scar remains to this day.—London Fishing Gazette.

PRIVATE SECRETARY TO GOVERNOR HANLY

Richmond "Green Horn" Called At State Capital and Confided to Clerks.

WANTED TO KNOW DUTIES.

WHEN INFORMED, HE LEFT, DECIDING THAT HE DID NOT WANT TO BE A BUMPING POST FOR THE PUBLIC WRATH.

Indianapolis, Jan. 2.—A Richmond man, either unbalanced or exceptionally "green," who called at the office of Governor Hanly was headed off by Private Secretary Fred Gemmer and the force of clerks before he could get into the governor's private office. The man called at the governor's office with the startling announcement, made first to Miss Hallie McNeil, later to Patsy Flannigan, executive stenographer and clerk, and finally to Col. Gemmer, that he was going to occupy the office "as private secretary to the governor." He insisted, upon knowing the duties of a private secretary and the difference between a secretary and a private secretary. Col. Gemmer assured him that "the private secretary is the bumping post between the governor and the public" and that his salary might be larger than it is. Thereupon the visitor's ambition to be the governor's private secretary died a sudden death.

AN INSIDIOUS DANGER

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realizes his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure at the first sign of troubles as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes. A. G. Luken & Co.

Aluminum is regarded as probably the most available substitute for tin in the great majority of uses to which that metal is put owing to the diminution in the price of aluminum, the practically limitless supply of the raw material and the favorable physical properties of the metal. As the production of aluminum is cheapened so will its uses increase. The demand, steadily keeps ahead of the supply.

FARMERS FORCED TO KILL THEIR COWS

High Price of Grain Makes Keeping Unprofitable.

Westfield, Mass., Jan. 2.—The price of grain is forcing Westfield farmers to kill off their live stock, and many herds of cows have been sent by dairy men in this vicinity to the slaughter house in the last few days. Not only does the cost of feed make the keeping of these animals unprofitable, but there is a scarcity of farm help to care for them.
