BREEDING ANARCHISTS.

The Kentucky night riders who have been very active recently and who have come in for more or less criticism, are, to some extent, greatly misunderstood. Popular estimation holds them as nothing more than rowdies, bent upon destroying property. As a matter of fact the night riders are tobacco farmers who have banded together to prevent the sale of tobacco to the tobacco trust. The tobacco trust absolutely controls the price the farmer shall receive for his product in this country. For a time after the formation of the trust there was some competition in the matter of prices, owing to the competition of the buyers of France, Spain, Italy and Austria for the government monopolies. But the trust lately has perfected arrangements with the representatives of these governments whereby they shall buy tobacco for their governments in certain localities only, and thus the last vestige of competition has vanished. As a result of this monopoly of price making for the tobacco growers, by the trust, the farmers who raise tobacco receive hardly enough to yield them a scant living. They have had sense enough to realize that this condition is the direct result of the absolute monopoly enjoyed by the tobacco trust, and have sought the only weapon in their reach to overcome it. They are attempting to prohibit the sale of tobacco in Kentucky to the buyers of the trust and it is upon those who refuse to join them, that they are waging their present campaign. We do not say that the night riders are pursuing the right course, when they seek to accomplish their ends by burning the property of their neighbors who refuse to enter the agreement. On the contrary they are ruining their cause, as public opinion is being aroused against them, and will finally defeat them. But we do say that this example bears us out in our contention that the lawless trusts and their anarchist managements are breeders of anarchists among the best citizens of all the walks of life. Here in Kentucky are farmers, the most conservative citizens in the United States, up in arms and supporting the wildest kind of mob law. If that isn't anarchy, and if it isn't the direct result of the anarchist methods of the tobacco trust, what is it?

SOLID DELEGATION.

Last week in an Eastern despatch it was claimed that of Indiana's thirty delegates to the national convention, twenty-eight would be for Fairbanks and two would be for Taft. The two who would be for Taft were said to be Senator Beveridge and a state senator. Such reports as that are erroneous in the extreme for that is not the way Indiana politicians play the game. Senator Beveridge has led the opposition to Fairbanks in Indiana, yet at the love feast the other day he did not back and rear like an obstreperous colt and try to destroy republican harmony and jeopardize a republican victory at the next election by splitting the party. And just as the senator laid aside his personal feelings then, so will he lay them aside at the national convention and stand by the whole Indiana delegation. Splitting a delegation is not good politics, and if any candidate for national delegate in Indiana is seeking election for the purpose of splitting our delegation he had better stand aside and let some man go to the convention who will work in harmony with the working majority.
