

NEW CASTLE LOSES PLAYER PIANO CO.

Machinery Is Now Being Torn
Out of Factory and Will Be Shipped.

CONNERSVILLE GETS IT.

THE CONSIDERATION IN THE DEAL IS $70,000—THREE MEN ARE NOW ENTIRELY OUT OF THE CONCERN.

New Castle, Ind., Jan. 11.—The player department machinery, equipment and stock, finished and unfinished, at the Krell-French piano factory, has been purchased by the Indiana Furniture company and will be moved to Connerville and used in the factory to be started and operated by the Krell Auto Grand Piano company.

The consideration of the deal was about $70,000, a part of which was cash and the balance is secured by the real estate owned by the Indiana Furniture company at Connerville, which it is agreed, will not be turned over to the Krell company until the notes are paid.

A large force of hands is at work tearing out and packing the player machinery and it will be loaded and shipped just as quickly as possible. It will take several cars, but hardly fifty, as has been reported from Connerville.

One part of the transaction provides that Messrs. E. B. Pfau, C. L. Dengler and Albert Krell turn over to the Krell-French Piano Co. their stock and interest in that concern, meaning that these three gentlemen are clear out of the firm. They have been interested in the Krell-French company since its organization and for a time held the principal offices.

Livers Exchanged

If the active liver of the cod-fish could be put into the place of the torpid liver of the consumptive it would probably do him a world of good. Next best thing is of Cod Liver Oil. Almost as good as a new liver. The great power of SCOTT'S EMULSION as a flesh-producer proves that much of the activity of the cod's liver is contained in every spoonful.

FOREIGNERS TAKE

HOME $110,000,000

Steamship Lines Give Figures
Showing Money Carried East.

PAID $15,000,000 IN FARES.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION IS DETERMINING FACTOR IN THE GREAT OUTPOURING OF EUROPEAN RESIDENTS.

New York, Jan. 11.—According to the North German Lloyd line, which has made a careful computation, based on the figures of steamship agents, money changers and railroad men, more than $100,000,000 was taken out of the United States by the immigrants who returned to their native places last year. The estimate is that each of the 550,045 foreigners had about $200 with him. To get away this through had to put up about $15,000,000 in railroad and steamship transportation and other charges. As an offset to millions that departed it is noted that 1,361,684 aliens who arrived last year brought with them, according to the estimate of the Commissioner-General of Immigration, about $27,263,790. Much of this, however, was furnished to the immigrants by relatives or friends in the United States.

Election Year's Influence.

The impression among many of the steamship agents is that the disturbed industrial conditions are aggravated by the agitation incident to the coming presidential election. Preceding a presidential election more foreigners usually return home than in other years.

Gustav H. Schwab, of the North German line, said: "I believe the annual pilgrimage is a benefit. It releases and puts into circulation a large sum of money that has been saved, and which the traveler is obliged to pay out in railroad and steamship fares, baggage transfers and sustenance while on the way to the seaboard."

"In the year 1907 I estimate that not less than $100,000,000 was paid by all classes for steamship fares. Of this amount $25,000,000 was contributed by first cabin travelers, $17,000,000 by second cabin and $64,000,000 by the third or steerage passengers."

Mr. Barrie's Page.

J. M. Barrie, the popular novelist and playwright, glorified tobacco more than once, but on a certain occasion he tried to induce a smoker to desist. It happened thus:

Mr. Barrie returned to his rooms one day and discovered his page boy puffing hard at a dirty clay pipe.

"My boy," said the novelist, "it is very bad for you to smoke that coarse black twist. You will make yourself old before your time."

And so he went on till he had delivered a long and what he believed to be a telling lecture. A day or two later the youth left without giving notice, and shortly afterward Mr. Barrie brought some friends to his flat. Promising them a special treat, he went to a cabinet where he kept a store of very choice cigars. You can imagine his chagrin when he discovered that the cigars had vanished, and in their place was the boy's clay pipe and the following note:

Dear Sir—I agree with you that it is bad for a boy to smoke twist. I will not smoke any more twist till I have finished your cigars.

Some Animals In Winter.

The ptarmigan, a member of the grouse family, is in winter mottled with black and a rich buffy brown, but in winter it becomes pure white. The snowy owl and the snow buntings that come to us from the far north have whitish plumage that blends harmoniously with the prevailing whiteness of the landscape. But perhaps the most interesting example of all is the weasel, whose fur in the summer has a peculiarly soft sheen of reddish brown, but in the winter is pure white except at the tip of the tail. It is probable that this black point is useful to its owner in diverting the attention of a carnivorous bird or of a beast of prey, as the black spot is more readily seen than the white body of the animal. It is said, too, that if the tip is covered with snow the whole weasel becomes clearly visible and that if the first snowfall is later than usual it is claimed by some naturalists that the color change is delayed accordingly. The turning white takes place when most needed.—St. Nicholas.

Coronets.

It is a mistake to suppose that dukes, marquises and other noble Britons never wear them at all except at the coronation of the sovereign, when they put on their coronets at the precise moment when the prime of England places the crown upon the anointed brow of the king or queen. And when a peer or peeress dies the coronet is again used at the funeral, being placed in the coffin or borne on a purple cushion behind the bier by one of the attendants. That is the extent to which the coronet is used according to the official rules and regulations. But sometimes they are made to serve other purposes than those for which they were intended. They are made of silver gilt, edged with ermine and lined inside with a purple velvet cap topped with a gold tassel and are quite ornamental baubles. One belonging to a noble marquis which was sold at auction in London had been cut in half and arranged to serve as brackets for candlesticks.

INTESTINAL INDIGESTION.

Its Symptoms and the Way It Should Be Treated.

It was formerly thought that the stomach was the main organ of digestion, and dyspepsia was supposed always to have its seat there. But this question has been much studied of late, and the result that the stomach has been found to be of little account comparatively in the preparation of the food for absorption. The most important part of digestion occurs in the upper part of the intestine, where the food, after leaving the stomach, is churned and mixed thoroughly with the bile and pancreatic secretion.

Since, then, the intestine takes such an important part in digestion, it is natural to suppose that a failure to perform this function properly would give rise to serious disturbances of health, and such, in fact, is the case.

Intestinal indigestion is a not uncommon affection at all periods of life and is especially prevalent in children. The chief symptoms are flatulence, or wind, more or less colic, diarrhea, or more often constipation, or an alternation of the two and practical starvation, as shown in weakness and emaciation.

The treatment is mainly through diet, but this with vary, of course, according to age. In an infant the problem is a difficult one. If the child is fed artificially all prepared foods containing starch should be taken away, and cows' milk, modified as to the amount of fat, sugar or casein it contains, according to the physician's directions, should be substituted.

If the infant is nursing the life of the mother should be studied, for the state of her health may affect the milk injuriously.

In older children and adults the amount of fats and of starchy foods must be carefully regulated. Cereals, pastry, rice, potatoes and bread must be cut out of the dietary for a time or taken in very small quantity. When eaten at all they should be most thoroughly, even excessively, chewed, for in this way they may be in great measure digested by the saliva before reaching the intestine.

The diet should consist mainly of milk, white of eggs and the most digestible meats and fish. The diarrhea or constipation should be regulated, and sometimes the administration of intestinal antiseptics is beneficial. Regular exercise in the open air is of great value in the treatment. The cold bath or shower bath is often of service when it is followed by a healthy reaction.—Youth's Companion.

A Picture In Wood.

There are various glimpses of Whistler in the reminiscences of the late Sir Wyke Bayliss, whilom president of the Society of British Artists. Here is an incident of "hanging day" while Whistler occupied the presidency:

A carpenter held in his hand a piece of wood, with which he was about to steady a heavy frame. It was a baton of yellow deal, with a large knot of lovely color, pitch brown and gold, running the whole length of the board.

Seizing the board, I made the carpenter saw out of it a fragment to fit a frame which stood on the mantelpiece. At a little distance the thing assumed the appearance of a golden sunset seen across an open country, with a little hill or clump of trees against the luminous sky. The gradation of color was beautiful beyond description. At that moment the president entered. We pointed across the gallery to the new "harmony in gold and brown" and congratulated him on its loveliness. Mr. Whistler, hastily putting his eyeglasses to his eye, exclaimed: "Eh, eh! What's that? Who lent that?" He was as much delighted as we were.

Premature Burial.

Statistics have been prepared to show that in Europe out of every 100 supposed deaths one person is resuscitated. Although members of the medical profession refuse to take any interest in the matter, it is probably true, says Burgeson, that many persons are buried while in a state of suspended animation. It is stated that in the cemetery just outside the town of Weimar there is a provision made against the premature burial of those who are placed in the ground until they have spent a considerable time in a receiving vault. In the fingers of the corpse are placed strings which communicate with an alarm. The least movement will ring a bell in an adjoining chamber, where a guardian is always on the watch. In several instances by this timely alarm persons prematurely buried have been rescued. It is said that the provision arose from the tradition that one of the princes of Saxe-Weimar, this being their family burial place, was buried alive.

Oriental English.

Recently a baboo lawyer offered a delicious example in his defense of a woman client. She was accused of an assault, but he endeavored to show that she herself had been assaulted and had suffered damage of the most conspicuous feature of her countenance.

"My learned friend with mere wind from a teapot thinks to browbeat me from my legs," he asserted. He had probably a "whisper in a teapot" in mind. "I only seek," he continued earnestly, "to place my bone of contention clearly in your honor's eye. My learned friend vainly runs amuck upon the sheet anchors of my case. My poor client has been deprived of some of her valuable leather (skin), the leather of her nose. Until the witness explains what became of my client's nose leather he cannot be believed. He cannot be allowed to raise a castle in the air by beating upon a bush."

After five years work Australia's great trans-continental rabbit-proof fence has been completed. Its length is 2,600 miles and the cost of its erection has been very nearly $12,500,000. It is furnished at intervals of five miles with systems of traps in which hundreds of rabbits are captured and destroyed daily. On the eastern side of the fence the rodents are teeming and vegetation is almost completely absent. Inside the barrier there appears as yet no trace of their presence.
