GOOD SELECTION.

In the selection of Edgar M. Haas yesterday, for district chairman, the republicans of the district have shown good sense and discrimination. Mr. Haas has always been a loyal and hard working republican and absolutely commands the confidence of Wayne county republicans. One of his greatest sources of strength is the fact that, in spite of his great political activity, he has never been mixed up in factional fights within the party. His selection, therefore, in this respect as district chairman is a most happy one, as it places at the head of the district republican organization the best man for obtaining harmonious action from all republicans. Under the leadership of Mr. Haas republicans need have no fear of the result of the coming battle at the polls with the "common enemy."

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE OPEN TO ALL.

Editor of the Palladium:

As a reader of your paper, I have often noticed various articles in its columns in regard to people of this city buying from mail order houses, and advocating "Richmond people for Richmond."

No one can deny but what this doctrine is an right, but are the laboring classes the only ones expected to show public spirit?

On a recent visit to the various shops of this place, I noticed men living all the way from Eaton to Cambridge City employed, while men of families living in Richmond are forced to go idle and ask for charity.

Does it not seem to the shop owners of our city that it would be showing about as much patriotism for our home town, to employ the married men living here, instead of the single men living along the interurban lines?

Will the few dollars which our residents spend out of town, affect the home merchant nearly so much as the enforced idleness of our working men?

Does it not seem as though council would be doing the inhabitants of our city as much good, by enacting a law prohibiting the employment of farmers by the shop owners, during the winter, as to prohibit them from selling cabbage on our streets without a license?

After all, isn't the laboring man who sends to Chicago for his household goods, just as public spirited as the business man who employs men living out of town in preference to the man living here?

WATCH THE LIPS.

Their Sensitive Muscles Make Them Great Tactiles.

"It's a queer thing," remarked the professor, "how people can control their eyes and not their mouths."

The inventor with whom he happened to be talking made the comment that the professor probably meant tongues when speaking of mouths.

"No, I didn't mean tongues," the professor rejoined. "I mean, if you want to be scientifically accurate, the action of the lips muscles. There's nearly always, in a moment of excitement, of exaltation, depression or emergency, a telltale movement of their part which can't be guarded against. Why can't it be guarded against? Because it is so largely unconscious. Most of us from our youth up have been trained to use our eyes and to use them in such a way as to conceal our emotions. It's different with the mouth. Perhaps we haven't advanced far enough to do two such important things at the same time. Anyway the fact remains that we don't do it."

"If, for example, I have reason to believe that a man is not telling me the truth I don't give my attention to his eyes. He may look at me as fearlessly as he wants. What I watch for is something significant in the region of his face below the nose. If there is no change in the expression of his lips I am disposed after all to believe him. But if there is the least trembling or twitching, the least exhibition, let us call it, of nervousness—well, then, I have my doubts."

"I suppose," observed the inventor, "that while that fact does not explain the wearing of the mustache it shows that the mustache has uses."

"It does," returned the professor, "but you must remember that the mustache, as a rule, doesn't obscure the lower lip. And the lower lip, if you'll take the trouble to notice, is if anything more revealing than the upper one. It is usually that lip which gives the expression to the mouth. The upper lip follows suit, as it were."

"Well, well," said the inventor, "angering his mustache—New York Press

METHODIST CHURCH PRACTICE HEALING ART?

Rev. John Thompson Thinks It Will Do So.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—"I predict that the Methodist Episcopal church will some day practice the healing of the early church," said the Rev. John Thompson, pastor of the McCabe Memorial M. E. church. "It may take time, for great bodies move slowly, but it is coming. When it does come it will be in line with the best Methodist training; if not with contemporary Methodist practice. Wesley healed. Our bishops are instructed at their ordination to heal the sick."

"Do you expect to work out a course in Christian psychology in your own congregation?" he was asked.

"Well, I am not disclosing my plans yet," he replied, "but I have plans. This is no new thing with me. I have been brooding over the question for a good many years. It has seemed to me that the church had allowed an old and precious service to languish. Now the Christian Scientists have stepped in."

"Are we, then, to allow them to monopolize the art of healing? By no means. They have evolved a metaphysics that millions of men can never accept. They deny personality, and to that extent are neither scientific nor Christian. Christian psychology occupies middle ground between Mrs. Eddy's radical beliefs and the present day indifference of the churches to the art of healing."

WALKING

Once An Effort, Now A Real Pleasure.

Walking, especially in the early morning, is fine exercise, if one is robust enough to really enjoy it. If not, it is burdensome.

A lady at Blount Springs, Ala., where the water and fresh air did not seem to build her up as she hoped, found that Grape-Nuts food was just what she needed to give strength. She writes:

"Circumstances have made it necessary for me and my family to board for the past five years and during that time I have suffered greatly from indigestion. Improper and poorly cooked food being the evident cause of my trouble."

"Indigestion had become chronic and complications arose so that I lived for months at a time on raw eggs; could not even take wine, brandy or milk—the latter souring on my stomach. I tried about every known remedy and had been here for a month, drinking the water and walking morning, noon and night, trying to get relief."

"Accidentally I heard of Grape-Nuts and began to eat the food. After about three weeks on this food to gether with the exercises, I found the greatest relief. First noticeable in the morning walk and early rising, which before had been done with the greatest possible effort, but now have become a positive pleasure—with a gain of 10 lbs."

"Since using this food and being so improved, I meet others also, who have used it with like results. One lady who had been a great sufferer from nervous and stomach troubles, has been entirely relieved and continues to use Grape-Nuts daily in her family. 'There's a Reason!'"

WITH FACE UNSWERVINGLY TOWARD THE FRONT, PARTY WILL CARRY ROOSEVELTIAN PRINCIPLES

It is on This Ground Sixth District Republicans Ask the Approval of the People—Fairbanks Endorsed for the Presidency and Protection Asked Against Financial Disturbers.

At the Sixth district convention held Tuesday at Cambridge City, strong resolutions endorsing the policies of President Theodore Roosevelt, his courage and statesmanship, were presented and adopted with a whoop. Protection against men who cause detrimental financial troubles, was asked, and Charles Warren Fairbanks was endorsed for the presidential nomination. The resolutions followed:

The Republicans of the Sixth Congressional district of Indiana, in convention assembled, again felicitate the nation upon the greatness of the leadership of the party. The republican party has never failed to take high ground upon the great issues of the day. Today more conspicuously than ever, its place is worthy of its record. With its face unswervingly toward the front and its feet firmly upon a foundation of the soundest principle, the great party of Lincoln, Grant, McKinley and Roosevelt again prepares to ask for the approval of the American people.

The principles for which it now stands and has ever stood are equality of all before the law, the right of the people to do business freely without being preyed upon by powerful law-breaking combinations of capital, and at the same time the absolute and complete right of all lawful business and financial interests to perform their proper duties in the vast industrial life of our country without persecution or unjust hindrance.

Toward such a position, so fair that no partisan opponent could gainsay it, so just that all men must admit its justice, the republican party has been consistently moving. The great and statesmanlike measures placed upon the statute books by the republican law-makers to make equally available to all the public ways of transportation have been received with an almost universal popular approval.

Not only at home, but in the great international movements of the period, our national administration distinguished itself. With the strong arm of the republic law for the defense of the weak, it has given new vitality to the principle embodied in the Monroe doctrine. It has reached across the seas and brought together warring nations of alien races, and by settling the Russian-Japanese war accomplished the greatest victory known to international history.

Therefore, be it resolved that we again express the confidence of the people whom we represent in the wisdom, integrity and fearless devotion to the right of one of the greatest leaders of our party and our nation ever had; that we express the determination of the people to stand by and support the policies of that renowned statesman and friend of the people, the champion of equality, justice and the square deal, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States.

And Whereas, in the midst of boundless and unlimited material prosperity, an effort has been made to obscure the results of the fight which the president and the people were carrying on against such combinations as were dangerous and predatory; thus by the efforts of the very men who are answering for their acts at the criminal bar of the federal courts, widespread financial stringency has occurred.

And Whereas, by manipulation and speculation, these powerful men have brought about and are still striving to maintain, a financial flurry intended to make the people feel that crime cannot be punished without the damage of the innocent; therefore,

Resolved, that we commend the position of the president and the congress in insisting that there be such remedial legislation as will, as far as possible, protect the people from such attacks in the future; and we reaffirm a belief that discriminations, rebates and special favors for a few as against the man must cease.

We take great pride in endorsing the candidacy of Indiana's distinguished son, the vice president of the United States, Charles W. Fairbanks, for the presidential nomination. He is among the nation's greatest men; wise, conservative and patriotic; and by reason of his long continued service and familiarity with all public questions, he is eminently fitted for the duties of that high office, and all interests of our country would be safe in his hands.

Resolved, that in the administration of civil affairs in the State of Indiana, we, as republicans of the Sixth congressional district, take the highest pride and point to the official acts of the governor, the state officers and the general assembly of the state of Indiana as representative of a progressive movement toward cleaner and better administration of the public affairs.

We pledge our most earnest and loyal support to the Hon. James E. Watson, in his candidacy for the nomination for the high office of governor of the State of Indiana, and commend him to the people of the state as a man who is eminently qualified to fill the position to which he aspires, with credit to himself and honor to the people whom he would serve.

We also heartily endorse the candidacy of Prof. J. H. Tomlin for superintendent of public instruction, and Judge David A. Myers for re-nomination as Judge of the Appellate court of the State of Indiana.

Resolved, that we commend the po-
