

STARR DENIES THE C. C. & L. MERGER

Rumors in Local Circles Said Wisconsin Central Would Take Charge.

STORY IS NOT CONFIRMED.

THE STATEMENT WHICH HAS BEEN GOING THE ROUNDS IS ALSO DENIED BY A FORMER PRESIDENT OF "CENTRAL."

Local railroad circles yesterday heard persistent rumors that negotiations for the absorption of the C. C. & L. by the Wisconsin Central had been closed and that the formal merger would be completed today, the corporate existence of the C. C. & L. to be at once terminated. It was said that all the details had been arranged and that formal notice of the change were ready to be sent out.

Henry C. Starr, vice president of the Wisconsin Central and the Chicago, Cincinnati and Louisville, who is now in Richmond, emphatically denied the rumor that the C. C. & L. is to be transferred to the Wisconsin Central. He says the story is absolutely without foundation, and characterizes the reported sale of the Wisconsin Central to the Illinois Steel company as of the same nature.

No confirmation of the rumors can be secured here. Local employees declare that they have received no intimation of any such change. It was said at the local offices of the C. C. & L. that if such negotiations had been closed, information would certainly not be lacking here on the day before the contemplated change.

Milwaukee, Jan. 15.—"To my knowledge there are absolutely no changes in contemplation in Wisconsin Central," said H. P. Whitcomb, former president, when asked for verification of the report that he was to succeed President W. A. Bradford, and that Wisconsin Central was to take over C. C. & L. Mr. Whitcomb has consistently denied for months each succeeding report that he was to resume the presidency.

DID NOT KNOW THAT THERE WAS SUCH A MAN AS PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 15.—Miles O'Reilly, born in Canada, but a resident of Jackson county for twenty years, made application for American citizenship in Circuit court this morning. He swore he couldn't read, but the constitution of the United States had been read to him.

"What are the three departments of government under the constitution?" said Judge Parkinson.

"I don't understand you."

"What is the name of the office that the chief executive holds?"

O'Reilly couldn't say.

"Who is the president of the United States?"

"Roosevelt, I suppose."

"Who was president before Roosevelt?"

volt?"

"I could not tell you."

"Who is governor of Michigan?"

"I supposed Rosenthal was."

"Can you tell me what department of the government of the state makes laws?"

"I suppose it's there in Washington."

"What do they call the house that makes laws at Lansing?"

This stumped O'Reilly again.

"Who is the member of congress from this district?"

"I cannot tell you."

"What is congress?"

"I can't tell you that."

"The petition is dismissed," said Judge Parkinson. And so O'Reilly cannot vote.

TEACHERS FAVOR TEXT BOOK CHANGE

RICHMOND HIGH SCHOOL INSTRUCTORS NOT IN SYMPATHY WITH MOSS BILL.

WOULD LOWER STANDARD.

AS CHEMISTRY AND OTHER SCIENCES CHANGE SO OFTEN, TEXT BOOKS OF THIS NATURE SHOULD BE UP-TO-DATE.

At the Richmond High School teachers' meeting, Prof. D. R. Ellbarger brought up the question of uniform state text books. It was found that the local high school teachers were unanimously opposed to the law proposed by Senator Moss, who introduced a bill into the state house of representatives which held that all the high schools in Indiana might use the same text books until the law changed. It is asserted the time that the same books might be used would vary from ten to fifteen years. In an interview, Prof. J. Thompson, instructor in Botany at the local school, said that this law would be detrimental to the high schools at large. He said that because of the fact that science, such as chemistry, physics and botany, changes every two or three years, it would be impossible to reach from out-of-date text books. Although the Moss bill which was introduced last winter, was killed, it is thought that he is intending to introduce a similar one at the next session of legislature. Prof. Ellbarger will go to Indianapolis to meet with a committee who will try to find out the reason why Senator Moss desires this bill to be passed.

convention; E. E. Neal for the nomination for reporter of the supreme and appellate courts, and the administration of Fred Sims as secretary of state. It was decided that the convention to nominate a candidate for congress shall be held in Frankfort, February 5.

The Tenth district elected Henry Hickey of Laporte to succeed Henry W. Marshall of Indianapolis who retired voluntarily.

The eleventh district elected Henry Benell of Huntington, who was opposed by the Elam Neal faction. It was Neal's first defeat. He was backing the candidacy of John McRae, of Wabash, whose name was not yet entered. Several Indiana party leaders gathered at Peru for the convention.

tion, both as to his personal appearance and his oratorical ability. Judge W. O. Barnard took occasion to defend the matter of organization in particular, but he wants the organization to get out of its place. Charles W. Stivers, of Liberty, made a vigorous address, eulogistic of the republican party and of its leaders in Indiana. The speeches of Hough, Yenner and Moore were in line with the others.

Wilfred Jessup took occasion to refer more particularly to his own candidacy than did any other one of the speakers, developing the point that differences exist between him and many of the leaders of the party in the county, the district and the state, but still endeavoring to show reasons why he should receive the nomination. Prof. Jessup made no reference to Fairbanks, to whose nomination for the presidency he is opposed, but he spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Watson, urging his advancement to the governorship as a proper one and hinting that still further advancement would be the right thing. In the opinion of many, Mr. Jessup would have done his cause more good had he ignored the matter of any differences he may have with portions of the party and made his talk on a more general basis. They contend that it was not expedient for him to carry a matter that is largely local into the district fight and perhaps handicap himself needlessly.
