NEWEST AND BEST.

Thank heavens for Oklahoma! Our newest state comes into the union with other and better ideas than the antiquated notions most of the old states are going under. Our forefathers were all right in their day and did yeoman service for the country in its times of need in the earlier years. That, however, is no sign the ideas of what was best for the country fifty years ago are likewise the great remedies for today. As a nation we outgrow the remedies for early needs just as a child outgrows short dresses. Oklahoma, before attaining statehood, had the good sense to realize that in dealing with the problems of today and of the near future, she must have a constitution made to deal with conditions of today. And when she was admitted to the union, Oklahoma had about the most radical constitution, to the minds of conservatives of the older states, of any state in the country. Oklahoma represents vividly the contrast between the old and the new. Real government of the people as against government of special interests. Take the new state's banking law for example. While other states have been "considering" guaranteeing bank deposits, Oklahoma has passed a state law guaranteeing the deposits of all state banks and forcing these banks to pay a small tax to a general fund, safeguarded by the state, for protecting their depositors. Whether this law is a good one time alone can tell. It is, however, good in intent, for it was passed to safeguard the hard earned savings of the people of the state. Then Oklahoma has yet another law that makes the people still more supreme in their self government. National senators are chosen by vote of the people who instruct their state legislators whom to select. This is yet another step in advance over the old way of selecting senators that has been our heritage from our forefathers. If Oklahoma continues in the progressive path she has set out on, she will be a continual source of inspiration for all the rest of the country in the fight for greater rights for the people and less power for the criminal corporations and the money kings of Wall street.

MILK INSPECTION.

Now that the city has settled the question of pure meat for her citizens it is but right that the equally important question of pure milk should be taken up and as favorably disposed of. Pure milk is about as important a consideration for our civic welfare as there is. It is a well known fact that every year hundreds of thousands of infants are absolutely murdered by impure milk. This is a condition that calls for immediate attention and is one that every community in the land should deal with rigidly. Impure milk comes from a multitude of things, among which are uncleanness about the dairy, taking milk from diseased cows, and contagious disease among those who attend to the dairy. This latter point is one that has already demonstrated its power for evil in Richmond. Milk is a great germ carrier and on one occasion, which is well known in Richmond, typhoid fever germs were transmitted to families living in this city by milk brought from a farm on which a family lived one member of which had the disease. Conditions such as these could be prevented by a rigid inspection of all sources of the milk supply of Richmond and nothing but pure milk could be allowed to enter the city. And if the city officials stick to their present plan there will be no difficulty in bringing about proper inspection and doing away with some of the dangers of infectious diseases, besides putting a check on infant mortality in Richmond.

Intellectual Powers of Artists.
Between the art value of a fine painting or a great sculpture and the most artistic and faultless garment made there is, of course, as wide a difference as there is between a diamond and a piece of polished glass, but this does not prove that the knowledge necessary to the production of the former was greater than for the latter, that a pianist is required a higher order of intellect or that the carrying of it from its beginning to its completion involved deeper thought or depended on greater skill.—London Tailor and Cutter.

CONNECTICUT IS SAFE SAYS REPORT

Rumored in America That Admiral Evans' Flagship Had Met With Accident.

SHIPS IN GOOD CONDITION.

THE FLOTILLA HAS JOINED THE BIG FLEET AND THE SQUADRON NOW PRESENTS A MOST BEAUTIFUL SIGHT.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 18.—The American battle ship fleet has been joined in the harbor at Rio Janeiro by the torpedo boat flotilla. The flotilla left Pernambuco January 13 and met with good weather on the voyage to this port.

Lieutenant Commander Cone reports the health of the men of the torpedo flotilla as generally good. The vessels in his command will sail for Buenos Ayers after coaling, probably about January 21.

The scene in the harbor was picturesque. Never before were so many warships anchored in this port at one time. Besides the great fleet of 16 battle ships swinging idly at anchor, with their white sides shining in the brilliant sunshine of a perfect day, there was the fleet of Brazilian warships, the German cruiser Bremen, and finally came the six American torpedo-boat destroyers, under Lieutenant Commander Cone, to swell the great fleet.

Scores of small boats ran to and fro between the warships, and the shore carrying thousands of the men who had been granted leave for the day, while the officers were still being feted by the Government, the city and the people of Rio Janeiro. Nothing occurred to break the absolute peacefulness of the scene in the harbor and the enjoyment of the men ashore.

Creates Much Surprise.

There was considerable surprise and not a little amusement among the officers of the battle ship fleet, as well as among the people of Rio Janeiro, over numerous inquiries called here from the United States during the day asking for information regarding a reported disaster to the battleship Connecticut, Admiral Evans' flagship.

At first the inquiries were mysterious to those to whom they were addressed, as the rumor of a mishap to the Connecticut did not originate here and at the time frenzied inquiries were being telegraphed from the United States all the ships of the fleet were lying peacefully in the harbor in plain view from the shore.

Finally it became clear that the rumor of an accident originated in the United States, and, having been widely circulated, occasioned considerable alarm there.

Do Not Stare at the Officers.

Army officers in uniform abound in foreign cities, and in Germany they were being stared at by tourists, often assuming threatening attitudes in retaliation. As the law permits them to shoot civilians on provocation, it is wise not to excite them. It is well to remember that they do not feel obliged to turn out for pedestrians, even ladies.—Travel Magazine.

The Drawback.

Mrs. Meeker (at the play)—I do wish you'd pay more attention to this play, George; it's as good as a sermon. Mr. Meeker (dozing)—It certainly is, my dear, but the darn orchestra wakes me up between acts.—Puck.

Coffee Finally Had to Go.

The way some persons cling to coffee even after they know it is doing them harm, is a puzzle. But it is an easy matter to give it up for good, when Postum Food Coffee is properly made and used instead.

A girl writes: "Mother had been suffering with nervous headaches for seven weary years, but kept drinking coffee."

"One day I asked her why she did not give up coffee as a cousin of mine had done who had taken to Postum. But Mother was such a slave to coffee she thought it would be terrible to give it up."

"Finally, one day, she made the change to Postum, and quickly her headaches disappeared. One morning while she was drinking Postum so freely and with such relish, I asked for a taste."

"That started me on Postum and I now drink it more freely than I did coffee, which never comes into my house now."

"A girl friend of mine, one day, saw me drinking Postum and asked if it was coffee. I told her it was Postum and gave her some to take home, but forgot to tell her how to make it."

"The next day she said she did not see how I could drink Postum. I found she had made it like ordinary coffee. So I told her how to make it right and gave her a cupful I made after boiling it fifteen minutes. She said she never drank any coffee that tasted as good, and now coffee is banished from both our homes."

ONLY IGNORANT OPPOSE HONESTY

Beveridge Urges Tariff Revision and Child Labor Reform.

NO COMFORTABLE REFORM.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 18.—Tariff revision, honesty in business, child labor reform and conservation of natural resources were the topics discussed by Senator Beveridge of Indiana in his address before Yale university last evening. The senator declared that only demagogues and ignorant men object to those combinations of industry known as "trusts" which are conducted honestly. He said the country must strive to attain justice and fair dealing by the trusts and the railroads toward the people, and by the people toward trusts and the railroads.

His argument in favor of a child labor bill was along old lines. He declared the constitutional stranglehold were alive in the day of Marshall as now. He argued for a tariff commission to revise the schedules and inform congress. The forests of the country, he held had been slaughtered and must be replaced, as well as streams be improved. In the opinion of the speaker there is no such thing as comfortable reform; the meaning of the times is the organization of honesty.

REMARKABLE HORSES.

Some Clever Animals and a Wonderful New England Nag.

In his letters to Lord Granville, published by the Royal Philosophical society, who was also greatly interested in natural history, Smithsonian, the founder of the Smithsonian Institution in America, says London Tit-Bits, relates how the horse of Alexander the Great, Bucephalus, would at night on hearing a blast of the trumpet from the soldiers on guard, showing the approach of the enemy, run at great speed to his master's tent and with his teeth grab the sleeping monarch and shake him until he sprang into the saddle and galloped toward the enemy.

Also that the great Caliph Haroun-al-Raschid in the eighth century in marching toward the forces of Queen Irene of Constantinople always had a number of trained Arabian horses (direct descendants of the famous horses owned by Ishmael 4,000 years ago) thrown forward as scouts, which from time to time returned to camp and by a peculiar whinny and neigh reported the proximity of the enemy.

Again, he relates the experiences of the Portuguese explorer, Albuquerque, who lived for many years in the sixteenth century on the island of St. Helena, where he and the natives taught the herds of wild horses there not only to dig potatoes, but to husk corn, and these horses descended from a herd taken there from Cappadocia in the second century, as related by the Greek historian, Philostratus.

But, to come down to the present day, it is related by a retired New England clergyman whose sands of life had nearly run out that one day on leading his horse down through a lane to a brook for a drink the animal suddenly halted and, turning its head around, grabbed up with its teeth one of its hind shoes which had just dropped off, and, holding it in its mouth with the nails dangling, it backed up against a stone wall and clapped it on to its hoof and with a few violent kicks nailed it on again.

How Slow the Train Was.

Two men were coming into Denver from a nearby town on a local train the other day. The train stopped every five minutes, it seemed, and one of the men became impatient. Finally when the train halted for the engine to get up steam the man's impatience overflowed.

"Now, what do you think of this train?" he said to the other.

"It isn't making much progress," replied his friend.

"Progress! I should say not," said the impatient man. "It would be a fierce job to take a moving picture of this train."—Denver Post.
