INSPECTOR TRIES TO MURDER EDITOR

Fires Two Shots But Neither Takes Effect.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 18.—Edward S. Whitaker, inspector of police, entered the office of the Morning World here tonight and fired two shots at Joseph M. Leveque, the editor. Neither shot took effect.

The shooting followed several attacks upon Whitaker in the editorial and news columns of the World. The head of the New Orleans police department was criticized for "attending the races daily while drawing a salary of $5,000 a year from the people," and was referred to as "a blackguard and a bully."

Accounts of the shooting vary, but according to eye witnesses one of several reporters who rushed to the editor's aid struck the police inspector's arm and caused the shots to go wild.

When Traced, However, It Was Found That His Holiness Was Suffering With Gout.

Rome, Jan. 18.—Alarming rumors were in circulation today regarding the health of Pope Pius. The reports were more alarming in character than those circulated when Pope Pius, a few days after his election, fainted in the Pauline Chapel while celebrating his first pontifical mass.

All were greatly exaggerated, however, as the pope is only again suffering from the gout. The attack began last night and by morning had become so acute that by the advice of his physician, Dr. Petrucci, his holiness postponed all the audiences that had been arranged for today and tomorrow, though he insisted that he would receive Cardinal Merry Del Val, the viceroy of state, and other officials for the conduct of the ordinary business affairs of the Vatican.

Dr. Petrucci does not attach much importance to the present seizure. He attributes it to the advanced age of the pontiff and to his refusal to comply with the physician's orders to rest, to work and to diet.
