AGAIN BURNING STORY OF HER DOWNFALL IS TOLD

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw Takes Place on Witness Stand Today to Do What She Can to Free Her Accused Husband.

SWING AND BEDROOM
SCENES ARE DESCRIBED.

Her Relations With White
Were Told to Thaw by Witness Who Promised to Marry Him Under a Threat.

New York, Jan. 20.—A large crowd fought for admission into the court room when the Thaw trial was resumed this morning. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was the first witness called and Prosecutor Jerome renewed his motion to exclude her testimony from the public. Justice Dowling overruled the motion, however, and the examination of Evelyn was continued in public. Justice Dowling in passing on the motion of Jerome said that the law in New York state requires that the defendant be given a speedy and public trial. It appeared that Jerome's motion was additional play to win the sympathy of the jury and to influence its members against the defendant and his wife.

Attorney Littleton for the defense took up the examination of the star witness. In answer to his questions Evelyn Thaw said she told Harry Thaw, when he asked her to marry him that she could not on account of her relations with Stanford White. Prosecutor Jerome objected but his objection was overruled. Evelyn told him how she was first taken to White's studio in Twenty-fourth street by a girl, whose mother knew hers. She also visited the places in the tower and had lunch there. In another room White had a velvet swing in which he swung the girls. White said in a few days sent her mother to Pittsburgh and her mother, before leaving told her to go out with none but White. White sent a carriage nightly to the theatre for her, she claimed. After being asked one night she went to the tower, expecting to meet a number of other girls, but found only White there. They went through the different rooms and finally to the bedroom where there was a table and a bottle of wine. After offering many objections she drank the wine.

Prosecutor Jerome objected to Attorney Littleton asking the witness any leading questions, and the court upheld him. Harry Thaw sat with his head in his hands and was much affected by his wife's story. Evelyn said that after drinking the wine she remembered nothing for some time. When she recovered she found her clothes had been taken from her body. She dressed herself and reached the hotel early in the morning. White then had a seat with her in the cab. He later told her to say nothing about what had happened as he would take care of her. She said Thaw was greatly affected by the story, when she told it to him. She finally accepted his offer of marriage because he threatened to kill himself.

When young Mrs. Thaw has concluded her testimony and has been put through the fire of cross-examination the elder Mrs. Thaw probably will conclude her evidence. This will leave three or four witnesses before the six attorneys retained by the defense are put upon the stand to answer a hypothetical question covering all the testimony. Two of these physicians, Drs. Evans and Wager, will tell of the examination they made of Thaw in the Tombs prison following the tragedy. From one who is close to the district attorney's office it was learned tonight that Mr. Jerome expects Thaw will either be convicted of murder in the second degree or found insane and sent to Matteawan. In the event of a disagreement, however, it is said Thaw will not be released, but will be sent to the Tombs for a third trial.

FOUR HUNDRED TO FROLIC AS IN DAYS OF CHILDHOOD

Members of Tourist Club Will
Don Costumes of By-gone
Days and Play Games of Olden Times.

ONLY ON ONE EVENING
WILL FROLIC BE HELD.

Fair Members Will Wear Pinafores and Braided Tresses
And Men Will Don Little Lord Fauntleroy Suits.

"School days, school days, Dear old golden rule days, Reading and rithin' and 'rithmetic Taught to the tune of a hickory stick," Members of the "upper" social set, commonly known as Richmond's "Four Hundred," will have a frolic on the evening of February 14, which is St. Valentine's day. Back to the scenes of their childhood will the society people go on that date. Father time will wave his magic wand and they will all be transformed into children—for St. Valentine's evening only.

Members of the Tourist club, the most exclusive social organization in the city, have arranged for what they call "an unconventional evening" on February 14. It has leaked out that this "unconventional" entertainment will be a children's party. All the club members will attend the affair dressed as lads and lassies.

Society queens will be seen dressed in pinafores with hair done up in braids and hanging gracefully down their backs. The men will be attired in becoming Little Lord Fauntleroy costumes. Staid conventional manners will be cast aside and all the grown-up children will romp to their hearts' content. Old fashioned games such as "postoffice," "pussy" in the corner, "hide-and-go-seek" and others, which in the minds of some of the club members are but dim, hazy recollections, may be played.

ACCUSED MAN CHAFES UNDER CONFINEMENT

William Lett Charged With Petit Larceny, Does Not Like Jail Life.

PLEA OF NOT GUILTY.

HE WAS ARRAIGNED IN CIRCUIT COURT TODAY, BUT HEARING OF THE CASE WAS POSTPONED FOR ONE WEEK.

William Lett, colored, will be tried Tuesday of next week in the circuit court before a jury on a charge of petit larceny. Lett was arraigned in court this morning and entered a plea of not guilty. Judge Fox read a letter from a Portland, Ind., attorney stating that Lett had always borne a good reputation in that city and that he was confident the young man was not guilty of the charge. Prottor, against him. Lett will be defended by Panzer Attorney P. J. Freeman.

Lett is charged with having stolen a watch from the home of George R. Dilks, Spring Grove. He has been confined in the county jail for some time awaiting trial and this morning when the hearing of his case was postponed a week longer the young man was considerably vexed.

"I'm tired of the jail. I want to get out," he said to the court. Mr. Freeman then stated that this week he would be out of the city most of the time and that it would be impossible to defend Lett until next week.

Another criminal case, that of the State against Alva J. Hunt, charged with grand larceny and embezzlement, will be heard next week. This case is called for trial Monday and it is probable that it will not be concluded until Tuesday or Wednesday. If this be so Lett will again be disappointed by having his trial postponed.

GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATES ENTER THE FINAL STRETCH

With the Call for the State Convention, Charles W. Miller and James E. Watson
Sprint for Finish.

SIXTH DIST. CANDIDATE IS APPARENTLY LEADING.

Many Politicians Say That If
The Convention Were Held
Today, He Would Be Nominated—Beveridge Shaky.

With the call for the state convention issued, the entries in the republican race for governor are now settling down for the finish. The party workers from one end of Indiana to the other are deeply interested, and the convention promises to be the most spectacular in the history of the party.

As matters now stand, Congressman James E. Watson, of Rushville, is generally regarded as the leading candidate, and five out of every six politicians are now saying that if the convention should be held within the next week he would receive the nomination. But the convention is not to be held until the first week of April, so there are more than two months in which the other candidates may close up the gap, if such exists.

As far as sentiment is concerned, politicians generally say that there is more in favor of Watson than either of his opponents. He is popular personally and a grand campaigner. The expression is heard on all sides, now that he has a fine chance of landing the nomination early in the convention if his forces are well organized.

On the other hand, Charles W. Miller is being referred to as a fine organizer. He is credited with being able to marshal his forces so that it will be difficult to get away from them. Taylor is also looked upon as a good campaigner, but not the equal of Miller as an organizer. However, he is said to have put that end of his campaign in the hands of men who know the game.

From almost any point of view that may be taken the race is one of the most interesting that has taken place in the party. There is less factional strife connected with it than was anticipated. Some of Watson's opponents among the radical Beveridge men have recently caused the publication of stories that he proposes to run against Senator Beveridge two years hence if he is elected governor, but his closest friends say that any statement to that effect is ridiculous.

Watson is not a candidate for the senate and will serve out his term as governor, if he is nominated and elected, it is said, and this would take him two years beyond the expiration of Senator Beveridge's term.

It is rumored frequently that Senator Beveridge has more to fear from a combination between Governor Hanly and Lieutenant Governor Miller than from Watson and his followers, as it is said that the governor, who is very friendly to the lieutenant governor, might become a candidate for the senate if the lieutenant governor should be elected to succeed him.

Vice President Fairbanks and his political manager, Joe Keating, are keeping their hands off the governorship race. Up to this time there has not been as much said about the Beveridge and Hanly-Fairbanks factions as usual, and it is not likely that they will be drawn into this fight, as in former campaigns, for places on the state ticket.

KILLED MAN WITH A BEAN SHOOTER

Man Thought So and Then Suicided.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 20—"I killed a man with a bean-shooter and I will pay the penalty," written with a pencil on blood spattered paper, was the note left by Charles Deskill, aged 18, a shoe cutter, who killed himself here today by slashing his throat with a razor. His body and the note were found by his mother. It is thought from the note that he became suddenly insane.

NEGRO FIGHTERS ARE THROWN OUT OF DOORS

Men Giving Names of Smith
And School Arrested.

FROM CHURCH TO SALOON.

Two negroes giving the names of School and Smith started a street fight Saturday night in the north end of town. After battling with each other in front of a church they retired to a nearby saloon and resumed hostilities. The late saloon keeper and bartender took a hand in the trouble and threw the scrappy colored men out of the side door, where the police gathered them in.

SHURLEY WILL BE ACTIVE CANDIDATE

Will Seek the Republican Nomination for County
Treasurer.

OTHER CANDIDATES BUSY.

ARE WORKING HARD AND THERE IS GENERAL INTEREST IN WAYNE COUNTY POLITICS AT THE PRESENT TIME.

Today Jerome Shurley, a well known resident of this city, announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for county treasurer. This announcement will be received in the nature of a surprise as it was generally believed that Albert Albertson, who for several weeks has been the only candidate in the field for this office, would have no opposition.

Mr. Shurley has for twenty years been connected with the live stock buying and shipping firm of Gaar & Shurley. He resides in the first ward and four years ago represented that ward on the republican county central committee. He takes a great interest in politics and has always been an active party worker.

It is the general opinion that there will be no more candidates to take the field for the county treasurership.

The candidates for the various offices are working hard on their causes at the present time, and there is general interest being taken in politics. The most interesting fights that are now on are between the candidates for assessor and trustee of Wayne township.

FIRST VICTIMS OF LOITERING STATUTE

James and Walter Mack Arraigned and Fined in
The City Court.

SCOPE OF LAW VERY WIDE.

James and Walter Mack, arrested Friday for vagrancy, were arraigned in the city court this morning and charged with loitering. Both men entered pleas of guilty and each was fined $5 and costs. The two Macks are the first victims of the loitering ordinance recently enacted by the city council. When arraigned in court Saturday charged with a violation of the state vagrancy law they both pleaded not guilty. The scope of the loitering ordinance is so wide that the two men today evidently recognized the futility of pleading not guilty to its violation.

GRIP CLUTCHES MANY STUDENTS AT EARLHAM

COACH VAIL IS A VICTIM.

There are twenty-five cases of grip at Earlham at present. The nurseries in both of the dormitories are crowded and the nurse for the girls is herself quite ill. Coach Vail is one of the afflicted ones and the different teams will have to depend upon themselves for some time.

SENTENCE STORY OF 46 DAYS IN MINE TOMB.

PLACE.
Alpha shaft, Giroux mine, Ely, Nev.
VICTIMS.

A. D. Bailey,
P. J. Brown,
Fred McDonald.

FEATURES OF CAVE-IN.
Miners were caught in shaft
1,085 feet below surface on morning of Dec. 4.

Cable of cage broke and thousands of tons of debris fell down shaft.

Five men struggled up ladders to pumping station, eighty-five feet from place men were working, but half way up two Greeks were dashed to death by falling timbers.

Three reached the pumping station,
where a strong roof withstood the falling debris.

Victims made themselves heard
by pounding on six-inch water pipe.
This pipe saved the prisoners' lives.
Food and drink were lowered
through the pipe and telephone communication was established.

Work of removing the debris has been carried on constantly, the men being liberated Saturday night, Jan. 18.

Ely, Nev., Jan. 20.—This city is still all excitement and rejoicing over the rescue of the three miners from the Alpha shaft of the Giroux mine. Simultaneously with the signal "hoist away," given when R. A. Bailey stepped into the bucket at the 100 foot level, a ringing cheer broke forth on the surface, echoes ran riot through the hills over and over again, proclaiming the glad tidings.

Two hundred people greeted the rescued men as they stepped from the mouth of the shaft. Bailey almost fainted as he was helped from the bucket. When being led from the shaft to the change house he inquired for his wife. He was told that she had been kept at home on account of the illness of one of their children, also that she preferred to greet her husband in her own home. MacDonald's brother stood foremost from the crowd when he was hoisted, and MacDonald's first words to him were, "Is that Arthur?" adding, "God, it's good to get out of that hellhole."

Matter-of-fact Brown's first words were: "Give me a chew of tobacco; I'm on the bum already," and, laughing, he was taken to the change room. Here all the men removed their working clothes and put on those left in the change room just before going down the shaft on the morning of December 4. Here in the small room was held the first reception. The rescued men were greeted by the hand clasps of old friends. The eyes of all were banded, for their long term of imprisonment in the gloomy drift had so weakened their eyes it was necessary to shield them from the light.

Bailey's eagerness to be again with his family soon led him to say he was able to walk home, a distance of half a mile. Two friends accompanied him. His welcome there is a story for the reader's imagination, but there is no happier family in the Robinson district. There has been no work of any kind done in the vicinity today. In fact it has been a "legal holiday" by general consent.

Apparently every man and child in the city of Ely has made an effort to make known their happiness over the rescue of the three miners. The men are much wrought up over their escape and attending excitement. Being recipients of attention from every one has prevented their telling any connected story of personal experiences under ground, and they have asked that no such requests be made of them. MacDonald said: "We thought we would never get out alive, but I have been, oh, so happily disappointed in that doubt that I can only think and feel my happiness now."

The widespread interest felt throughout the whole country for the welfare of the heroes is evidenced by the great number of telegrams received and sent out from the city concerning their rescue. A public reception is to be given the men at the Steptoe near the middle of the week. Other demonstrations in their honor will follow.
