

FARMERS' METHODS DISCUSSED AT THE ANNUAL INSTITUTE

To Be Successful the Modern Day Farmer Must Farm His
Lands in Scientific Manner
Not Slighting Anything.

HELD IN CAMBRIDGE CITY
YESTERDAY AND TODAY.

The Affair Is Attracting Much Interest as Many Very Excellent Papers and Addresses Are Being Heard.

Cambridge City, Ind., Jan. 23.—The annual farmers' institute opened Wednesday morning at the Masonic opera house. The audience was large. More than four hundred farmers from this and the surrounding counties were in attendance and a deep interest is being manifested in the session. Oliver Stewart of Dublin, acted as chairman of the morning session in the absence of the county chairman, Abner D. Bond, of Greensburg. R. L. Thompson of Lagrange county was the first speaker, his topic being "Success and Failure in Clover Raising," in which he was emphatic on the point of crop rotation and the great care that should be exercised in sowing the seed at the proper time, when the ground is in a suitable condition to bury and protect the seed.

A. O. Lockridge of Greencastle, discussed the subject, "Is the Drainage More Expensive than Profitable?" Good tile drainage is especially necessary in a clay soil as this class of ground is made more fertile by the drainage process as the texture of the soil is improved. Proper drainage also adds to the bearing facilities of the ground and likewise increases its value.

The value of the Purdue short course in agriculture was clearly explained by Arthur Toms, who brought out its many advantages, one of which is that it gives the farmer a chance to investigate and study farming from a scientific standpoint. It gives him new and advanced ideas and enables him to farm his land successfully and profitably.

The afternoon session opened with still a larger crowd than that of the morning period. A musical program arranged by Prof. Reese was a very interesting feature of the afternoon.

A. O. Lockridge talked on "Profitable Beef Production," declaring that cattle that are fed on grain are more profitable than those raised and prepared for the market on other foods. The profit in beef production on the high priced land of this section of the country must come from careful and close management and he suggests that the farmer who desires to produce beef profitably, should use great care in making a selection of his herd and be certain to secure high grade cattle. Steers of a uniform type and well developed are those to be desired.

R. L. Thompson gave his views on "Success and Failure in Hog Raising," in which address he said that some of the essentials in the raising of hogs are in making a selection of the dam and sire, both of which should be strong and well developed. The theory of cross breeding was advanced by Mr. Thompson in making a statement that he had better results in this manner, but it did not seem to meet the approval of many of the hog raisers present, on the grounds that the cross breeding is not any more to be desired in hog raising than it is in other lines of stock, and that the straight bred hogs develop into more perfect animals in every respect. Great care should be exercised in selecting the food for the young pigs, especially at the time of weaning, so that they will not take on fat too quickly before they have attained their growth.

Mrs. M. E. Mason read a very interesting paper on the subject of "Poultry on the Farm," in which she said that cleanliness was the secret of success in the raising of poultry and that the person who engages in it must study it thoroughly and also enjoy it to make it a successful enterprise.

A paper discussing the horse, was read by George Baker, showing that horse raising is a very profitable business for the farmer to engage in.

The sessions of today were very interesting.

FREE LOVE ADVOCATED BY THE PLAINTIFF

Defendant in Sensational Suit
Has Novel Defense.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Adrian C. Honore brother of Mrs. Potter Palmer and a member of Chicago's most exclusive clubs, has announced a novel defense to the breach of promise suit for $20,000 brought against him by Miss Virginia Rowden. Through depositions filed in his behalf in the superior court, Mr. Honore answers the allegations that he toyed with the affections of Miss Rowden and then refused to keep his promise to marry her, by the proposition that a woman who is an ardent follower of a "free-love" cult and who has a penchant for affections, would not permit herself to be tied down by the bonds of a conventional married life.

The suit, which was begun against Mr. Honore more than a year ago, has been placed upon Judge Abbott's trial calendar, and will be called as soon as the few cases ahead of it are disposed of.

Miss Rowden has promised to tell a highly salacious story of her wooing by Mr. Honore, in which midnight suppers, champagne, a furnished flat and automobile rides play an important part. That the evidence of the defense will be of an equally interesting nature is shown by several depositions filed in behalf of Mr. Honore in the superior court.

On the Job.

Amusing epigrams are common enough, but it is not often that a tombstone inscription is meant to carry a business advertisement. A West Virginia man tells of a singular one which may be seen in a certain cemetery. It was the idea of a widow of a man named Perkins, a partner in a commercial house known as Perkins & Parker. Soon after the decease of her spouse Mrs. Perkins married Mr. Parker, her late husband's business associate. The inscription reads:

"Sacred to the memory of James Perkins, for thirty years senior partner of the firm of Perkins & Parker, now Parker & Co.—Harper's Weekly.

Her Helpful Hint.

The honeymoon had waned, and the cupboard was bare.

"Don't worry, Mabel," said the romantic husband as he opened the piano. "Remember music is the food of love."

But the practical little wife shook her head.

"If you really think music is the food of love," she responded, "perhaps you'll step round and get the butcher to give you a beefsteak for a mere song!"—London Answers.

MRS. BRADLEY IS NOW PENILESS AND ASKS AID

With Her Four Children She Lives in Little Hut.

Salt Lake, Utah, January 23.—Mrs. Annie Bradley, who shot and killed former United States Senator Brown, of Utah, at the Raleigh Hotel, in Washington, D. C., December 8, 1906, and who was freed by a jury in the Capital City less than two months ago is penniless in this city with her four children. She has appealed to her friends for aid. She was a former resident of this city and here she met Brown. She returned, believing that she would be received with open arms.

"I am more in prison now than I was in Washington," said Mrs. Bradley last night. She has been shunned by all of her former women friends.

In a little hut on the outskirts of the city, Mrs. Bradley is living with her four children, two by her former husband and two that she claims are the sons of Brown.

MEN AND MACHINES.

The Limit of Human Speed Has About Been Reached.

One thing alone can intervene and put the curb on the desire for speed—man's powers of endurance. Already there are signs that it has almost reached its limit. The increase of nervous diseases, the spread of insanity, these and other warnings should serve as danger signals that the speed of modern life is excessive. The adjusting of a man's frame to rapidly changing conditions, great though it be, yet has its limits.

Machinery may be perfected to an incredible degree, but man—unless we are to conceive of him as becoming absolutely machine-like—will always have his limitations of flesh and blood. He will always be a fantastic creature subject to strange emotions, uncertain gusts of passion, sudden tricks of nerves or of physical exhaustion. Among the daily catastrophes from the lust of speed it is rare to find that it is the machinery which is at fault. It is the failure of the eye to transmit with sufficient rapidity the danger message to the brain or an error in judgment or a sudden nerve failure, one of these which brings about disaster. Man may perfect the machine, but he remains himself ever imperfect. —London Saturday Review.

Nurses Dread Lightning.

Of all people who are glad when the season of thunderstorms is past, none are more thankful than professional nurses.

"It isn't that we are so afraid of lightning ourselves," said a nurse in Roosevelt hospital, "but it has a harmful effect on our patients. Most sick people have an unreasonable fear of lightning. In cases of extreme weakness or nervousness a dozen flashes of blinding lightning reduce the patient to such a state of prostration that it takes extraordinary efforts on the part of the nurse to bring him around. If one sick person requires all that extra attention in a thunderstorm, just imagine the predicament of the nurse who has a whole ward full of them on her hands."—New York Press.

CRAZED MOTHER CARRIES CHILD'S CORPSE

Ran Through Streets of St. Louis Last Night.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 23.—A woman last night ran several blocks through St. Louis streets carrying in her arms the corpse of her six-year-old son, whom she had killed by accident.

After giving the son, Arthur, a tablespoonful of carbolic acid, which she mistook for medicine, Mrs. Henry Milleke, of 4550 Newport avenue, carried him to a doctor's office, a block away. There the boy died.

The mother, crazed with grief, picked up the body and ran with it until neighbors intercepted her and guided her to the door of her home.
