VIGOROUS DEFENSE OF
POLICIES IS MADE BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Interest of the Standard Oil Trust and of certain notorious railroad combinations, but they also defend other individuals and corporations of great wealth that have been guilty of wrong doing. From the railroad-rate law to the pure-food law, every measure for honesty in business that has been passed during the last six years has been opposed by these men on its passage and in its administration with every resource that bitter and unscrupulous craft could suggest and the command of almost unlimited money secure. But for the last year the attack has been made with most bitterness upon the actual administration of the law. The extraordinary violence of the assaults upon our policy contained in these speeches, editorials, articles, advertisements, and pamphlets, and the enormous sums of money spent in these various ways, give a fairly accurate measure of the anger and terror which our public actions have caused the corrupt men of vast wealth to feel in the very marrow of their being. When we are able to put the real wrong door in prison, this what we strive to do; this is what we have actually done with some very wealthy criminals, who, moreover, represented that most baneful of all alliances, the alliance between the corruption of organized politics and the corruption of high finance.

The keynote of all these attacks upon the effort to secure honesty in business and in politics is well expressed in brazen protests against any effort for the moral regeneration of the business world, on the ground that it is unnatural, unwarranted, and injurious, and that business panic is the necessary penalty for such effort to secure business honesty. The morality of such a plea is precisely as great as if made on behalf of the men caught in a gambling establishment when that gambling establishment is raided by the police. If such words mean anything they mean that those whose sentiments they represent stand against the effort to bring about a moral regeneration of business, which will prevent a repetition of the insurance, banking, and street railroad scandals in New York; a repetition of the Chicago and Alton deal; a repetition of the combination between certain professional politicians, certain professional labor leaders, and certain big financiers, from the disgrace of which San Francisco has just been rescued.

The outcry against stopping dishonest practices among grondeers who happen to be wealthy is precisely similar to the outcry raised against every effort for cleanliness, decency and city government, because, forsooth, it will "hurt business." The "business" which is hurt by the movement for honesty is the kind of business which, in the long run, it pays the country to have hurt. The laws must in the future be administered as they are now being administered, so that the department of justice may continue to be, what it now is, in very fact the department of justice, where so far as our ability permits, justice is meted out with an even hand to great and small, rich and poor, weak and strong. Moreover, there should be no delay in supplementing the laws now on the statute books by the enactment of further legislation as outlined in the message I sent to congress on its assembling. Under the existing laws, very much, has been actually accomplished during the past six years, and it has been shown by actual experience that they can be enforced against the wealthiest corporation and the richest and most powerful manager or manipulator of that corporation, as rigorously and fearlessly as against the humblest offender. Above all, they have been enforced against the very wrongdoers and agents of wrongdoers who have for so many years gone scot-free and flouted the laws with impunity, against great law-defying corporations of immense wealth, which, until within the last half dozen years, have treated themselves and have expected others to treat them as beyond and above all possible check from the law.

It is especially necessary to secure to the representatives of the national government full power to deal with the great corporations engaged in interstate commerce, and above all, with the great interstate common carriers. The first course is to abandon all effort to oversee and control their actions in the interest of the general public and to permit a return to the utter lack of control which would obtain if they were left to the common law.

We have just passed through two months of acute financial stress. At any such time it is a sad fact that entirely innocent people suffer from no fault of their own; and everyone must feel the keenest sympathy for the large body of honest business men, of honest investors, of honest wage-workers, who suffer because involved in a crash for which they are in no way responsible. At such a time there is a natural tendency on the part of many men to feel gloomy and frightened at the outlook; but there is no justification for this feeling. There is no nation so absolutely sure of ultimate success as ours.

I do not for a moment believe that the actions of this administration have brought on business distress; so far as this is due to local and not worldwide causes, and to the actions of any particular individuals, it is due to the speculative folly and flagrant dishonesty of a few men of great wealth, who seek to shield themselves from the effects of their own wrongdoing by ascribing its results to the actions of those who have sought to put a stop to the wrongdoing.

On behalf of all our people, on behalf no less of the honest man of means than of the honest man who earns each day's livelihood by that day's sweat of his brow, it is necessary to insist upon honesty in business and in politics.

Infants and children are constantly needing a laxative. It is important to know what to give them. Their stomachs and bowels are not strong enough for salts, purgative waters or cathartics. Give them a mild laxative, gentle, laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which sells at the small price of 50 cents or $1 at drug stores. It is the greatest remedy for you to have in the house for your children when they need it.

list upon honesty in business and politics alike, in all walks of life in big things and in little things; upon just and fair dealing as between man and man.

In the work we of this generation are in, there is, thanks be to the Almighty, no danger of bloodshed and no use for the sword; but there is a grave need of those stern qualities shown alike by the men of the North and the men of the South in the dark days when each valiantly battled for the light as it was given each to see the light. Their spirit should be our spirit, as we strive to bring nearer the day when greed and trickery and cunning shall be trampled under foot by those who fight for the righteousness that exalteth a nation.

RACCOONS STOLEN FROM THE GLEN

A few nights ago some unknown man made a raid on the zoo at Glen Miller and stole the four raccoons who have for two seasons past been greatly admired by the thousands of people who have visited the beautiful park. Last fall these coons were placed in the winter quarters provided for all the city's pets. The thief succeeded in removing them from their pen by ripping open the screening at the front of the cage. The police are now looking for the thief and if he is captured it will go hard with him as he will have to face charges of grand larceny, trespass and malicious destruction of property.

The animal colony at the glen was for a time considerably agitated by the theft of their fellow captives, but the excitement is now over and they are patiently awaiting the approach of the warm season when their human friends will come out to call on them. The only animal at the glen who has no knowledge of the theft of the raccoons, is the big black bear. He has been peacefully sleeping in his den since last November and the robbery will not be reported to him until April or May, at which time he is expected to come out of Rip Van Winkle.

Last year the board of public works promised to add to the zoological collection at Glen Miller, but no new animals were purchased. Today President C. W. Merrill stated that this year the board positively would place a large monkey family at the park. Monkeys are always popular, because of their comical antics, and the addition of the simians will be a popular move.

If you are troubled with sick headache, constipation, indigestion, offensive breath or any disease arising from stomach trouble, get a 50-cent bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is positively guaranteed to cure you.
