

WOULD PAY TO INSTALL PLANT

Engineer Says County Would
Save By Putting in Jail
Heating Plant.

DISAGREES WITH DYNES.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER CLAIMS THAT IT IS CHEAPER TO HEAT
JAIL FROM THE COURT HOUSE
PLANT—GENERAL DEFECTS.

A well known local engineer, who is an authority on heating plants, stated today that notwithstanding the statement made by County Commissioner John M. Dynes, that it was cheaper to heat the jail by the court house heating plant than to install a heating plant at the jail, he would insist that the county would save money by placing a small heating plant at the jail, and at the same time, that installation would be better heated than it now is. "I am willing to give bond that by the plan I propose I can heat the jail better and at less cost than under the present arrangement. All that I shall ask of the county is an annual check for the amount of money I save the county in fuel expenses," said the engineer referred to.

He states that at the present time it takes two hundred tons each winter to heat the jail. By the establishment of a small sectional boiler heating plant at the jail he says that the institution could be heated with only sixty tons of coal.

If the steam pipes from the court house to the jail were placed in concrete conduits, instead of being placed unprotected in the ground as they now are, the county would save money, contends the engineer, but even if this method was adopted it would not reduce the fuel expense like the establishment of a small plant at the jail.

At the present time the heating pipes to the jail are so cold that it takes forty pounds pressure, day and night, to overcome the condensation and force steam to the jail.

Washington and Harvard.

Washington received from Harvard college the honorary degree of doctor of laws. The distinction was voted by the president and fellows of the college at the meeting at Watertown April 3, 1776, "as an expression of the gratitude of this college for his eminent services in the cause of his country and to their society." The signers were President Samuel Langdon, Nathaniel Appleton, John Winthrop, Andrew Elliot, Samuel Cooper and John Wadsworth.

Didn't Know.

There are some persons who cannot take a joke, but Snuggins is not one of them. A "friend" acquainted with Snuggins' frequent changes of abode asked him which he thought was the cheaper—to move or to pay rent.

"I can't tell you, my dear boy," replied Snuggins. "I have always moved."

THREE SERVICES SUNDAY OF INTEREST

Evangelists Hobson and Small
Packed the Grace M.
E. Church.

REFORMED GAMBLER TALKS

"JACK" WARD OF ANDERSON, IND.
TOLD THE MEN OF HIS LIFE OF SIN AND SORROW WITH TELL-ING EFFECT.

Sunday was a great day for Methodism in Richmond. Two great audiences, one a men's meeting at 3 o'clock and the other a mass meeting at 7:30 o'clock, packed the Grace M. E. church to its full capacity. In the evening services the gallery and all possible standing room was occupied, many being compelled to stand throughout the evening. But this did not seem to deter the interest for but few left the church before the close of the long service, and Rev. Tilman Hobson held the vast audience as if by magic.

A feature of the evening service was a large chorus choir composed of the singers from that church and First M. E. church, which, under the direction of Mr. Small, added interest by their gospel songs.

Rev. Hobson again preached upon the general subject which has been adopted as the slogan of the revival, "A Square Deal."

In his discourse the speaker took occasion to defend Christianity against the onslaughts of infidelity and skepticism. The most important feature of the address was the issuing of a challenge for the proof that infidelity has ever accomplished anything in the world for charity, philanthropy, or anything of a humanitarian beneficence. Rev. Hobson also derided the idea maintained by infidelity that there is no future state. Many illustrations were used in driving a point home, all of which were aptly chosen.

At the men's meeting in the afternoon at 3 o'clock, Mr. Jack Ward, a reformed gambler and notorious drunkard of Anderson, spoke for nearly two hours of his personal experiences as a bowery type for more than forty years. Although illiterate, yet he told in a simple, straightforward way, his world-wide wanderings and how he was finally induced to abandon his dissipation and vice and become a respectable citizen of Anderson. The simplicity and honesty of the man appealed to the men of the audience and many signified their intentions of "cutting out booze" and all forms of licentiousness.

There were several conversions in the two churches during the day and a number of accessions. The meetings will continue throughout the week at Grace M. E. church and later will be transferred to First M. E. church, corner of Fourteenth and Main streets.

A PRESENT DAY UTOPIA.

Moore's Island, the Happiest and Fairest Spot on Earth.

Hugo Parton, writing in the Outlook Magazine, says that the happiest and most beautiful spot on earth today is the island of Moore, one of the Society Islands, in the south seas. As a contrast to strenuous American methods this description sounds alluring:

"Whenever you are thirsty a word will send a lithe brown boy scrambling up a tall palm tree trunk, and in two minutes a green coconut is ready for you to quaff—the nectar of the Polynesian gods. It is worth the trip down here to eat the native white bread, you get at every meal things you never tasted before, and each seems better than its predecessor; to see your dinner of fresh water shrimps, sharks' fins and roasted sea urchins. The bananas you eat—there are eleven varieties—baked, raw, fried, dried—grow a few rods back in the valley; ditto the breadfruit, the pineapples and about everything else on the board. It's nice to have your morning coffee grown in the back yard. Grass grows in such profusion they are used as pig food, grated coconut is fed to hens, while sensitive plant is considered excellent fodder for cattle.

"For perfection of the human body the Tahitian is unexcelled, if, indeed, he is anywhere equaled. They are a large race, both men and women being noticeably taller and more fully developed than Anglo-Saxons. I doubt if any Society Islander ever went through a whole day in his life without having a wreath of flowers on his head or a blouse behind his back. The love of flowers is innate with man, woman and child. They can't pass through a patch of woods without emerging with a garland. Every gay mood calls for flowers on the maidens, in their hair, behind their ears, and their life is an almost unbroken sequence of gay moods. Scarcely a native on the island of Moorea can speak a sentence of English, but every one you meet greets you with a courteous smile and the welcoming word 'la-ora-na' (Yorana).

Poetry Defined.

George P. Morris, the author of "Woodman, Spare That Tree" was a favorite of the New York militia and a favorite with all who knew him. Mrs. Sherwood in her reminiscences tells how another poet associated the general with a definition of poetry.

Once Fitz-Greene Halleck, the author of "Marco Bozzaris," called upon her in New York in his old age, and she asked him to define for her what was poetry and what was prose.

He replied: "When General Morris commands his brigade and says, 'Soldiers, draw your swords!' he talks prose. When he says 'Soldiers, draw your willing swords!' he talks poetry."

THE FRILLED LIZARD.

It Carries an Umbrella and Has a Fighting Tail.

The frilled lizard is found in Australian woods, being tolerably abundant in north Queensland and the Kimberley district of western Australia. It lives on beetles such as are found on the tree trunks. It is about three feet long, measured from head to tail point. What makes it remarkable consists of two things: its hurried walk and its fighting tail.

It carries a sort of natural umbrella top about its neck, which it elevates suddenly with an alarming effect even to ordinary lizard killing dogs, scaring them as an umbrella opened in the face of a charging bull; hence it is called the frilled lizard. Its teeth are not of much use as a defense against a vigorous animal, but when it fights it uses its long, lithe tail in a way to bring long bruises on one's hands. In fact, could it be properly trained, it might serve as an automatic switch, which, like the magic rub-a-dub-dub stick, would at the word administer a thrashing to the disobedient child.

From the scientific point of view the creature's peculiar method of ambulation is most interesting, because it presents an absurdly grotesque appearance at such times, more especially from the rear. It walks bipedally on two feet, like a bird, and so much does it resemble a bird in its walk that it seems to be the connecting link between the ancestors of birds and the lizards of today.

HANGED TO MUSIC.

Doomed Man Sang "I Want to Be an Angel" With the Crowd.

"In the early days of Wyoming, when there were but a few churches and many infirmarys of law, a man of the name of Barstow, who never knew fear and was a devout Christian, was elected to the office of sheriff," said a citizen of that state. "Soon after Barstow entered upon the duties of his office a man was convicted for a capital crime.

"The fact that there was no minister within reach preyed upon the mind of the sheriff, who undertook to supply the lack by holding an hour's Bible reading in the condemned man's cell and praying with him. As the time for the hanging approached Barstow became possessed with the fear that he had not acquitted himself of the spiritual responsibility devolving upon him and devised a programme that was new and unique. After the victim of the law's mandate was placed upon the platform and everything was in readiness the sheriff prayed long and fervently. Then he called for some one to start a hymn, and a man near the platform began the only one he knew, 'I Want to Be an Angel,' in which the prisoner joined.

"As the last verse was sung the sheriff busied himself adjusting the noose, and immediately upon its conclusion the trap was sprung."

Geography Set to Music.

"I don't know," said a Bangor man the other day, "what their methods of teaching are in the schools these days, but I was surprised not long ago when talking to a youngster to find that he couldn't tell how many counties there were in the state of Maine, nor could he name them all without looking up the information in his geography. He was a bright boy, too, and I wondered. When I went to school we learned the names of the sixteen counties to the tune of 'Yankee Doodle,' and to this day I have never forgotten how the class sounded singing the useful little jingle. It went this way:

"Sixteen counties in the state—Cumberland and Franklin, Piscataquis and Somerset, Arisaetook, Androscoggin, Sagadahoc and Kennebec, Lincoln, Knox and Hancock, Waldo, Washington and York, Oxford and Penobscot."

Diminutive Aztecs.

The feminine direct descendants of the famous Aztecs are tiny creatures, exquisitely formed and refined in feature. They carry the head with the unbearing grace of the full blooded Indian; their skins are not red, but a clear, smooth copper color that shines like gold in the sun; their hair is coarse and black as ebony, and they are decorated with bright feathers and gay ornaments. These women make the most wonderful pottery that comes to us from Mexico, for they have kept the old Aztec forms and decorations in their art, and they also weave wonderful baskets and do exquisite embroidery.

Order.

Order is a lovely nymph, the child of beauty and wisdom; her attendants are comfort, neatness and activity; her abode is the valley of happiness; she is always to be found when sought for, and never appears so lovely as when compared with her opponent, disorder.
