OUTLOOK COMMENTS ON LOCAL SITUATION

Points Out Richmond as Being Beautified by Art.

The last Outlook contains a very interesting article under the title "Education in Ugliness." It speaks of the environments of man and how they influence human lives in a speaking manner. It says that we of the Western world have only been appealed to by abstract beauty as a secondary matter, yet we have evolved some art and some architecture worthy of respect. One of the most interesting features of the article is the mention of local art exhibits. The paragraph reads as follows:

"So, too, we find, that the mature minds of men and women are immediately responsive to the influences of surrounding beauty and orderliness. The art exhibitions begun six years ago in a hard-won school building in Richmond, Ind., now attracts annually a vast attendance, and each year that community buys for itself one or more good paintings, aided, wonderful to relate, by an appropriation from the city treasury."

Grim Comedy.

A certain young actress was constantly irritated by the pompous behavior of the actor-manager in whose company she was playing.

"Now, Miss Blank," said the great one, "you'll have an opportunity to show your talents in another direction. I've cast you for a dandy part, small but fat. And you'll have a chance to study me in a new role. You've never seen me do farce comedy, have you?"

"Yes, I have," contradicted Miss Blank; "I've seen your Macbeth."

The Pain of It.

"I wouldn't have minded being whipped so much," said the young culprit, "if the teacher hadn't said that my punishment hurt him more than it did me."

"That oughtn't to make you feel any worse."

"Well, it did. What he punished me for was telling stories."

Barred Out.

"Don't you feel well?" asked a friend. "Not very," answered Mr. Cumox. "Why don't you go home?"

"I can't. Mother and the girls are giving a tea, and I'm not invited."

RIDERS ARE FLEEING

Calloway County Desperadoes Join the Armed Trigg Band.

MAY NEVER BE CAPTURED.

Murray, Ky., April 18.—Calloway county night riders are fleeing from the officers and they are reported to be crossing the Tennessee river in the eastern part of the county to Trigg county, where they are joining the notorious band that does not know fear.

The deputy sheriffs and soldiers who returned with prisoners late yesterday evening failed to get all the men for whom they had warrants. Farmers told the officers that the night riders were on the run and it is likely that some of them will never be captured.

Protection has been promised all Calloway night riders who go to the Trigg band, and confessions in the hands of the county judge bear out the statement that the Trigg night riders are desperate men and heavily armed.

He has been a professor in various other colleges, but owing to impaired health, was compelled to take lighter work. He speaks twelve different languages. His parents were Russians by birth, but he himself was born just over the line in Germany. His father was a patriot, and was imprisoned in Siberia. But he made his escape and remained in Germany.

SEA AND LAND.

The Way They Meet and Clash and Finally Harmonize.

In "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils," translated from the Swedish of Selma Lagerlof by Vohna Swanstrom Howard, is the following pretty description of how sea and land meet:

You see that sea and land can meet in many different ways. In many places the land comes down toward the sea with flat, tufted meadows, and the sea meets the land with flying sand, which piles up in mounds and drifts. It appears as though they both disliked each other so much that they only wished to show the poorest they possessed. But it can also happen that when the land comes toward the sea it raises a wall of hills in front of it, as though the sea were something dangerous. When the land does this, the sea comes up to it with dery dery and beats and roars and lashes against the rocks and looks as if it would tear the land hill to pieces.

But in Biekinge it is altogether different when sea and land meet. There the land breaks itself up into points and islands and islets, and the sea divides itself into fords and bays and sounds, and it is perhaps this which makes it look as if they must meet in happiness and harmony.

Think now first and foremost of the sea! Far out it lies desolate and empty and big and has nothing else to do but to roll its gray billows. When it comes toward the land it happens across the first obstacle. This it immediately overpowers, tears away everything green and makes it as gray as itself. Then it meets still another obstacle. With this it does the same thing. And still another—yes, the same thing happens to this also. It is stripped and plundered as if it had fallen into robbers' hands. Then the obstacles come nearer and nearer together, and then the sea must understand that the land sends toward it her little children in order to move it to pity. It also becomes more friendly the farther in it comes, rolls its waves less high, moderates its storms, lets the green things stay in cracks and crevices, separates itself into small sounds and inlets and becomes at last so harmless in the land that little boats dare venture out upon it. It certainly cannot recognize itself, so mild and friendly has it grown.

LEMARE RECITAL MAY BE GIVEN

Rutherford B. Jones Is Promoting a Musical.

Rutherford B. Jones says if local persons wish to have the opportunity to hear Edwin H. Lemare, the noted English organist in a recital on the organ at the Reid Memorial church, it will be necessary to decide the matter at once. It has been suggested that the date of the proposed recital be Tuesday evening, April 28. To secure such an attraction those persons who have been communicated with, are requested to respond to Mr. Jones. In regard to the proposed recital Mr. Jones said:

"Mr. Lemare is heralded by press notices all over the world as one, if not the greatest living organist, and the opportunity to hear such an artist as Mr. Lemare on such an organ as the Reid Memorial, does not come frequently."

"The committee sent out a number of announcements with addressed return postals enclosed, and those who received same will help greatly if this matter be attended to at once. Do not postpone longer. Fill out the card and mail it at once so the committee can have them not later than Saturday."

"Of course it is not to be supposed that everyone in Richmond who might want to hear Mr. Lemare has received a notice, and the committee would be pleased to hear from any such by phone or card."
