TRUTH SHALL REIGN.

A democratic subscriber of the Palladium, by a chance question, has given us an opportunity of expressing our views on true journalism, and as we apply those views to the columns of this newspaper. This man's question was, "How did it happen that the Palladium, the republican organ of Wayne county, devoted so much space to Mr. Marshall's speech, and to the democratic banquet?" The answer to that is that the Palladium, although a party organ, is above all, a newspaper.

It is the function of the true newspaper to print everything that happens and furthermore, to print such happenings just as they occurred. Time was when it was considered the duty of political organs in reporting the happenings of political opponents to distort the facts as much as possible in order to place them in an unfavorable light. This applied not only to the editorial columns, but also to the news columns. In other words, it was considered—and is considered in some localities today—perfectly square and above board to lie in the news columns of a newspaper in order to undermine political opponents. But the day of that kind of thing has passed.

Journalism of today has a higher mission than stooping to the use of lies to boost the fortunes of any political party. A newspaper can still be a party organ and yet not lower itself or its editor in the esteem of the reading public, whether that public be composed of republicans, democrats, socialists or prohibitionists. Modern journalism as typified in the Palladium, seeks to report all news happenings, whether they be of a political nature or not, just as they happen. In other words, the man or woman who pays us ten cents a week for the Palladium is entitled to the truth of every happening insofar as we can obtain it. The way in which the big democratic banquet was reported in the Palladium, illustrates how closely we hew to the line in our endeavors to give you the truth and nothing but the truth, to the best of our ability.

"If a newspaper expects to carry weight in its community it must stick to the truth. The news columns are for impartial news.

It is in the editorial columns that the editor, republican or democratic, should express his views, and by logic and precise statements seek to convince his readers to his way of thinking, or, better still, to cause the readers to think out their various problems of the body politic for themselves. So, Mr. Democratic Subscriber, when you read the news columns of the Palladium, you are reading news independently written and free from any attempt to influence your judgment. And the same applies to you, Mr. Republican Subscriber. Where we will try and get you in the editorial columns which, true to the traditions of the old Palladium, will be written from the republican standpoint as long as that standpoint can be maintained by fair means. But even at that, Mr. Democratic Subscriber, you can afford to take the paper for, aside from the value of its news columns to you, you will not be the worse off by reading what the other side has to say editorially in support of your political opponents.

A FATAL ACCIDENT

Two Men Killed and Others
Scalded at National Cash
Register Plant.

STEAM PIPE BLEW UP.

Dayton, Ohio, June 4.—Two men were instantly killed and three injured, one fatally, by the bursting of an eighteen-inch steam pipe in the boiler room of the National Cash Register Company while repairs to a leaking pipe were being made by a force of plumbers.

The dead were Elton Arment, of 218 Gunkel avenue, and John Kissling, of 126 Bolton street. The pipes which convey the steam from the boiler room are 18 inches in diameter, and one of them having leaked, the men were at work repairing it when the explosion occurred. While they were tightening the screws of theasket, the pipe burst at the joint. A pressure of 150 pounds to the inch is carried by the pipes and a loud report followed. Scalding steam escaped, and those who were not burned fatally were frightfully seared. Kissling and Arment suffered fearfully the few minutes they lived after the accident.

The accident is the most distressing that has taken place at this plant.

HOW IT SPREADS.

The first package of Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid (used internally) cured a case of Piles that was considered hopeless.

The news spread and the demand prompted Dr. J. S. Leonard, of Lincoln, Neb., the discoverer, to prepare it for general use. It will cure any case of Piles.

WORDS BY MILLIONS

Testimony in Government's Suit Against the Standard Oil Lengthy.

JUDGES HAVE A HARD TASK.

New York, June 4.—More than 2,000,000 words of testimony have been taken already in the government suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company, now on before Special Examiner Franklin Perkins. Before the hearing comes to a close another million words will doubtless be added to the record.

This is said to be the largest mass of testimony ever gathered in a single case, for not only will the record contain in excess of three million words of testimony, but several thousand pages of exhibits. The number of words included in these exhibits will add still another million words to the record.

All this mass of testimony will have to be gone over by the three judges. It is said to be the largest contract of the kind that a triumvirate of judges has ever been called upon to wade through. The three judges who will have to read the evidence are Adams, Sanborn and Hook.

LANDSLIDE OF VOTES PUTS MISS WINE AHEAD

She Is Now Close to the Enviably 100,000 Mark and Is Expected to Pass It in the Next Few Hours—
Prospects of Trip Enthuse Candidates.

Miss Jennie Wine of this city, promises to be the first candidate in the Palladium's Niagara Falls and Canada trip contest to break over the 100,000 mark. Yesterday she handed in enough ballots to bring her within less than 2,000 ballots from this coveted mark. Incidentally the landslide of votes that she deposited with the contest editor yesterday gave her the lead in the race, which lead Miss Ida Beeson of Greensfork has held for a few days. The prospect of spending eight to ten days this summer in the cool northland is causing the candidates to redouble their efforts to be one of the lucky eight who will make the trip.

The regular ballots will appear in each issue, entitling the lady voted for to one vote. Remember you can enter the contest any time you wish to, so "get busy and keep busy." The conditions of the contest are as follows:

CONDITIONS.

BANK CLOSES DOOR

Concern at Warsaw Forced To Suspend by Auditor
Of State.

INSECURE LOANS MADE.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 4.—The Kosciusko County bank of Warsaw, one of the oldest private banks in Northern Indiana, was closed last evening by Auditor of State Billheimer and Bank Inspector Camp.

Loans to officers and directors and irresponsible concerns are said to have led to the present condition of the bank. The last examination, which was made only a few days ago, showed that $17,000 had been loaned to officers and a large amount to relatives of officers and directors, the loans to relatives of officers being without adequate security. This examination showed also that the bank held $31,000 in "state" paper, and had over $10,000 of over drafts. Cash items of $7,000 were carried, but many of these were not properly cash items. The bank held judgments amounting to $12,000, many of which, it is asserted, are not good. The bank owes $6,000 in notes, it is stated, and $12,000 to other banks. It also holds deposits of public money amounting to about $45,000.

It was stated at the Auditor's office in Indianapolis, by R. B. Oglesbee, head of bank department, that the stockholders of the bank would be able to make up the shortage, and that the depositors would lose nothing.

Mrs. S. Joyce, Claremont, N. H., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy. It cured me of a severe case of kidney trouble of several years' standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." A. G. Luken & Co.

THE SCRAP BOOK

Courtship in the Cumberland.

As I sat on the doorstep smoking with a Cumberland mountaineer one evening, writes a traveler, a young man about two and twenty came out of the woods and slowly approached us. He was barefooted and wore only shirt and trousers. The mountaineer was telling me about how he was kicked by a mule, but he broke off to salute:

"Howdy, Abe! What yo' all want around yere?"

"Eun got suathin to say," replied the young man as he almost turned his back on us.

"Then shoot 'er off."

"Him's a stranger," said Abe as he jerked his head toward me.

"That don't count. Waster borry the mew!"

"Noap."

"Waster borry the gun?"

"Noap."

"Say, Abe, mebbe yo'un ar' hard up and want the loan of a dollar or some bacon or meal?"

"Noap."

"Then what on airth do yo' want?"

"Waster marry Linda."

"Waster marry Linda, eh? Her yo' coted her?"

"Yep."

"Hev yo' axed her?"

"Yep."

"Then why in thunder don't yo' marry her? And, stranger, that mew he jess whirled on me and kicked with both feet and lifted me clean over the brush fence afore I knowed what was up."

"How to Live Long.

Worry less, work more; ride less, walk more; drink less, breathe more; eat less, chew more; preach less, practice more.

He Knew.

"I want some collars for my husband," said a lady in a department store, "but I am afraid I have forgotten the size."

"Thirteen and a half, ma'am?" suggested the clerk.

"That's it! How on earth did you know?"

"Gentlemen who let their wives put their collars for 'em are almost always about that size, ma'am."—Everybody's.

The Making of a Journalist.

When Joseph B. McCullagh was editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat he was annoyed by a member of the staff who was continually late. But the young man always had an excuse—he overslept, they failed to call him, the cars were blocked, etc.

Finally McCullagh issued an order that no more excuses would be accepted and that unless the young man came in on time he was to be discharged.

On the very next day the loiterer was tardy again by forty-five minutes. He was sent to Mr. McCullagh.

"Well," said McCullagh, "you know what's going to happen to you."

"I suppose so, but I assure you it wasn't my fault."

"You've put in about every possible excuse, but before I fire you I would like to know, just for curiosity, what your excuse is."

"It was this way: I got up early, determined to get to the office in time. I went into a negro barber shop to be shaved. When the barber was half through a band came along, and he couldn't resist the impulse to follow it. It was almost an hour before he came back, and I had to wait for him."

"Young man," said McCullagh, chuckling, "I'll give you another chance. I want you to write fiction for the Sunday paper."

And Everybody Laughed.

The wife of an army officer who has been stationed in Cuba recently returned to Washington and was at luncheon at the White House. She was enthusiastic about the Pearl of the Antilles and told many picturesque stories of her sojourn there in which the president was deeply interested.

"Oh, Mr. President, were you ever in Cuba? You certainly should go there!" she exclaimed.

And she wondered why everybody laughed.

Very Much In View.

"You were at Bar Harbor, I believe, in the summer?" asked the society woman of the actress.

"Yes," said the actress.

"And did you see much of my daughter there?"

"Rather! She wore a bathing suit in the morning, riding bloomers in the afternoon and low neck at night."

EXAMPLE.

We scatter seeds with careless hand
And dream we ne'er shall see them more.

But for a thousand years
Their fruit appears

In weeds that mar the land
Or beautiful store.

The seeds we do, the words we say,
Into still air they seem to fleet.

We count them ever past,
But they shall last—

In the dread judgment they
And we shall meet.

I charge thee by the years gone by,
For the love's sake of brethren dear,

Keep thou the one true way
In work and play.

Let in that world their cry
Of woe thou hear.

—John Keble.

Porouses.

"That is a pretty big buckwheat cake for a boy of your size," said papa at breakfast to Jimmy-boy.

"It looks big," said Jimmy, "but really it isn't. It's got lots of porouses in it."

A Tragedy Averted.

A gentleman unexpectedly took a friend home to dine with him. Before dinner his wife took her husband aside and impressed upon him that when the sherry in the decanter was exhausted he must not ask his friend to take any more, as there was none in the house.

The husband promised to remember and act with all due discretion. When the sherry was exhausted, however, the husband in a fit of mental aberration pressed more upon him. The wife looked distressed, and the visitor declined. After the visitor had departed the lady said reproachfully to her husband, "How could you press him to take more sherry when I had already warned you there was none in the house?"

"I am very sorry, dear," said the patient husband, "but I forgot all about it."

"How could you?" she replied.

"What do you suppose I was kicking you under the table for?"

"It wasn't me you kicked," said her husband.

A "Lettle" Absentminded.

Rufus Choate once endeavored to make a witness give an illustration of absentmindedness.

"Wait," said the witness cautiously, "I should say that a man who thought he'd left his watch to him an' took it out'n his pocket to see if he had time to go home to get it—I should say that that feller was a lettle absentminded."
