NEGRO VOTERS HAVE NO FAITH IN DEMOCRATS

why the negroes should depart from their support of the republican party, the following:

"We went to Chicago with the avowed purpose of heartily supporting the republican party should it return to the principles upon which it was founded.

"But when, on reaching Chicago, we found that more than two-thirds of the delegates to the convention were office-holders appointed by President Roosevelt and pledged to carry out his policy of destroying all those who oppose him, whether they were good men or bad, in the right or in the wrong—and when we learned from statements repeatedly made by Mr. Roosevelt's representatives at the convention that he had decided to recognize the 'Lily White' faction in the party with the avowed purpose of eventually eliminating the negro from politics in the South, in the hope of building up there a strong republican organization, and when no efforts on our part or on the part of the old line white republicans could induce Mr. Roosevelt's delegates to pledge the party to reinstate the discharged negro soldiers who are innocent of participation in the shooting-up of Brownsville, we decided, after repeated and lengthy conferences with the more than 200 representatives assembled in Chicago from all parts of America, to oppose with all our might and main the election of William H.

Taft to the presidency of the United States.

Waldron's Views.

"Every intelligent, self-respecting negro knows that he will be read out of the party if Mr. Roosevelt's policy triumphs next November and Mr. Taft is elected.

"In order to prevent this and to secure for the race justice and fair play in the future, the negro must defeat Mr. Roosevelt's candidate and to make sure of this the negroes must cast their votes for Mr. Bryan.

"The anti-Taft campaign committee of our league has advised those who do not feel that they can do this to remain away from the polls, or vote for some other anti-Taft candidate."

PROTESTS AGAINST HIS ARRAIGNMENT

all wagon scales were painted a bright orange. On several of the wagons it is said there is no sign of a seal or indication that there was a seal on the scales before they were painted.

One local merchant who has been having ice delivered to his establishment by Wagon No. 3 has for some time been having a clerk taking account of the wagon scales of the amount of ice delivered each day to be certain that he was receiving all he paid for. This merchant is now aware of the fact that the scales on this wagon have probably been defective for some time.

HORSE MAKES WILD DASH WITH RIG

One Young Woman Slightly Injured.

Two young men and two young women, all residents of Fountain City, were in a runaway accident yesterday afternoon on North Tenth street north of the railroad. While the horse was drinking at a public watering trough the bridle slipped off. Immediately the animal dashed across the street and the rig collided with a stone abutment. One young woman was thrown out and the rig was badly smashed. It is understood that the young woman who was thrown out was not badly injured. After the accident the horse was captured, hitched to a borrowed rig and the young people continued their journey home. It was impossible to learn the names of those who figured in the exciting event.

PARK DAMAGED.

Glen Miller Trees Injured by Heavy Winds.

Superintendent Klopp of Glen Miller park stated today the heavy wind storms have been damaging to the trees and roads in the park. Three large trees have been blown down and hundreds of limbs and branches have been scattered about. The declivities in the roadways are so steep in many places that the rushing waters cut deep gullies and trenches in the surface.

LEGISLATOR IS "JUST A HORRID MAN"

Puts Ban on Peekaboo Waists
And Rainbow Stockings.

Atlanta, Ga., July 20.—Representative Glenn, who introduced the bill in the Georgia legislature to prevent women from wearing rainbow stockings, peekaboo waists and other alluring apparel, alleging that by such devices men were frequently trapped into matrimony is being overwhelmed with threatening letters from women in various parts of the country.

Some of the letters are violent in tone. Three letters from this city go so far as to say that Glenn ought to be killed.

Glenn seems to take the letters seriously, and has asked protection of the legislature.

FRIGHTFUL CARNAGE AT GLEN MILLER

Young Coons Killed and Eaten
By Elders.

Harry Meek, township assessor, has presented the zoo at Glen Miller park with a coyote, which has been placed in the cage with the gray wolf. The coyote is much smaller than his more savage cousin. The wolf has shown no inclination to abuse the coyote. The number of coons in the park has been kept very low in the last two years owing to the tendencies of the older members of the family. Young coons are killed and eaten by the older ones and as the result all the young ones that have been born in the past few years have been destroyed before gaining strength to give evidence of their right for existence. They have not even had a fighting chance.

BOOKWORMS.

They Are Not Worms at All, but Very Intrusive Insects.

The name bookworm is made to cover an army of little creatures of various sizes, shapes and kinds which can be found in books. Really no one of them is a worm, though perhaps the fish moth and silver fish come nearer to it than any of the others. There are the book scorpions and mites, which are not insects, but are primarily carnivorous.

Their presence in books may be due to the fact that they find there animal as well as vegetable food. This is certainly true of the scorpions, which feed on mites, book lice and other small insects. The book lice, cockroach, silver fish and fish moth can have no reason for infesting books except their liking for farnaceous substances such as are used in and about the labels and bindings of books. The damage done by them is largely confined to the exterior or interior of the bindings themselves.

The white ants feed principally on wood, and in and about books there is more or less wood which is to the liking of these voracious feeders. The moths and beetles are the borers and burrowers. They seek retired places to lay their eggs, where the larvae will have plenty of food at hand when hatched. They will sometimes tunnel from one cover to the other.—New York Herald.

LITERARY GENIUS.

"Why is genius so often misunderstood?" asked the literary person.

"Probably," answered the man who doesn't care for poetry, "it's because genius so frequently fails to talk plainly."—Exchange.

WOMAN'S RIGHT.

Mamie—I believe in woman's rights. Gertie—Then you think every woman should have a vote? Mamie—No, but I think every woman should have a voice.—Chicago Record-Herald.

ECONOMY.

"That's the intention. It can be used again, you know."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MEANS BUSINESS

Supt. Bailey Says Shade Trees
Of the City Must Be Trimmed.

PROSECUTION THREATENED.

Another threat has been made by the police department in regard to the enforced trimming of shade trees. This time it is by the superintendent and he made special request that the newspapers give the matter publicity. He was informed the newspapers had sounded warning at least twice previous and it is about up to the police, if anything is to be done. He replied: "Well there is no doubt about it this time. The police have notified about 150 persons to trim their trees and if it is not done, there will be prosecution."

Threat number 2 deals with the owners of lots who permit dirt to wash down across the sidewalks. Sanitary Inspector Young called the attention of Superintendent Bailey to this matter and Bailey told the newspaper men to add an item in regard to this. In many places about the city soil has washed from unsodded banks across the walks and in wet weather the accumulation of mud impedes walking. This must be cleaned away, or there is liability to prosecution and the superintendent says it will come.

RICHARD BURBAGE.

He Was a Great Actor and Shakespeare's Leading Star.

March 16, 1618 or 1619, Richard Burbage, player, died at Shoreditch, London.

The first of the great English tragic actors, Burbage was in every way worthy to head the long roll of England's famous players. The son of an actor, the friend and companion of Shakespeare, it was through him that many of the heroes of the dramatist first spoke to the eager playgoers who thronged the Globe theater. He was the original of Romeo, Hamlet, Lear, Othello, Macbeth, Shylock, Richard III, and many other of Shakespeare's leading characters, and his name stands next to that of the great poet in the licenses for acting granted by James I. in 1603 to the company of the Globe theater.

His powers as an actor were not his only claim to distinction, for he was also a successful painter. The fame of his abilities held a prominent place in theatrical tradition for many years, a poem in his honor, dedicated to one of the great players of the day, being written as late as the time of Charles II. His death, which was probably the result of paralysis, caused the poets to turn their thoughts to his successful career, and it is from the numerous elegies then written that most of the information concerning him must be gathered. Few players have ever had the good fortune to be so well liked by the dramatists of their time, and all praised him, one even lamenting that his death "bath made a visible eclipse of playing."

A shrewd, careful man in his business affairs, Burbage left an estate producing a yearly income of £300, a large sum for a player in those days to bequeath to his heirs. Beloved and respected by all, he survived his great master by only a few years, his grave bearing the simple, expressive epitaph, "Exit Burbage."—London Saturday Review.

CHLOROPHYLL.

To This Substance Is Due the Color of Plants.

Chlorophyll is perhaps the most important coloring substance in the world, for upon this substance depend the characteristic activity of plants, the synthesis of complex compounds from carbon dioxide and water process, upon which the existence of all living things is ultimately conditioned. Only in a very few unimportant forms devoid of chlorophyll can the synthesis of complex from simple compounds or from the elements be accomplished. The function of chlorophyll may only be comprehended when its chief physical properties are understood. These may be best illustrated by placing a gram of chopped leaves of grass or geranium in a few cubic centimeters of strong alcohol for an hour.

Such solution will be of a bright, clear green color, and when the vessel containing it is held in such a manner that the sunlight is reflected from the surface of the liquid it will appear blood red, due to its property of fluorescence, that of changing the wave length of the rays of light of the violet and of the spectrum in such a manner as to make them coincide with those of the red end. It is by examination of light which has passed through a solution of chlorophyll, however, that the greatest insight into its physical properties may be gained. If such a ray of light is passed through a prism and spread out on a screen, it may be seen that there are several large intervals of dark bands in the spectrum. The rays of light which would have occupied these spaces have been absorbed by the chlorophyll and converted into heat and other forms of energy. This energy is directly available to the protoplasm containing the chlorophyll, and by means of it the synthesis of complex substances may be accomplished.

According to Horsepower.

A young motorist, endeavoring to convince a country innkeeper that the decay of coaching was more than compensated for by the spread of motoring as a pastime, exclaimed, as a final argument, that his car was of forty horsepower, "the equal, sir, of ten relays of coach horses."

The next morning he read in his bill, "To feeding and stabling, 80 shillings."

He asked the landlord for an explanation.

"The charge for 'osseus' is 2 shillings 'a head, sir," was the reply. "That machine of yours is equal to forty 'osseus,' which is 80 shillings."—London Express.
