SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING TONIGHT

English Lutheran Church to Take Up Flag Race.

The teachers and officers of the First English Lutheran Sunday school will hold their regular monthly business meeting tonight at which plans will be laid for the work of the Sunday School this fall and winter. All the teachers are urged to attend. At this time it is probable that it will be decided to continue the flag race with the First M. E. Sunday school. The Methodists won the flag for the month of June and the race was declared off during the summer months to be continued in September. Both Sunday schools are sending out notices to see which will have the banner attendance. The school having the largest attendance during September will get the flag during the month of October.

BULWER'S ODDITIES.

The author made against the age of old age.

Bulwer was decidedly what is generally understood by "aristocratic" as to what the French call "distinction." Tall, slim, with finely cut features, prominent among which was a long aquiline nose, with an abundant crop of curly brown hair and a full beard, the first impression he produced, aided by a careful toilet, was one of ease and elegance. At a dinner table, where he liked to speak, and, if possible, to speak alone, he was certainly useful as well as ornamental with his large blue ribbon and star of the Order of the Bath. There was a certain naïveté, strange as that word may sound when applied to so confirmed a man of the world, in his vain and very apparent struggle against the irresistible encroachment of age. He did not give in with that philosophic resignation which might have been expected of one so clever and in aspects so wise. He fought against tooth and nail. Lord Lytton's seemed dried, and his face looked as if it had been called in to rejuvenate it. A quick in Paris had pretended to cure his growing deafness, a constant source of legitimate grief to him. He was radiant one autumn on his return to town because he thought he was cured, but not for long. The copious use of snuff was no doubt part of the attempted cure, of which the most palpable results were large dark red or blue pocket handkerchiefs, quite out of harmony with his otherwise elegant toilet. His expressions of regret at his impaired digestive organs had something ludicrous about it. He would point with a sigh to a rosy cheeked American and say, "To think that there are people who can eat that!" One of his physical infirmities—his deafness—proved a bar to his ambition. He was sorely disappointed when Lord Beaconsfield, instead of including him in his last cabinet, "kicked him upstairs" into the house of lords, principally because he could not follow the debate.—Rudolph Lehman's "Recollections."

The Hub of the Body. The organ upon which all the other organs revolve, and upon which they are largely dependent for their welfare, is the stomach. When the functions of the stomach become impaired, the bowels and liver also become affected. To cure a disease of the stomach, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the most effective remedy. They are sold by all druggists and at the publisher's, Dr. J. C. Williams, 100 North Second Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

DUST IS EVERYWHERE

Consequently Automobile Parties to the City Are Growing Less in Number.

ROADS IN BAD CONDITION.

Dust, Dust, Dust, everywhere! This is the familiar expression of the touring autoists that pass through the city each day. In many places along the road the dust is two and three inches thick and for this reason the automobile parties are dwindling in number. One of the automobilists that passed through the city earlier in the season states that traveling was good then, but now with the heavy dust, motoring has lost its charm to some degree. Farmers are not the only people hoping for rain. The touring cars skid as much in the dust as they do in mud so that the travel is very slow now. The slight pleasure of riding in a cloud of dust is known to every person who has ever had the experience.

MODERN FOOTBALL.

It Comes From the Florentines, Who Got It From Greece.

Did modern football, the Rugby game, travel to England from the Italy of the renaissance and does its history reach back to ancient Greece? A recent writer says: "Probably not more than a few varieties of Rugby football are aware that we have to thank Florentine athletes for the invention of the game and for its introduction into Great Britain. Rugby school was founded somewhere about 1567. It was one of the direct results of what has been called the Florentine or Tuscan fever in England, which set in late in the Italian renaissance. Not only did men of letters come over and settle in England's centers of learning and create others, but many Florentines versed in the theory and practice of polite culture came as well. The game of calcio came to Florence by way of Greece. Something of the sort had figured among the less important games at Olympia. The principal Florentine ground was the Piazza di Santa Croce, where upon the wall of the Palazzo Giulio Parrigi is still to be seen the disk from which the line dividing the ground was drawn across the open square. The ball was of leather, containing an inflated bladder, and apparently was the exact size, weight and shape of the Rugby ball of today.

"Il calcio consisted of a friendly contest between two equal sides of players called schiera azzura and schiera rossa—blues and reds. The number of players varied according to the size of the ground or the importance of the encounter. In the Piazza di Santa Croce the sides were twenty to twenty-seven strong, while on the public open sports ground at Peretola they totaled as many as sixty each. Originally the players were required to be of noble or gentle blood or such as had gained distinction and rank in the profession of arms. Each man had to be of unblemished reputation and of graceful figure and possessed of accomplished manners.

"In addition to the actual players were presidents, standard bearers, judges, an umpire, pages and other officials, all without reproach, worthy of the city and courteous in manner. The costumes of the players were tight fitting drawers and tunics of silk, with feathered caps, all richly embroidered in gold and silver. Leather shoes were worn. The teams were divided into four classes: Forwards, whose places were near the dividing line and whose work was to keep the ball in play; halfbacks, stationed behind the forwards, in order to return the ball to play; three-quarter backs, who were strong kickers and played straight on the ball, and goal keepers, placed at the flags, or boundary, to stop the ball passing."

Malagasy Etiquette. A French conjurer many years ago during a performance at the court of Madagascar asked the queen through an interpreter if she would taste a glass of wine. On her refusal the conjurer, with simulated anger, emptied the glass over her, and the content, dropped in the shape of a rose into her majesty's lap. The court functionaries were so indignant at this proceeding that they jumped up from their seats, insisted upon the queen leaving the apartment and charged the performer with high treason. The unfortunate man had to be protected by the native troops from the fury of the populace and was compelled to leave the capital before daybreak.

CARE OF BOOKS. Marginal notes are usually superfluous and undesirable. Corners should not be turned down or leaves folded in halves. Exposing books to heat or strong sunlight warps the binding. Never bend back the covers of a book, but keep them both level. Do not turn a book on its face or place any weight on an open book. Never open a large book from the ends or cover, but from the center. Bookcases should not be placed against outside walls on account of the probable dampness. A blunt knife of ivory, wood or metal should be used for cutting new books, not a sharp instrument. If any liquid be spilt on a book, wipe it off at once gently with a soft cloth or absorb it with blotting paper. Do not dry it by a fire. Dragging a book out from the shelf by the binding at the top is hurtful. If books are wedged in too tightly in a case they become shabby.

The Sunshine of Life. Infants and children are constantly peeping at us. It is important to know what to give them. Their stomachs and bowels are not strong enough for salts, purgative waters or cathartic pills. Give them a gentle, laxative tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which sells at the small sum of 50 cents or $1 at drug stores. It is the greatest remedy for you to have in the house if you have children when they need it.

Inference. Physician—Yes, sir, my opinion is that one-half the diseases that afflict humanity are due to overeating. Friend (reflectively)—It may be—may be. Now I think of it, it is months since any one was sick at my boarding house.—New York Weekly.

The Misguided Friend. De Chappie—If there's any one nuisance I hate more than another it's a fellow who is always going around introducing people. There's Goodheart, for instance. Bouttown—What's he been doing? De Chappie—The idiot! The other day he introduced me to a man I owed money to, and I'd been owing it so long he'd forgotten all about me. Now I'll have to pay up or be sued.—London Telegraph.

The Ladies Aid society of the First English Lutheran church met this afternoon in the church parlors.

The Helen Hunt club of Cambridge City, of which a number of local women are honorary members will begin the season's work Monday, Sept. 14. Mrs. Wagner will be the hostess for this session. The club was organized in 1889. Mrs. Virginia Meredith being one of the chief organizers. This year's work will be devoted to history and a study of the gens of literature. Several social sessions have been arranged for. The officers are: President—Mrs. Mark O'Hara. First vice president—Mrs. R. J. Wade. Second vice president—Mrs. D. W. Stevenson. MYSTERIOUS PEOPLE.

The Awesomely Important and Secretive Air They Breathe.

Many people assume certain manners as they assume certain clothes and change these manners more seldom than they change their clothes. Others think it ingratiating to be perky. Some think it more graceful to be drooping and melancholy, to gaze wistfully, walk mournfully and sit as if before the baked meats of a funeral feast. But of all the people who indulge in travesty I think I get most amusement out of the mysterious people.

Rated, forever bated, is the breath of the mysterious person. Directly he comes into the room you are conscious of the presence of the unutterable and know that it will speedily be uttered into your most private ear. When he speaks to you he "takes you aside," so that none other may know that he is telling you that the weather is damp and that there is a deal of influenza about. As he discusses with you such dreadful subjects as the price of hobbled boots, the fluctuations of stocks and the economies of the administration his head approaches yours, his lips pout secretively, his eyes glance round warily to make sure that no one is within earshot to betray him and you.

The gaffers are surely in his memory. He wishes to avoid it, he wishes—kindly wretch—to save you from it all. Meet him halfway. It is such fun to do that. He responds sensitively to the slightest mysterious encouragement and thinks he is impressing you and that you believe him to be a strange and remarkable personage and that you will go away and say: "Glad I met John Smith. Interesting man. Not every day you come across a man like that."

Many women are mysterious. Indeed, I have met more mysterious women than mysterious men. The mysterious woman is often small, but her hair is large, plumed like a peacock and generally black as night. Pale is her face and languid her manner. She tries to look consumptive and succeeds surprisingly often. As a rule, she has little to say, but says it in such an awful manner that it takes on a fictitious importance and for the moment appears to be impressive.

Think over your acquaintances and friends. Are not some of them mysterious, and are not they highly considered? Are not they called "interesting" on that account? There are many spurious things in the social world, but few things are more spurious than that reputation for being interesting which is gained by the mysterious manner. And half of the world at least is tricked, for everyday perkiness is called brilliance, mystery wisdom, assurance greatness and the puppet in the mask a giant in the sunshine.—Robert Hichens in Chicago Tribune.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or sebum; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon as a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.
