

AWFUL REVENGE OF IRATE FATHER

Saw Son Run Over by Automobile, Then Shot at Occupants of Machine.

TWO KILLED BY BULLETS.

CHAUFFEUR SHOT AND CAR TURNED OVER, FATALLY INJURING OTHER OCCUPANT, MARCHIONESS OF REVEDIM.

Genoa, Sept. 5.—Angelo Galloni, an engineer, maddened by the sight of his little son, Antonio, being killed by an automobile occupied by the Marchioness of Revedim and her young sister, drew a revolver, fatally wounding the latter and killed the chauffeur. The automobile, without a controlling hand at the wheel, upset and the Marchioness was fatally injured. Both women are in a dying condition at the hospital. Galloni was justified in the act, while others condemned him. The little boy was playing in the road when the machine whizzed around a curve and ran over him.

Affairs of the Sporting World

The Pirates pushed the shoving Cubs back yesterday by winning a great battle and managed to continue hanging onto the coat tails of the fast moving Giants, who also won.

Indianapolis won again yesterday, making it two out of three from Columbus. This defeat almost put the Cubs out of the running. On Wednesday, the Pirates won a victory. He made three hits and his fielding was brilliant.

The Chicago White Sox are now within two games of the lead. The Sox defeated Cleveland yesterday in a brilliant 3 to 2 game. White did the pitching for the Sox. Indianapolis opens a series with the Night Riders at Louisville today. The outcome of this series will probably decide who will win the A. A. pennant. President Dreyfuss of the Pirates, believes that the race is going to be between his team and the Cubs. He does not figure the Giants to stick to the finish. "New York," he said, "has thirty-eight more games to play in thirty-five days. As they do not play on Sundays in the East, that means a lot of double-headers for them, and they have only two first-rate pitchers. They have twelve games with Philadelphia, and will be lucky to win half of them. Besides that, they have four games to play with us and four with Chicago, so that more than half their contests are with the first division clubs. On the other hand we have ten more games with St. Louis who have beaten us only two games out of twelve this year. I can not figure the Giants at pennant winners. Chicago is the club that we have to beat."

AN AMATEUR DETECTIVE.

His First and Last Experience in Tracing a Crime.

"I never attempted the Sherlock Holmes business but once," said Blythe, "and although I ran down the person I was after the results were not at all pleasant. One morning I missed a scarfpin, a single pearl, worth about $50. I valued it more for its associations than almost anything else I had. I decided to say nothing about it to my wife, because things of that sort always upset her. She suspects the servants and does not hesitate to let them see it. Advertising a reward brought no results. One morning nearly two years after the pin was lost I saw it in the window of a pawnshop not three blocks from my home. I knew the police captain of the precinct and induced him to send one of his ward men with me to the pawnshop. Matters were soon explained. I was able to prove my ownership of the pin. The pawnbroker consulted his books.

"That pin," he said, "was brought here by a woman who regularly pawns things here on commission. It is a business, the same as shopping on commission. Many persons, especially women, who find it necessary to raise a little money in a hurry, are afraid to go in person to the pawnshop.

"He gave me the name and address of the woman who pawned my pin, and I looked her up. 'I don't want to make any trouble for you,' I said, 'but that pin was stolen. Just take me to the person who gave it to you to pawn, and you'll not be the loser.'

"She complied willingly. She said she was sent for by a woman who had read her advertisement and was given the pin to pawn in the usual course of business. She got $20 for it, and after deducting her commission had paid the money over to her customer and given her the ticket. She went to the pawnshop nearest the house to save time. Not until we were at my own doorstep did I realize where the woman was taking me.

"Do you mean to say that you got the pin in this house?" I inquired.

"Certainly," she replied. "It was given to me by a tall woman with red hair. If she still lives here I should know her in a minute."

"That will do," I said. "Here is $5 for your trouble. I shall be obliged by your not mentioning this incident to anybody."

"The woman she had described was my wife. We had a bad quarrel of an hour. She had pawned the pin to get money for a rascallion of a brother, who had since fled to Canada. He stole the ticket from her and had evidently been unable to sell it before he skinned."

Secretary John H. Bruce of the national baseball commission announced that $99,600 has been turned over to him to be paid to minor league club owners for drafted players. Of this sum $47,555 already has been forwarded to Secretary Farrell of the National associations, the remainder of it being held until the commission decides whether a number of drafts are to be allowed. He also has received $68,500 for players purchased and recalled under options, making a total of $116,050 that has been turned over to minor league club owners. As a number of the purchases were not made through the medium of the commission, the harvest reaped by the minor leagues will greatly exceed this amount.

One fault with McAlleer's team is he carries too many percherons. No fewer than eight of the Browns are in the steam roller class when it comes to speed.

"Roaring Bill" Hassamer, one-time ball player, sold the Sox yesterday a lot of raffle tickets. When Bill went away the Sox looked at the tickets and found the raffle was billed to take place on Aug. 19th.

Tex Richard, the Nevada fight promoter who was unable to dig up the $30,000 purse for the finish fight between Joe Gans and Battling Nelson on Labor day afternoon at Ely, Nev., now comes forward with a statement to the effect that he has Jack Johnson's agreement to fight Tommy Burns at his club in Ely, Nev., when Johnson and Burns return to this country. Tex had better forget about pulling off any fight after his recent buping.

A Few Palindromes.
"It is a fascinating occupation," said a philologist, "to search the language for palindromes. A palindrome is a word that reads the same backward as forward. Rotator, for instance, is a palindrome. Several hundreds of these strange words are tabulated, and new ones are continually turning up in the English tongue. If you can find one send it to the Palindrome society of New York.

"I can rattle off extempore a dozen or two palindromes. Thus:
"Bab, refer, bib, Anna, tot, bob, peep, civic, tot, dad, madam, deed, pup, delved, seeds, dewed, tat, did, shab, eve, revolver, ewe, rotator, gog, pop, gig, gag, redder, level, noon, Otto, sexes."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Gambetta and Napoleon's Portrait.
When Gambetta, accompanied by Jules Favre, arrived in the hall of the Hotel de Ville, where he was officially to read the proclamation of the third French republic, the crowd which followed the two deputies caught sight of a fine portrait of Napoleon III. hanging on a wall. They promptly took it down and were about to smash it to pieces when Gambetta intervened. Turning the portrait to the wall, he said: "My friends, we have put up with the original for twenty years. Let us be content today to turn his face to the wall. It is all he deserves."

Why, Then?
"Did you finish your shopping today, my dear?" asks the model husband.

"Yes, I think so," answers the trusting wife.

"You think so?"
"Yes, I don't know, though. You see, I went to get my hat and there were so many and all of them so pretty that I got five of them."

"Five? Why did you do that?"
"I—really—I must have lost my head."

"In that case, why get a hat at all?"—Chicago Tribune.

Rules for Writers.
Frederick W. Seward said that when he first started in at newspaper work Thurlow Weed said to him: "I will give you two rules to begin with. First, never write anything without some definite point and purpose; second, when you have written it, take your pen and go over it to see how many words and sentences you can strike out and how much you will thereby improve the article."

BOWLERS TO MEET TO FORM LEAGUE

More Interest Being Shown
This Year Than Last.

A meeting of the bowlers of the city will probably be held some time next week for the purpose of organizing the league for this winter. There will be five men teams. The first schedule will start about October 1 and run to the holidays. The second will start with the reorganizing of the teams the first of the year and running to about April 15th.

More interest is being shown in bowling this year than last year. There are more players than last year and so far this season excellent scores have been made. One of the prominent bowlers stated today that the race for first place this year will be one of the best that has been held on the local alleys.

At present there are two prizes for the highest scores made before Sept. 15th. There have been a number trying for them and the highest scores made so far are by Parry, 200, and King, 198.

The City Bowling Alleys, 22 N. 9th, the finest in the state, are now open to the public. Come and see the prizes offered for high scores.

New York, Sept. 5.—Led by the grief crazed mother a mob of several hundred women and men today severely beat up Samuel Gettner whose heavy truck ran over and instantly killed five year old Nettie Loeffler, as she darted across the street to recover a base ball. Policemen dragged Gettner away from the mob.

IMPORTANCE OF CARBON.

Without it or Its Equivalent We Could Have No Light.

The electric light as now so commonly used is produced by the passage of a powerful electric current between the slightly separated ends of a pair of carbon rods, or carbons, about twelve inches long and from three-eighths to one-half inch in diameter, placed vertically end to end in the lamp. The lamp mechanism is so constructed that when no current is passing the upper carbon, which is always made the positive one, rests upon the lower by the action of gravity, but as soon as the electric current is established the carbons are automatically separated about an eighth of an inch, thus forming a gap of high resistance in the electric circuit, across which the current is forced, resulting in the production of intense heat. The ends of the carbons are quickly heated to brilliant incandescence, and by the burning action of the air are maintained in the form of blunt points. As the carbons burn away, the lamp mechanism feeds the upper one downward just fast enough to maintain the proper separation.

The carbons are not heated equally, the upper or positive one being much the hotter. A small cup shaped cavity or "crater," ordinarily less than an eighth of an inch in diameter, is formed in its end, the glowing concave surface of which emits the greater part of the total light. In lights of the usual size, something like half a horsepower of energy is concentrated in this little crater, and its temperature is limited only by the vaporization of the carbon. Carbon being the most refractory substance known, the temperature of the crater is the highest yet produced artificially and ranks next to that of the sun. It is fortunate that nature has provided us with such a substance as carbon, combining, as it does, the highest resistance to heat with the necessary electrical conductivity. Without carbon or an equivalent—and none is known—we could have no light.—Charles F. Brush in Atlantic.

STOP IT.

Boasting of what you can do instead of doing it.

Thinking that life is a grind and not worth living.

Exaggerating and making mountains out of molehills.

Talking continually about yourself and your affairs.

Saying unkind things about acquaintances and friends.

Thinking that all the good chances and opportunities are gone by.

Thinking of yourself to the exclusion of everything and every one else.

Speculating as to what you would do in some one else's place and do your best in your own.

Gazing idly into the future and dreaming about it instead of making the most of the present.

Longing for the good things that others have instead of going to work and earning them for yourself.—Success.

A Hurricane.
The terrors of the deep were perhaps never more thrillingly set forth than in the description by a young lady who last year made her first trip abroad. She kept a diary, very much, says the New York Herald, like that of Mark Twain, when for seven days he recorded the fact that he "got up, washed and went to breakfast."

There was one important exception. When she crossed the channel the experience was so trying that she felt impelled to describe it.

"I firmly resolved to stay on deck," she wrote, "although the tempest increased to such a frightful hurricane that it was only with the greatest difficulty that I could hold up my parasol."

A Wonderful Memory.
Hortensius, the Roman orator, could repeat word for word a book he had just read. On one occasion he made a wager with one Sienna and to win it went to an auction, reminded all day and in the evening gave a list of all the articles sold, the prices paid for them and the names of the purchasers. The accuracy of his memory was in this case attested by the auctioneer's clerk, who followed the recapitulation with his book and found that in no case had the man of wonderful memory made a single mistake.

Manners.
Manners are of more importance than laws. In a great measure the laws depend on them. The law touches us but here and there and now and then. Manners are what vex or soothe, corrupt or purify, exalt or debase, barbarize or refine us, by a constant, steady, uniform, insensible operation, like that of the air we breathe. They give their whole color to our lives. According to their quality they aid morals, they supply them or they totally destroy them.—Burke.

A Bad Recollection.
First Barber—When! That barn-stormer must be a bad actor! Second Ditto—Why? First Barber—When I asked him if he wanted an egg sham-poo he jumped right out of the chair and made for the door!—Detroit Free Press.

Bad Either Way.
Mr. Wiseguy—No, I don't want any of those sausages. I'm afraid of trichina. The Butcher—I assure you there's no danger of trichina in these sausages. Mr. Wiseguy—Well, hydrophobia, then. It's just as bad.—Cleveland Leader.

Vocation and Avocation.
"Avocation" is one of those unfortunate words that are constantly being used in a wrong sense. Strictly speaking, it refers to something that calls a man away from the ordinary occupation of his daily life. If you earn your living by drafting conveyances and interpreting legal subtleties and also are often seen in leisure hours with a camera in your hand and have a dark room at home, then the law is your vocation and photography your avocation.—London Telegraph.

"The lady in the purple waist is out of order," announced the presiding officer at a recent women's convention. "The lady in the gray foulard has the floor."

The man who sums women up in a sentence is the man whom women call a fool with a phrase.—Mollentrave.

ORIGIN OF PIKE'S PEAK.

Indian Legend of the Formation of This Famous Mountain.

The quaint Indian legend of the formation of Pike's peak is as follows:

"At the beginning of all things the lesser spirits possessed the earth and dwelt near the banks of the great river. They had created a race of men to be their servants, but these men were far superior to the present inhabitants of the earth and made endless trouble for their creators. Therefore the lesser spirits resolved to destroy mankind and the earth itself, so they caused the great river to rise until it burst its banks and overwhelmed everything. They themselves took each a large portion of the best of the earth that they might create a new world and a quantity of maize, which had been their particular food, and returned to heaven. Arriving at the gate of heaven, which is at the end of the plains, where the sky and mountains meet, they found that the gate would not bring such burdens of earth into heaven. Accordingly they dropped them all then and there. These falling masses made a great heap on the top of the world which extended far above the waters, and this is the origin of Pike's peak, which is thus shown to be directly under the gate of heaven. (It was formerly twice as high as now, but lost its summit, as is told in another legend.)

The rock masses upon it and all about show that they have been dropped from the sky. The variety and extent of the mineral wealth in the region prove that the earth's choicest materials are deposited there. And still as the constellations move across the heavens and vanish above the mountain summits we may see the spirits rise from the great river and pass to the gate of heaven. The falling stars are their falling burdens or the dropping grains of maize."

CULTIVATE TACT.

If You Do Not Possess It, Strive to Acquire It.

I want it recognized that tact should be taught continuously, seriously, thoroughly; that it should be placed in the forefront of education and take its natural first place side by side with the catechism, writes Frank Danby in Black and White.

A friend of mine recently suffering under a great bereavement was in the receipt of innumerable letters and telegrams from friends, acquaintances and the general public. Out of the 1,140 of such communications two only hit the right note. Among pages of sentimental and religious commonplace two messages alone touched the heart.

"He was a man I loved. I am with you in your grief," was one.
