FIRE INSURANCE

to look into the reliability of the mutuals. Should he find them satisfactory and willing to take the bad business of the city at less than advisory rates, the agents will simply lose their lines. This will be the reward for their efforts to help their customers save money in the wrong way. If all of them had secured the makeup of the rates on those risks on their books to which heavy penalties have been attached for deficiencies, taken them to the assured and used their powers of argument to induce the owners of these risks to make improvements, get their rates reduced, decrease the hazard on the part of the values not insured and do justice to the owner of the exposed good risks. It is probably most of the trouble at Richmond would be past history by this time and the city would have been less exposed to heavy loss. They, or part of them—did not see fit to do so. They insisted that the man with the poor risk, who refused to improve it, should be placed more nearly on a par with the owners of the good risk. Now their erstwhile friends appear likely to desert them if they can save money by doing so.

Insurance is a tax. If one man pays less than he should, some one will have to pay more than his share to make up the deficiency. The question is whether the owners of the certain bad risks at Richmond should be permitted to dodge part of their insurance tax."

ually for seven years. The counsel for the Starr claims that even if the use of the brand "Chase" had been abandoned temporarily, the A. B. Chase company would be at fault, if it had permitted the Starr to enlarge its factory and put out sales without making any protest. The assertion is made further by the local counsel for the Starr that the Musical Trade Journal has misrepresented the facts of the case and in its presentation has been in error. The preliminary ruling on the injunction petition is no indication of what the ultimate ruling may be.

DIES AT AGE OF 106.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 3—John J. Morgan died at his home in this city, aged 106 years. He was born in County Leftrim, Ireland, in 1802, but did not come to America until he was 46 years of age. He never wore glasses, and was a reader until within a few days of his death.

COMMERCIAL CLUBS MEET IN NOVEMBER

The State Organization Will Be Perfected at That Time.

THIRTY CLUBS EXPECTED.

ALREADY MANY COMMERCIAL ORGANIZATIONS HAVE CONSENTED TO SEND REPRESENTATIVES—COMMITTEE HAS SECRET.

It was definitely decided, at a meeting held last evening by the program committee, to hold the organization meeting of the State Federation of Commercial Clubs in this city during the week of November 15. It is possible to secure a certain man of national prominence, whose name the committee withholds, the meeting will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday. If his services cannot be secured, the meeting will be held on Wednesday and Thursday. The committee desires him to deliver an address before the delegates on the evening of the first day.

It has also been decided by the committee to hold the first session on the afternoon of the first day. In the evening there will be a short session followed by a banquet and an address by a prominent man. On the second day a morning session will be held and at noon the meeting will adjourn. In the afternoon the out of town delegates will be taken for an automobile ride about the city.

It is expected that commercial organizations in at least thirty Indiana cities and towns will be represented at the meeting by one or more delegates. Already twenty commercial organizations have accepted the invitation to meet here and effect a permanent state organization.

BAD BREATH AND SOUR STOMACH

Stopped At Once With Pure Willow Charcoal, the Greatest Gas Absorber Known.

There is no necessity to suffer the humiliation, chagrin and discomfort of bad breath, biliousness, sour stomach, gastritis, sluggish liver, etc., when a little lozenge of charcoal will cleanse the stomach and make it pure and sweet.

Do not drug yourself when a simple little natural charcoal made from fragrant willow branches, sweetened with honey, will add tone to your stomach, liver and intestines, rapidly absorb gases and stop foul odors of all kinds.

Charcoal will absorb one hundred times its own volume in gas. A box full of charcoal placed in a bed room will keep the air of such room pure and sweet.

A little charcoal lozenge dissolved on the tongue after meals will also keep the stomach fresh and clean. Charcoal is justly called the scrubbing brush for the stomach. The old monks of medieval times cured bad cases of stomach trouble, cast out devils from the system of man by feeding such a man charcoal.

Scientific men of today believe in the great strength of charcoal for the cure of human ills. Too much of it cannot harm one. The system craves it just like an animal needs and craves salt every so often. Charcoal goes into the stomach gently and is welcome, it settles down through the action of the food, absorbing gas, aiding digestion and giving tone to the juices, so that when the food goes into the intestines, and there meets other digestive fluids, the charcoal holds the impurities and thus keeps them from the blood.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made from pure willow. They are prepared fragrant by the use of honey and sweetened so they please the taste and are easily dissolved.

They have an enormous sale, thus stamping them with the approval of the public. Every druggist sells them 25 cents per box. Go to your druggist today and buy a box; then after your next meal take two or three of them and judge for yourself of their merit.

Several taken at bed time will prove to you in the morning that they have been at work all night, for your bad breath will not be so bad after all. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

FIRST ACCIDENT.

The first accident in connection with the fall festival occurred yesterday afternoon when one of the signs attached to a pole in front of the Muth Saloon blew through the plate glass window.

SWEETHEARTS AND TARIFF DISCUSSED

Republican Candidate for Vice President Is Now in Illinois.

BRYAN FOR FREE SILVER.

SHERMAN COMPARES PRESIDENT LINCOLN AND BRYAN, DECLARING BRYAN DESIRES SUPPORT OF FORCES OPPOSING LINCOLN.

Sterling, Ill., Oct. 3—How to manage a sweetheart.

How to manage the tariff. These two subjects and many intervening ones were explained by James Sherman, vice presidential candidate of the Republican party, during the second day of his "whirl wind campaign." During his trip he visited eight towns and upward of twenty thousand persons listened to his addresses.

To the girl students at the public schools of Princeville he told the fine points of handling a love affair. Just how the beau should act and how the girl should act was explained minutely, while the girls giggled, blushed and murmured, "Isn't he dear?" Where did he learn it all?"

He supplemented his instructions on love with a strict injunction to the girls to make their sweethearts vote right—for the Republican ticket.

The protective tariff in its effect on labor he discussed before the employees of the great plow works at Moline.

Mr. Sherman and his party started out early today from Peoria.

At Wyoming, Toulon, Galva, and Cambridge the population turned out to hear the candidate discuss the issues from the car platform. At Cambridge Mr. Sherman took occasion to reply to a speech made by William J. Bryan in Philadelphia in which the Nebraskan declared that Judge Taft had accused him of abandoning issues. "If that statement isn't true," said Mr. Sherman, "Mr. Bryan is still for free silver."

At Rock Island he addressed an audience at the state fair. In addition, the gathering was addressed by Congressmen William B. McKinley and Frank O. Lowden, both of Illinois, and Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Ohio. In his address Mr. Sherman made a comparison of President Lincoln and Mr. Bryan, declaring that the Nebraskan declared that Judge Taft had accused him of abandoning issues. "If that statement isn't true," said Mr. Sherman, "Mr. Bryan is still for free silver."

In his address at Rock Island, Mr. Sherman said:

I am told that this is a Republican day, and my theme shall be something of a comparison of the early leader of Republican thought and action with the present dictator of so-called Democratic declarations and professed intentions.

The present canvass shows again the foot of the ass that put on a lion's skin.

The managers of Mr. Bryan's press bureau are attempting to conjure votes for him by the use of the sacred name of Lincoln. Aesop declared that when the ass lifted up his voice and brayed every one knew him, and his owner came up and gave him a sound cudgeling. The warning falls on deaf ears. The partisan who tries the same tricks invites like shame and punishment. The audacity of the device may capture some of the unwise.

In so far as he has a party behind him, Mr. Bryan is the candidate of those who maligned and ridiculed the first and greatest president the Republican party has given to the nation. Mr. Bryan relies for support on the forces which at every step opposed Lincoln, which obstructed the measures of war and peace of that saviour of the union, and pronounced the proclamation of Emancipation a monstrous crime.

In his earlier campaigns he counted most of the states which elected Lincoln "the enemy's country." He has not accepted the principles and policies which glorified the administration of that martyred patriot. What proofs can he offer that he is a disciple of the president who struck down Lincoln, who signed the Morrill tariff, who stood steadfastly for protection and made possible the present grandeur of the united republic? Lincoln was elected in 1860 by the electoral votes of all the free states except three from New Jersey, which were cast for Douglas. It was against him that the mischief and threat of the solid South came to terrorize our country.

In his speech in New York, Mr. Bryan denounces the Republican party for alleged tendency to centralization. His words are the echoes of the assaults upon the efforts of Lincoln to defend the Union and maintain the Constitution, the spirit which made difficult the prosecution of the struggle against the armed hosts of the confederacy. Such utterances prove that Bryan is hostile to all that Lincoln stood for and still represents. Every Lincoln Republican should be and I believe will be a supporter of Taft.

Those out of sympathy with Lincoln's faith and achievements are naturally found among Mr. Bryan's supporters.

Mr. Sherman's address on labor to the employees of the Moline Plow Works was as follows, in part:

The Republican party has always expressed diligent care for American labor. In fifteen years since 1883, laws for the benefit of labor to the number of over 100 have been enacted by Republican Legislatures, signed by Republican Governors and enforced by Republican officers. In no state under Republican control have the reasonable demands of labor for legislation been refused. The contrast asserts itself. In no state where the Democrats are in political control has a system of labor laws been enacted.

In the solid South, where Bryanism boasts mastery, not a single statute has been passed for labor. Bryan and his echoes insult the wage earners by efforts to array them in his support on grounds of prejudice and of hate toward employers.

Mr. Bryan seeks to have an injunction set in operation to cripple industry, to check the wheels of transportation, to close markets, to destroy prosperity, to impoverish schools and churches and hospitals, to forbid hope to the young and to make despair the companion of age. Give him his way and ruin and death to the valleys and cities of Georgia and the Carolinas. His speeches have a certain brilliancy; have not the baleful fires which have raged in so many forests thrown their red light into the sky in widely scattered regions, yet hosts of lives and millions of property and the hope of families and of enterprise have turned to ashes before them.

Mr. Lincoln was the champion of the Union. He declared the Union could not be half free and half slavery. His great achievement was to fuse the warring states into a nation, one in freedom. His great heart took in all men, all creeds, all races, rich and poor, high and low, in every part of the land. His generous soul had charity for all, malice for none.

Prophet of Discord.

Mr. Bryan, on the contrary, preaches the crusade of dissension; he aims to create divisions where there are none; his appeals are to prejudice and to hate, to envy and malice. Discontent and suspicion are his constant company. Despair seems in his train. The appeal for Bryan in the glamour of Lincoln is as wicked as it is absurd.

Were Lincoln today charged with the grave affairs in which he rendered such glorious service, where would he look for help? Surely not to the crowd gathered at Denver, not to the sachems of Tammany Hall, with whom Mr. Bryan has patched up a peace. Can any imagination be so wild as to picture Lincoln trusting the judgment of Bryan—a judgment so frequently and so emphatically proved erroneous?

Mr. Lincoln would accept President Roosevelt's assurance that when in doubt over serious problems he always asked what Lincoln would do under the circumstances. To that rule the present administration owes much of its success. That has been the spirit, too, in which Mr. Taft has trained himself to be a most efficient and most successful administrator; trained himself until today he approaches the presidency better fitted to meet and discharge its varied and weighty duties and responsibilities than ever did a candidate before first approach that lofty position.

Had Judge Taft lived in Lincoln's time that great man would have found in him, as his great successor, a man worthy of his confidence, one mentally fitted to be an ideal successor to embody in the clearer light of his new generation the aims and purposes, the convictions and aspirations which Lincoln and Roosevelt would have the republic possess and enjoy.

If there be doubt upon this point, let us turn to the proof. No one now living who had the privilege of casting his vote for Abraham Lincoln can be induced to betray his record by a ballot for Bryan. Such veterans there are, and they will go to the polls with the enthusiasm of youth to insure the election of Taft to occupy the seat of Lincoln and wear the mantle of his wisdom and patriotism.

And if there remain anywhere throughout our broad domain, north or south, or east or west, those who were hostile to Lincoln in his days of stress and trial, you will find them seeking a congenial retreat under the Bryan banner.

Appeals to Veterans.

The supporters of Mr. Bryan, by attempting to discredit the fame and merits of the first martyred President, challenge those to whom that memory is precious, to assert the truth and to act upon it. It is fair to consider in what manner the ballot should be cast to most faithfully maintain the purposes and principles of this great man who deserved so well of all his fellow countrymen. The Republican party is the party in whose creation Lincoln helped, whose existence Lincoln preserved, the sole heir of his estate, the trustee bound to administer his bequests, the guardian of his gifts to humanity.

In 1860 no state whose electoral vote was given to Lincoln failed to bear aloft the Republican banner. New states had joined the sisterhood and they too took position in the same honor and roll. These precedents should inspire effort to repeat the achievement. The spirit of Lincoln still directs Republican councils. Lincoln brought back the erring states into the Union; they will be welcome to share in the triumph for Taft in November.

In his speech in New York, Mr. Bryan denounces the Republican party for alleged tendency to centralization. His words are the echoes of the assaults upon the efforts of Lincoln to defend the Union and maintain the Constitution, the spirit which made difficult the prosecution of the struggle against the armed hosts of the confederacy. Such utterances prove that Bryan is hostile to all that Lincoln stood for and still represents. Every Lincoln Republican should be and I believe will be a supporter of Taft.
