

MUST PRODUCE THAW

Necessary That He Appear in
Pittsburg at Bankruptcy Proceedings.

MOTHER WILL TESTIFY.

New York, Oct. 9.—It is now generally conceded that no matter whether Supreme Court Judge Mills, after hearing testimony next week, should decide that Harry K. Thaw is sane or declare him insane and order him remanded to Matteawan Asylum for Insane Criminals, it will be incumbent on Sheriff Lane, of Westchester county, to produce Thaw in Pittsburg in the bankruptcy proceedings.

Sheriff Lane has been served with an order directing him to produce Thaw at Pittsburg, five days after the determination of the insanity trial. It is said by prominent lawyers at White Plains that it will be obligatory on the part of the sheriff to obey the order.

It was definitely learned that Mrs. Thaw and her daughter, Mrs. Copley Thaw, will be called on Monday as witnesses to prove that Thaw is now sane. It is said also that one of the most noted alienists in the country has been engaged to examine Thaw today, but his name will not be revealed until the day of the trial.

ACCUSED MOB
LEADER ACQUITTED

Convictions May Not Be Obtained in Other Riot Cases.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 9.—After sixteen hours' deliberation the jury in the case of Abe Raymer, alleged mob leader, charged with destruction of property, during the recent riots, returned a verdict of not guilty. Raymer had previously been acquitted of murder in connection with the lynching of W. K. Donigan, an aged negro. This acquittal is taken to mean that convictions can not be obtained in the remaining riot cases.

ENGLISHWOMAN'S BEAUTY.

Some Ways in Which She Makes and Retains It.

The eyes of the Englishwoman look young. She knows how to make her eyes shine like stars by the use of a little pure borax dissolved in warm water. It takes out the dust and helps the sight.

She rests her eyes frequently. She never sits and gazes sideways upon an object. The evergreen matron of London when she looks at you has a way of gazing right through you. Her brows are specially effective in this long, lovely gaze. They are dark, glossy and heavy, and they are perfectly molded. This is because they are painted every night with a simple oily lotion which makes them grow, and they are brushed every morning with a little eyebrow brush, which encourages the roots of the hair to send forth little rootlets.

The teeth of the Englishwoman belong to herself alone. No other country has teeth to compare with them. They are sound and white. The Englishwoman eats cereals. Like the Irish and the Scottish woman, she thinks them necessary to at least one meal. And she chews them, too, for she knows that mastication is necessary to good digestion.

The Englishwoman, who is holding the world's record for keeping young has certain things in her favor, and one is the habit of leisure. From birth she has been taught to take her time. The Englishwoman's habits of thought help her out in the work of keeping young. She has the artless, dancing eyed expression of the young girl.

When not busy with social duties the Englishwoman is pondering on bright thoughts. The nature of your thoughts makes a great difference in your face.

One of the most brilliant and picturesque social events ever held in this city, the grand finale of the Fall Festival, was the military ball of last night. The coliseum where the function was held was elaborately decorated with flags and the Fall Festival colors—yellow and white. Festoons were arranged from the corners of the large building to the center, electric lights were arranged the length of the colored streamers, white, red and blue lights being arranged around the balcony.

One of the most attractive features of the artistically embellished ball room was a pyramid of palms and ferns which was placed in the center of the floor.

The boxes were made beautiful with palms, ferns, chrysanthemums and festoons of white and yellow bunting intermingled with greenery. Along the west wall and above the entrance the national colors were arranged. The orchestra was stationed on an elevated platform to the north of the building. Flags and bunting were used in decorating the musicians' stand.

The boxes were occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William D. Foulke, who had with them as their guests Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Gayle, Mr. and Mrs. James Morrisson, and Mr. Francis McNutt; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Emerson used to entertain guests of every rank and nation who came to pay him homage. They sat down to the homely fare, whatever it was, provided for the family. Often it was only a dish of potatoes and a jug of milk. "They do not come to examine our food," he would say, "but our life."

If American women of moderate means would adopt this idea how fine our hospitality would be! In the majority of small households a guest is a rare and important event. He is not welcomed to everyday fare of the family, nor taken into its life, but is treated to strange dishes and company manners.

Mrs. Timothy Wilson of South Twelfth street will go to Detroit soon where she will visit with Mr. and Mrs. Coffin for a short time.

His Act.
"Father," said young St. Cornslik, "I have long desired to go on the stage, and now, with your permission—"

Hosea Cornslik thoughtfully stroked his flame colored chin beard.
"All the world's a stage, my son," he said gently. "Take that hoe and dig up the potatoes in the half acre field behind the hopen."

The engagement lasted a week.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Woman's World

MRS. CLARENCE H. MACKAY.
Society Matron Will Serve as Leader in Woman's Rights Cause.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay has unfurled her standard as a leader in this country of the woman suffrage cause. After a novitiate, during which she has studied exhaustively the economic problems of her sex, she has publicly subscribed to the faith and pledged her support to its doctrines.

Although it has been hinted for some time that Mrs. Mackay indorsed the tenets of suffrage, it was not until recently that she made a public announcement of her conversion. She unfurled her standard in the Roslyn (N. Y.) public school, where was the scene of her first victory for woman's rights. It was there she won an election as a school trustee, defeating at the polls her male opponent.

Suffragists in this country who shared in the secret have eagerly awaited an opportunity to install Mrs.

MRS. CLARENCE MACKAY.

Mackay in a place similar to that occupied in England by the talented Countess of Warwick. Workers in the cause have said that a leader was wanted who combined high social position and acknowledged intellectual attainments—one who would further compel serious attention to the movement and disarm ridicule.

Mrs. Mackay said recently concerning her new faith:

"I have been a convert to the principles of woman suffrage for some time past. I believe that the day is not far distant when success will be attained for the cause in this country. I regard it as inevitable that the American woman suffragist will share in the honors already won by her English sister and that the doctrine will be firmly implanted in all of the English speaking lands."

The Woman Who is Always Right.
We all have met her—the woman who lays down the law—and most of us regret the meeting.

No matter what is under discussion, she has her opinion and does not hesitate to proclaim it. That she knows nothing of the subject makes no difference in her vociferousness.

Her voice is usually rasping, her words staccato and her emphasis sharp. She may not intend to be disagreeable, but the effect is not altered by intentions.

The irritation of a disturbed hornet's nest is mild compared with the feelings aroused by the layer down of the law. Even when in the right her wisdom is based on general principles. She can stir up more opposition than a motion to raise taxes. You go out of your way to thwart her and make yourself uncomfortable doing what she does not wish.

Silent protest or open pugacity is the usual attitude of her hearers. The good tempered sufferer revels when the town regulator strikes a scrapper. Tact is not her long suit. The more reason there is for silence the louder is her expression of opinion. Her knowledge of where her own business ends is scant.

It is the layer down of the law who can be depended upon to say the wrong thing every time. She it is who makes it her business to take a meek little wife to task for her husband's shortcomings or widens a breach by telling both combatants their duty.

If only she knew how great is her conceit! Most people find regulating their own lives so difficult that they are slow to think themselves capable of including the rest of mankind in their managing. Seeing both sides is not her chief characteristic. Her way is the right way, and woe to the one who differs! Arguing is as futile as the fight with old age.

You might stand her better if only she were ever in the wrong. To be
