POCANTICO HILLS PALACE BUILT TO INSURE OIL MAGNATE
PRIVACY AND PROTECTION AGAINST INTRUDERS.

New York, Oct. 12.—John D. Rockefeller has taken formal possession of his new million dollar house at Pocantico Hills. He has arranged to station eighteen watchmen, two detectives, and one great bloodhound to guard himself and his family from annoyance.

The new house, it develops, as it stands completed today, with surrounding terraces and high stone walls, is one of the most inaccessible homes in this country—a labyrinth of winding walks, blind passages, and hidden steps having been constructed with the idea of confusing any day or night intruder.

Planned to Baffle Intruder.
Even the "playhouse," which is intended for Mr. Rockefeller's grandchildren, is connected with the residence by a tunnel, or half sunken covered passageway. The whole building seems to have been planned to make an approach by an outsider almost impossible.

There is only one main entrance, and this is through a gateway. The house is built backward, too. What appears to be an imposing colonial front, looking in the direction of the Hudson river, is the rear of the residence.

There is a subbasement besides the main basement, and broad walks lead past terraces to what might be taken for the main entrance. Instead they lead to blind walls.

No Steps Are to Be Seen.
No steps are discernible whatever. The visitor suddenly finds himself standing on a terrace looking up one and a half stories over a series of stone walls to what appears to be the living part of the house.

The side approaches to the broad piazzas which half encircle the house are concealed, and only one familiar with the secret of the labyrinth could gain access to any part of the building unless entrance was made through the gateway.

This astonishing inaccessibility of the house is common to all sides save the front, which faces a commodious red brick stable. To add to the maze or labyrinth of walls and concealed steps, hundreds of shrubs have been planted on the terraces and one wide gravelled walk, lined with small poplar trees, encircles the house. It leads to no place in particular and it adds greatly to the general effect of well planned ornamentation.

HAS DIPHTHERIA.

The first case of contagious disease reported for three weeks is a case of diphtheria in the family of William Seeker, 101 South Fourteenth street. The patient is his little seven year old daughter, Janet. Dr. Bond, city health officer, stated that the home had been thoroughly quarantined and that there was very little danger of the disease spreading.

CHARITIES BOARD MEETS.

All the members of the board of directors of the Associated Charities have been requested to meet tomorrow afternoon at the office on South Fifth street. At this meeting a number of important questions will be decided on. The meeting is called for 2:30 o'clock.

CITY STATISTICS.
