THE POSTERS.

The brewer's posters have come and with them the refutation of the arguments advanced by Crawford Fairbanks. The statement of the real facts in Kansas by Governor Hock is convincing. It is a striking commentary that the posters which attack prohibition and county local option were along business lines. Surely no one knows more about business in Kansas City than the Commercial club. And the Commercial club announces that there had never been less crime, less drunkenness and that business and finances had never been in better shape. Nay business has improved.

The "camera cannot lie" say the brewers. No, but the men who use the photographs can. A half truth is worse than a lie because it is more subtle.

What if that camera had been used to show some other things beside the closed bar rooms, what if a parallel series of photographs had been made, showing where the money went which was needed by the families of the men who were lined up against the bars irrespective of whether there had been drunkenness or not? The camera cannot lie.

What if the camera had shown the life of the "submerged fifth," the poverty, the degradation? What if the figures had been compiled to show the number of people in want?

In Indiana the question is not "the saloon must go"—it is "The people shall decide." To fight the republicans ticket the brewers are engaged in circulating posters, buttons, free drinks and in organizing so that the people may not decide.

In its platform and speeches the democratic party has taken for its slogan "Shall the people rule?" In state politics the same party has announced "the people shall not rule." Can not the people of Indiana be trusted to decide this question for themselves?

Yes. By the action of the legislature the people are enabled to decide that question when it comes up. In the meantime they are going to be misled by the posters of Crawford Fairbanks? Why fight Jim Watson because he urges that the State of Indiana was to decide this matter for himself?

The brewers are fighting him with these posters. They are trying to confuse the situation. County local option is not prohibition.

The word of Governor Hock and the Commercial club of Kansas City, may be taken that the means of the brewers is false. It does not need to be taken to show to the average citizen that the brewers are using this means against Watson because he stood for Home Rule in Indiana.

The posters of the brewers are not true. The issue is not what they would make it.

"Let the people decide." That is what James E. Watson stands for.

THE UNSOLID SOUTH.

Taft has made his tour of speeches through the south. He is the first Republican candidate for the presidency to leave the north. Whatever the immediate effect of the trip will be it is significant. It means that Taft is a great enough man to look forward, that he is keen of perception. It means that he sees that the time, if not already at hand, is soon coming when the south must stop being "solid." The negro question is by way of being eliminated.

And with the elimination of the negro question the arena of politics will be cleared for action. The south cannot afford to be the backbone of the Democratic party without receiving adequate recognition from the party. This, since the war, it has never received.

And not the least disturbing element in the Bryan party is that southern Democrats are growing weary of Bryan's dictatorial methods and his firm grip on the party which should but does not bear his name. He has excluded the real Democrats of his party from his councils, he has departed from the tenets of his party to wander after strange gods, he fails of being an opposition and he has adopted the role of the perpetual candidate to make his party the means of self advertisement for personal gain.

Wherein can the southern Democrat whom he does not recognize find any thing but disgust at being exploited along these lines.

What Bryan might for personal reasons have done, Taft who cannot hope to gain much, has done. He has undertaken to make the southerner realize that he, too, is part of the country. The south is awakening to its physical resources—the time is coming when it will realize its political resources. After forty years the Rip Van Winkle of the

New Castle, Ind., Oct. 19.—The little town of Shirley, which was almost destroyed by the fire in which Mr. and Mrs. Victor M. Pryor lost their lives, had more visitors Sunday than it has had for years. From surrounding towns and cities a large number of people came to see the debris, a good sized delegation going from this city in automobiles.

In a signed statement to the Republican national committee, the former postoffice official gives his reasons for renouncing Bryan and the Democratic party, saying he does not want prosperity to be imperiled by the "unsound, experimental policies" of the Nebraska man, and that the country needs Taft to carry on the Roosevelt policies. The interview in part is as follows:

ATTACK ON PRIEST

Would-be Assassin's Aim Is Poor and Divine Escapes With Life.

AT A CHICAGO CHURCH.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—An attempt to assassinate the Rev. J. K. Fielding, pastor of the Corpus Christi Roman Catholic church, was made Sunday afternoon. After twice shooting at the priest in the Sunday school hallway of the church the would-be assassin knocked down scores of children standing in his way, ran into the street and escaped. The shooting and the screams of the children created excitement in one of Chicago's fashionable residence districts.

The would-be assassin had been seen loitering in and about the church for some time. He was observed writing upon a sheet of paper which he held against the building. Folding the paper he placed it in his pocket, and his actions then became suspicious. The police believe the writing was an explanation of his intended act and his identity which was to be found upon his body in the event of his committing suicide after killing the priest. A letter of similar purport was found in the possession of Giuseppe Alla, who killed Father Leo Heinricha at the latter's altar in Denver.

Aroused by the man's actions, Father Fielding approached him, saying: "What are you doing here?"

"I'm praying," replied the stranger.

As the priest turned his back the stranger stepped into the hallway and pressed a revolver against his intended victim. Father Fielding knocked the weapon away just in time to escape a bullet, which grazed his head and clipped a lock of hair.

And She Kept on....

"Aunt Chloe, do you think you are a Christian?" asked a preacher of an old negro woman who was smoking a pipe.

"Yes, brudder, I specks I is."

"Do you believe in the Bible?"

"Yes, brudder."

"Do you know there is a passage in the Scripture that declares that nothing unclean shall inherit the kingdom of heaven?"

"Yes, I'se heard of it."

"Well, you smoke, and there is nothing so unclean as the breath of a smoker."

"So what do you say to that?"

"Well, when I go dere I specks to leave my breff behind me."

Plenty of evidence to prove this.

John Morris, Carpenter, of 438 Main Street, Richmond, Ind., says: "I was a great sufferer from lumbago for several years, and the severe pains caused me many restless nights. I doctored with several physicians and used remedies without number but to no avail. Finally being advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills I went to A. G. Luken & Co's store and procured a box. I was better in three days after beginning their use, and I took in all the contents of three boxes. The lumbago has never bothered me since and I have often told people of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills."
