TARIFF WILL BE REVISED WHEN TAFT TAKES OFFICE

nor am I going to consider cabinet construction nor political appointments during this time. It is to be a period of as near absolute rest and quiet as I can make it."

After a stay at Hot Springs the Tafts may take up their residence during the months that will intervene before inauguration either at Asheville, N. C., or Atlanta, Ga. Both places are being considered, but there is some objection to Asheville because of the cold. While in Hot Springs the Tafts will occupy a cottage and will take little part in the festivities of the resort, it is stated.

"I believe that I was elected by the business men of the country, democrats as well as republicans; that I received my share of the labor vote, and that the farmers generally stayed by me," said Judge Taft. He added, dox that he was very much gratified. Going into details concerning the result he said: "In my own state and in Indiana the result was very much affected by the liquor questions, and it is very difficult to figure out just how it operated. The sweeping victories in New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Connecticut are especially gratifying to me."

His Title Now.

"Is President-elect Taft the proper title now?" was asked. "Mr. Taft, please," he replied. "You know I am not elected president yet, and will not be the president elect until after the meeting of the electoral college. We shall endeavor to remain in our capacity as private citizens as long as possible."

When asked for a statement Judge Taft said: "Please say that I am perfectly healthy, but tired." The condition of his throat caused by his strenuous campaign is little improved.

Counsel (at the end of a long speech) "Then, m'lud, comes the question of bags. They might have been full bags or half full bags, or, again, m'lud, they might have been empty bags. Judge (feeling very bored)—Or they might have been wind bags.—London Telegraph.

DEMOCRATS NOW KNOW JUST WHAT "FRAZZLE" MEANS

It Was an Old Southern Term Used by Roosevelt in Saying Democrats Would Be Defeated in Election.

ROOSEVELT PLEASSED WITH THE RESULTS.

Predicted Before Tuesday, Just How the Election Would Result—Taft's Victory Is a Triumph.

Washington, Nov. 5.—"This administration has made a steady effort and progress, which should never be allowed to deviate into unwise radicalism on one hand, nor into an unwise conservatism on the other. The nomination of Mr. Taft was a triumph over reactionary conservatism, and his election was a triumph over unwise and improper radicalism."

President Roosevelt in this sentence summed up his understanding of the popular verdict in the elections Tuesday and the overwhelming victory for Taft. He also announced his faith in the continuance of his policies during the coming four years. The message to Congress he is now preparing will urge action on reform legislation advocated last spring, and he will be disappointed if Congress fails to act on his recommendation.

The President does not seek to hide his elation over the Republican victory, which he takes as an endorsement of his administration and an affirmation of faith in his policies.

He was buried under a deluge of telegrams and letters of a congratulatory character, and has denied himself to callers while he dictates answers.

Have Their Hands Full.

"We did not make any engagements for Wednesday," said Secretary Loeb, "because we knew if Taft won we would have our hands full answering letters and telegrams. If Bryan won we would not want to see anybody."

Turning suddenly from a grave consideration of the results of the election the President observed, while a broad smile played over his face, "Democrats all over the country understand what I meant when I said Monday that he had them beat to a frazzle." There has been some curiosity as to what I meant by the term. All I can say is to tell them to look at Tuesday's election returns for the definition of the word."

The President expressed his surprise that the word and the phrase were not better understood. He had learned the word from his mother in his boyhood. It was frequently used by her and her Southern relatives. It is used in every day speech in the South and its meaning is well understood there.

The President is congratulating himself that he was able to read the signs of the times correctly and to forecast the result of the election accurately. In proof of this he made public a letter sent Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, a week before the election.

"I Told You So" Letter.

The letter is as follows: "Dear Cabot: Prophecy is very bad until after the event. Nevertheless, I must send you a line to say that I think the situation is steadily improving in Ohio."

"East of the Alleghenies I believe we shall have a larger popular plurality than four years ago; in other words, that Taft's plurality will be greater than mine, and I think that our Electoral vote will be larger east of the Alleghenies than four years ago, because I think the chances slightly favor us in Maryland, although this represents a good deal of guesswork."

"West of the Alleghenies I think we shall see a heavy falling off in the majorities, as compared with 1904, but I do not anticipate the loss of any electoral votes except in Missouri and Nevada, and I am inclined to think we have an even chance of carrying Kentucky."

The President expressed great pleasure with the returns from the South, showing an increased vote for the Republicans in many sections, especially in the business centers like Richmond, Atlanta, Savannah and Charlotte. He believes that the South is about to fall in line with many of the principal policies of the Republican party and that the party has a great field there to work in. He hopes to see the Southern sentiment, thus expressed, given encouragement.

SENATORIAL TOGA MAY GO TO JOHN W. KERN

legislature Senator Slack buried his personal views regarding the county local option bill and helped to fight for its defeat. He took the position that the democrats should oppose the bill because their own platform advocated the township unit.

It is now conceded that Senator Slack was not only of great value to the democratic party during the special session of the legislature, but that during the remainder of the campaign he rendered yeoman service to Thomas R. Marshall.

Eleven Democrats in Congress. But the place where the landslide hit hardest in Indiana was in the ranks of the congressmen. Where the republicans have had nine and still have them, they will have but two after the fourth of next March. The democrats have elected eleven congressmen.

No one expected it, not even the democrats.

Of course, the surprise of it all was the defeat of Congressman Charles R. Landis, in the Ninth district. Landis has been in congress for years and has climbed into a place of prominence in congressional circles. But the axe fell and he dropped. A contemptible campaign was waged against him for a short time before the election during which scurrilous circulars were distributed. But Landis also had the opposition of the old soldiers in his district and this had something to do with it. They claimed he had ignored them in distributing the jobs, at his command. Then Landis is a stand-patter and this did not seem to set well with his farmer constituents, so they took a fall out of him.

Then there was Congressman Overstreet, also, one of the prominent men in congress. He has served in that body fourteen years and has advanced until he is now the chairman of the committee on postoffices and post roads, the committee that has the handling of more appropriations than any other committee in congress. But the time came and he was nipped off and a democrat put in his place. Congressman Chaney, of the Second district, Congressman Holliday of the Fifth and Congressman Gilhams of the Twelfth were the other republicans who met the early frost and were laid low under the volley of ballots.

It seems strange that the people will turn out good and faithful servants that way—men who have been in the positions long enough to learn how to do things and accomplish what they go after, and put in their places men who do not know these things. But no one can fathom the mind of the average American citizen. He has his own way of doing things.

As nearly as it can be figured out at this time the next session of the legislature will contain 74 republicans and 76 democrats on joint ballot. This will enable the democrats to elect the United States senator. But the democrats will control only one branch, the house. In this branch they will have 57 members while the republicans will have only 43. The republicans, however, will have a majority in the senate, because they have seventeen hold-over senators to start with. In the last session the republicans had 53 members of the house and the democrats 47.

REASONS WHY TAFT WAS ELECTED OVER THE NEBRASKAN

lative agents of labor organizations who have been employed at Washington will have this fact impressed upon their minds in the near future.

5. The farmers of the country made up their minds that the Republican party was of more value to them than the Democratic party, and that they would fare better during another Republican Administration than with the Democrats in power. A part of the plurality which Taft received came from the agricultural regions, as had been anticipated.

6. The average voter was not beguiled into voting against Mr. Taft because he was a Unitarian and belonged to a denomination which does not subscribe to the theory of the divinity of Christ, though basing its creed upon His teachings.

7. The negro vote could not be alienated to any great extent from its loyalty to the Republican party by agitators belonging to the race on account of the Brownsville affair. The defection among this class proved to be so small as scarcely to be capable of measurement.

8. In spite of the assurances given to Mr. Bryan that the gold Democrats who bolted the ticket twelve or eight years ago would support him this time most of this class of voters voted against him again.

All of these conclusions and a few others of minor importance are set forth as the result of observations made during a two months' study of the political situation, embracing most of the states whose electoral vote was in greater or less doubt at one time or another during the campaign. Undoubtedly others have formed opinions quite similar to these.

Infants and children are constantly needing a laxative. It is important to know what to give them. Their stomachs and bowels are not strong enough for salts, purgative waters or cathartic pills, powders or tablets. Give them a mild, pleasant, gentle, laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which sells at the small sum of 50 cents or $1 at drug stores. It is the one great remedy for you to have in your home to use when your child needs it.
