

QUAKERS REGULARLY SPANKED THIS YEAR

Football Season a Failure So Far as Earlham College Is Concerned.

ODDS FAVOR DE PAUW.

METHODISTS SHOULD HAVE LITTLE TROUBLE IN TROUNCING LOCAL COLLEGE TEAM—SEVERAL PLAYERS OUT.

By Tort.
Last Saturday when the doleful results of the Rose-Earlham encounter were flashed to Richmond the championship dreams of Earlham completely evaporated.

This season Earlham has been rigorously, religiously and regularly spanked by all her opponents with the exception of one tank college—its name at present escapes us—located somewhere in the Ohio corn belt. The Quakers season closes Saturday of this week when they meet their ancient rival, DePauw, at Reid field. DePauw has an exceptionally strong team this year and the odds are about 10 to 2 she will contribute another can to Earlham's already large season's collection.

Earlham has been exceedingly unfortunate this season, luck having broken badly for its warriors at every turn. Right at the kick off of the season three or four of the veterans, who were depended upon to be the mainstays around which the team was to have been built, were forced to join the armica squad and since then the majority of the best players have been constantly in dry dock. Perhaps Lawrence has been missed more than any of the regulars. Had he been able to play at quarterback the team would have had the services of a capable, dashing field general. In his absence his place has not been filled by a satisfactory substitute and the result has been that the Quakers have gone through game after game like a ship in a storm without a rudder.

The end positions have been weak nearly all season. At the start the Quakers had a brace of ends, Hancock and Gaston, the equals of any in the state. Hancock was forced to retire with a bad knee and Gaston was laid off for failure to keep up in his studies. The loss of these two men alone weakened the team 25 per cent, then the team was further crippled by Captain Harrell's forced retirement.

WILL GO HALF WAY

Peterson Will Not Wrestle on Defensive Against Olson.

CONFIDENT OF VICTORY.

By Tort.
C. Peterson, who is matched to wrestle Charley Olson at the coliseum Thursday night, writes the following to the Palladium:

"As I am matched to wrestle Olson on the 12th inst. in your city, and knowing he is a man who is able to defend his title of light heavyweight champion of America, I fully realize that I have to be in good condition on the night of our contest, and I assure you that I am doing everything to be in condition, and able to give him the hardest tussle he ever had. We are about the same weight, and as he has agreed to throw me three times in 75 minutes, I am of the opinion that he has undertaken something he will not be able to carry through, for I really think there is not a man in America that can throw me three times in that length of time, especially so when I have a chance to go on the defensive, but I don't intend to do anything of that sort. It is my intention to meet him halfway, and I am sure the people of Richmond will see a contest, such as they never have seen before. I have wrestled for over ten years, have held the championship of the Pacific Coast and British Columbia for eight years, so I am not afraid of Olson having much the best of me."

We are also in receipt of a letter from Bob Manogoff, the Turk, and as near as we have been able to decipher his script, we think he wants another match with Olson. Boy says something about having $250 to bet that Olson can't throw him again. At the present time the Turk is in Chicago. It is not probable that Olson will take him on again.

CITY BASKETBALL LEAGUE PROBABLE

Games May Be Played at Y. M. C. A.

A city basketball league is proposed for this winter. It is not expected the Y. M. C. A. will endeavor to select a team this season. It is probable the league will be made a six or eight team affair. Games will be played under the supervision of the Y. M. C. A. and at the gymnasium.

Affairs of the Sporting World

Charley Comiskey thinks he has picked up a crack young first baseman in Tennant of Decatur.

Lajoie says all he wants out of his fall and winter is a Class A southpaw.

Catcher Billyam Sullivan of the White Sox contemplates spending most of the off season in Ireland. He will take his fan and boy Stanley with him.

Christie Mathewson's first bit of insurance business was a $20,000 policy written for J. McGraw.

Western league critics think that the Reds have got about the best young pitcher in that body in Furchner of Sioux City. Arthur Granville is touting the juvenile.

Armbruster, the former American leaguer led the Connecticut State league catchers. He made but one mistake in 120 chances. He was with Holyoke.

Fred Clarke is not out with his usual Patti-like winter announcement of his retirement. On the contrary, he has assured Dreyfuss he will be back in the spring.

Larry McLean, the Cincinnati catcher, has gone under $1,000 bond to abstain from demon run during the winter months. Of course, all bets are off when the 1909 season opens.

Ethelistic tendencies of Pitcher Harry Coveleskie, the Giant buster, do not deter him from working in a mine at Shenandoah, Pa., during the off season.

Hyatt of Vancouver, a Pittsburgh capture, tallied 100 runs in 140 games. That's close to the record.

SALOONISTS TO TEST OPTION LAW

Does Measure Kill Present Remonstrance Law?

New Castle, Ind., Nov. 9.—A test case as to whether the county local option law rendered void the remonstrance feature of the Moore law probably will be instituted here. James McCormick, one of the saloonmen deposed by remonstrance in Henry township, which closed his place about a month ago, has given formal notice that he will apply to the county commissioners at their December session for a saloon license.

McCormick's application notice is very carefully worded, so as to comply with the law in every respect. The room in which he proposed to open a bar is in the Ward Block, and formerly was occupied by a saloon owned by Andrew H. Ward, now in business in Indianapolis.

The application is made despite the remonstrance is in effect here and in Henry township, and under its provisions the last saloon has not yet closed and will not close until next month. The remonstrance became effective last Thanksgiving day, hence will not cease to be effective until Thanksgiving day, 1909.

McCormick, it is understood, is to be assisted in the test by other saloon men of this city, and possibly several outsiders where similar conditions prevail and where the outcome would have the same effect. It is contended the county option law repealed the Moore law, and that when this law died, the remonstrance secured under it also expired.

McCormick filed his application notice with a local newspaper, and expects to be heard by the commissioners before there is time to hold an election under the local option law.

HALE'S INTERVIEW WITH KAISER FOR CENTURY KILLED

managing editor of one of the largest Philadelphia newspapers.

BERLIN PRESS SHY.
Independent Papers Indulge in Sarcasm.

Berlin, Nov. 9.—Obviously in response to pressure from official quarters the Berlin press is almost universally silent in reference to the suppressed account of the interview with the Kaiser by William Bayard Hale, which the Century magazine was to have published in its December issue. Only three journals, which boast utter independence of "inspired" influence, mention the incident.

The Tageblatt publishes a cablegram from its New York correspondent directly contradicting the assurance given by the foreign office last night that no pressure was brought to bear by the German government. The correspondent asserts that the government actually "resorted to extremes in order to avoid warlike developments."

The socialist Vorwaerts asks sarcastically who is going to reimburse the Century for its destroyed plates and whether the government perhaps has a secret fund for use upon such occasions.

The democratic Morgenpost declares it is a genuine piece of good fortune that the interview was "killed." The incident is certain to figure in Tuesday's debate in the Reichstag and be adduced by various speakers as a fresh evidence of the necessity of constitutional safeguards against "imperial indiscretions."

WIFE LED TAFT INTO POLITICAL ARENA SHE SAYS

Taft, brightening up. "Indeed I do. I have studied the situation gravely, and I think I understand it well. Nothing in the whole campaign so pleased me as the compliment paid Mr. Taft by the gain in Republican votes in Virginia and other Southern states. It spoke worlds for his principles and for his popularity."

Guards Husband's Diet.
Probably Mrs. Taft's domestic life tells better what a woman should do to further her husband's interests than anything else. She guards Mr. Taft's diet, sees that his wardrobe is of a suitable sort and always in faultless condition to the minutest detail, regulates as well as she can his hours of sleep, and sees that all papers and books in which he is interested are conveniently arranged for him. Mr. Taft has always carried much of his work home with him, and one of Mrs. Taft's most constant thoughts is to have every possible convenience for him in the way of desks, stationery, book of references, etc.

Mrs. Taft spoke longingly of her children and it is evident that she is having a struggle to keep them away from her. It is probable that Charley Taft—the mention of his name here always brings forth a smile and a word of good feeling—the younger member of the family, will eat his Thanksgiving dinner with his parents.

AN EPISODE OF WAR.

The Only Coward Evans Ever Saw in the Naval Service.

After Admiral Evans had been so grievously wounded in the attack on Fort Fisher during the civil war he was picked up by a marine named Wasmouth and carried into comparative shelter. Wasmouth was killed a few minutes later. Evans' own account continues: "After Wasmouth was killed I soon fell asleep, and when I awoke it was some time before I could recall my surroundings. The tide had come in and the hole in which I was lying was nearly full of water, which had about covered me and was trickling into my ears. I could see a monitor firing and apparently very near, and the thought came to me that I could swim off to her if I only had a bit of plank or driftwood, but this I could not get. It was plain enough that I should soon be drowned like a rat in a hole unless I managed to get out somehow. Dead and wounded men were lying about in ghastly piles, but no one to lend me a helping hand. By this time I could not use my legs in any way, and when I dug my hands into the sides of my prison and tried to pull myself out the sand gave way and left me still lying in the water. Finally I made a strong effort and rolled myself sideways out of the hole."

"When I got out I saw a marine a short distance away nicely covered by a pile of sand and firing away deliberately at the fort. I called to him to pull me in behind his bar of sand, but he declined on the ground that the fire was too sharp for him to expose himself. I persuaded him with my revolver to change his mind, and in two seconds he had me in a place of safety—that is to say, safe by a small margin, for when he fired the Confederate bullets would snip the sand within a few inches of our heads. If the marine had known that my revolver was soaked wet and could not possibly be fired I suppose I would have been buried the next morning, as soon as other poor fellows were. As soon as I could reach some cartridges from a dead sailor lying near me I loaded my revolver, thinking it might be useful before the job was finished."

"When I was jerked in behind this pile of sand I landed across the body of the only coward I ever saw in the naval service. At first I was not conscious that there was a man under me, so completely had he worked himself into the sand. He was actually below the surface of the ground. The monitors were firing over us, and as a shell came roaring by he pulled his knees up to his chin, which hurt me, as it jostled my broken legs. I said: 'Hello! Are you wounded?' 'No, sir,' he replied; 'I am afraid to move.' 'All right, then,' I said, 'keep quiet and don't hurt my legs again.' The next shell that came over he did the same thing and the next notwithstanding my repeated cautions. So I tapped him with the eyes with the butt of my revolver, and he was quiet after that."

CONTEST DECIDED ON

Foster Will Attempt to Oust Congressman-Elect Boehne.

PLAN OF ACTION DECIDED.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 9.—Contests in four counties in the First district are to be started by the defeated republican county officials to get a recount and reinspection of republican ballots thrown out in Tuesday's election. It is hoped by Congressman Foster that a recount in Posey, Spencer, Warrick and Gibson counties will show enough protested ballots were thrown out by democratic election boards to overcome the eighty-nine plurality credited to Mayor Boehne (Dem.) candidate for congress.

It was officially announced by hopes to win out yet over Mayor Boehne and to carry his case before the congressional committee. In order to make a strong case, the republicans are proceeding against democratic workers who are alleged to have intimidated voters on election day. To this end the republican county commissioners today revoked the saloon license of George Eckstein, upon affidavits made by a nephew of Congressman Foster that Eckstein fought a colored man away from the polls.

Similar efforts were made to revoke the license of J. J. Manning, another Democratic saloon keeper. Prosecutor Lühring (Rep.) is having the grand jury investigate cases in precincts where Democratic workers are alleged to have beaten up negroes.

Another case being investigated by the grand jury is that of Deputy City Controller Oslage, who swore out affidavits against two negroes for violations of election law. The cases were discharged in City Court. In Posey county a Democratic inspector will have to answer to Federal court. An affidavit was issued for his arrest by Deputy United States Commissioner Wartman here today.

ST. MARY'S TO ERECT CHURCH

Funds Will Be Solicited Beginning About the First of Next Year.

THE DESIGN IS SELECTED.

WILL BE GOTHIC, AND BEAUTIFUL IN SIMPLICITY—MAGAZINE NOW ISSUED FOR LOCAL CONGREGATION.

In the November number of St. Mary's Parish Monthly, the second issue of this excellent periodical, a cut is shown of the proposed St. Mary's Catholic church. Under the cut there is a line which reads "Is It Worth an Effort?" The design was prepared by a Louisville, Ky., firm of architects. The style is Gothic and beautiful in its simplicity. The cut shows the building to be made entirely of stone and the front ornamented with ten beautiful stone pillars. The usual steeple is conspicuous by its absence.

Father Thomas A. Hoffman, assistant rector of St. Mary's church, states that no definite plans for the construction of the new church building have yet been completed, but he thinks preliminary work to raise a building fund will be started the first of next year. About four years ago the church bought considerable property surrounding the present church building and the school building, North Seventh and A streets, at an approximate expense of $20,000. Father Hoffman states that this debt has been nearly all paid off and that as soon as the entire indebtedness has been wiped out, plans will then be formulated for raising funds to erect the new church, which will undoubtedly be one of the most beautiful structures of its kind in the state.

Magazine Interesting.
The monthly magazine that St. Mary's church is putting out, is in every sense a "live wire." Every article appearing in the November issue is of the utmost interest to the church members. The editorials are bright and crisp. One of the editorial paragraphs reads as follows: "Who is the wealthy Catholic in middle north isle who gives a nicker in the envelope collection? Watch and see. Guessing contest will close the last Saturday in November. Liberal prize for correct answer."

NIPPING A CAREER.

Young W. S. Gilbert's Brief Interview With Charles Keen.

At the early age of fifteen, according to the author of a biography of Sir W. S. Gilbert, the future dramatist showed his theatrical bias to his own undoing. Enraptured with a splendid performance of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Princess theater, then under the management of Charles Keen, young Gilbert packed up a few clothes in a hand bag and actually succeeded in making an entrance to the theater with a view to going on the stage. Greatly elated at receiving the message that Keen would see him in his room, the boy lost courage when he was face to face with the great actor. "So you would like to go on the stage?" said Keen.

"Yes, sir," replied Master Gilbert, trembling in every limb.

"What's your name?"

The boy's imagination failed him at a critical moment in his life. "Gilbert," he faltered, seeking refuge in the truth.

"Gilbert," Gilbert reiterated Keen, with a sharp glance at the embarrassed boy. "Are you the son of my old friend, William Gilbert?"

"Yes," said Keen.

"Keen turned to an attendant. 'See this young gentleman home,' said he.

Legend of Moses.

The story of the cause of Moses' slowness of speech is given in the Talmud and runs as follows: Pharaoh was one day sitting on his throne with Moses on his lap when the child took off the king's crown and put it on his own head. The "wise men" tried to persuade the king that this was treason, for which the child ought to be put to death, but Jethro replied: "It is the act of a child who knows no better. Let two plates be set before him, one containing gold and the other red-hot coals, and you will find he will prefer the latter to the former." The perinient being made, the child snatched up one of the live coals, put it into his mouth and burned his tongue so severely that it was ever after "heavy and slow of speech."—New York American.

DIVORCE COURTS HORRIFY HER

Ruth Bryan Leavitt May Not Ask Decree.

Denver, Col., Nov. 9.—"Divorce courts are a horror to me, and my father, mother and all the family are utterly opposed to divorce on principle."

This was the substance of a letter written by Ruth Bryan Leavitt to an intimate friend in Denver. Reports are that she will seek separation from Artist Homer Leavitt, who is reported in Paris.

Mrs. Leavitt, it is stated, will never live with her husband again, but is content to be wife in name so long as her husband remains away.

In the last two years she has been engaged in literary work, writing little plays and short stories. She is said to be now writing a play for Mary Manning.

SPENT DAY ALONE

Charles W. Morse Denied the Privilege of Seeing Relatives Sunday.

NO FAVORS SHOWN HIM.

New York, Nov. 9.—Charles W. Morse, former banker and ice king, who is confined in the Tombs prison pending an appeal from his fifteen years' sentence, spent a quiet Sunday. He didn't express a desire to attend the regular Sunday service held in the prison and spent most of his day smoking. At other times he sat on the side of his couch with his face buried in his hands as though deep in thought. Not a single person, other than the keeper, spoke to him all day. On Sunday visitors are not permitted in the prison and even his counsel, Mr. Littlefield, was denied an audience with the prisoner.

"We show no favors here," said Warden Flynn. "Morse is no more to us than any other."

Members of Morse's family were told Saturday it would be useless for them to attempt to see him on Sunday, so none of them came. The prisoner awakened at 7 o'clock and soon after was handed breakfast consisting of ham and eggs and coffee. After he had finished that he had a rabbit. He ate heartily and then smoked. At dinner time he had beef, potatoes and bread. For a time he paced the narrow limits of his cell, but looked up as keepers passed the door. He had several papers, but did not manifest much interest in the news.

Jesse Starr, North of City, Loser.

The theft of a horse and buggy belonging to Jesse Starr, who resides northwest of the city, has been reported to the police. Starr visited friends at Williamsburg last evening and when ready to take his departure found his horse and buggy missing. The police are inclined to believe some one maliciously turned the horse loose, although it may have been stolen. The horse and rig were located at Economy this afternoon.
