

BUSINESS MEN TO EXTEND WELCOME

Commercial Men From All Parts of Indiana Here
Next Week.

BANQUET ONE OF FEATURES

STATE FEDERATION OF COMMER-CIAL CLASSES WILL BE ORGAN-IZED—MANY PROMINENT MEN ATTENDING.

Members of the Commercial club met last evening for the purpose of discussing the meeting of the Indiana Federation of Commercial clubs, which will be held in this city Wednesday and Thursday of next week for organization. It is expected that there will be at least seventy-five out-of-town business men, representing various commercial organizations throughout the state, in the city to attend the meeting.

The banquet that will be held the evening of the first day will be served by the Ladies of the Eastern Star. Local business men will be charged $1 a plate and will be permitted to invite guests. The banquet will be served in the big banquet room of the Masonic temple and it is expected there will be about 250 plates.

An excellent list of toasts for this occasion has been arranged. One of the most interesting will be "Our Business and Our Country," which will be responded to by Judge D. D. Woodmansee of Cincinnati. The toast "Publicity as an Aid to Commercial Indiana," will probably be responded to by some member of the South Bend Commercial club. The toastmaster will be the Hon. William Dudley Poulke.

One of the feature events on the program for the organization meeting will be an address delivered by the Hon. Gifford Pinchott, chief of the federal bureau of forestry. Mr. Pinchott will deliver this address at the high school auditorium and the public is invited to hear him. He will speak on "Conserving Natural Resources," a most timely subject.

The Commercial club urges the business men of this city to attend all the meetings held to impress the out-of-town delegates with the fact that commercial Richmond is taking the keenest interest, which it is, with the movement to perfect a state organization of Commercial clubs. All delegates to the meeting will be taken about the city in automobiles to see the factories, mercantile establishments and public institutions.

Oyster Shell Window Panes.
On the west coast of India is found a species of oyster, Placuna placenta, whose shell consists of a pair of roughly circular plates about six inches in diameter, thin and white. At present these oysters are collected for the pearls which they often contain, although few are fit for the use of the jeweler. But in the early days of English rule in India the shells were employed for window panes. Cut into little squares, they produced a very pretty effect, admitting light like frosted glass. When the Bombay cathedral was built at the beginning of the eighteenth century its windows were paneled with these oyster shells. In Goa they are still thus employed.—Youth's Companion.

Affairs of the Sporting World

By Tort.

Mr. Charles Olson, who wrestles Peterson at the coliseum Thursday night, wants to meet Americus again for a big side bet. Maybe Charley wants to use a club on his old friend the next time they hold a reunion. In Baltimore a few nights ago he hit him in the nose then kicked him in the stomach.

There will be some great football games Saturday. Yale and Princeton meet in their annual struggle; Michigan and Pennsylvania tie up at Ann Arbor and Cornell and Chicago meet at Cornell.

While Joe Cantillon was on his recent fishing (and boat-sinking) trip along the southern rivers he decided that an alligator hunt would be just the proper caper as the grand wind-up. He sought out a native, who promptly invited him to a hunt the following evening.

"How do you kill 'em?" Joe queried. "Oh, that—all is easy," answered the native. "Yo' stick a candle in the front of yo' hat and sit in the dark. Then the alligator sees the light and comes right up to yo'."

"Like h—l he does," responded Joseph. "He won't get the chance. If yo'll fix it so as to hang the light on the alligator, and let him sit in the dark, I'll go you, but not the way you suggested."

Here's a story that "Silk" O'Loughlin tells on Tim Hurst. One day last summer Tim was officiating in a game in which Detroit was one of the opposing clubs. Detroit's adversaries had a man on first when the batter hit to the third baseman. The latter threw the runner out at first, but Rossman took a brief nap while the first runner dashed for third. Rossman woke up in time to just miss getting the runner. "Germany" Schaefer made a great howl and asked Hurst why he did not trim his lamps. "Me lamps are all right," replied Hurst. "Why don't you buy an alarm clock for 68 cents and give it to that gazebo you have on first base?"

When Rube Waddell was tending bar in Camden, N. J., a few years ago Charley White, the sporting writer, dropped in to get something to eat, but something or other had happened in the kitchen that morning and everything put on the table was cold.

"Look here, Rube," shouted Charley, "everything is cold here." "Just reach over on that table, Mr. White," cried Rube, "and you will find the pepper and mustard."

PROTECT THE QUAIL

Farmers Do Not Take Kindly
To Slaughter of the Bird.

IS A GREAT AID TO THEM.

By Tort.

The annual slaughter of Bob White, a massacre permitted by the sovereign state of Indiana, is on. Up to date 340 Wayne county hunters have taken out licenses to hunt the beautiful little game bird and by the time the quail season closes, Bob White's family will be sadly reduced in numbers. If the practice of allowing an annual open season for quail murdering continues five years longer the efforts of the hunters and the state authorities to drive this game bird out of this section of the country will have been successful.

Many Wayne county farmers have become staunch allies of Bob White and have printed notices in the local papers announcing that no hunting nor trespassing will be permitted on their farms. The quail is the friend of the farmer, as it destroys the bugs which eat corn. Consequently there are a large number of farmers who refuse to hunt Bob White and do everything in their power to protect him from the rapacious city hunters.

In Rush county a well known farmer has organized among the farmers of that county an anti-quail hunting league. Many farmers in the county are now a member of that organization.

In the first game the representatives of the Entre Nous piled up a score of 935 to their opponents 791. The tailenders could not hold the pace and let the Carmans take the next two by a good margin.

E. Lichtenfels and Lahrman of the Entre Nous rolled 215 and 214 respectively in the first game. Markley of the Carmans rolled 212.

Marshall Greatly Harassed by Army of Candidates Who Seek State Jobs by Appointment

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 10.—The host of candidates for appointments under Governor-elect Thomas R. Marshall is growing daily. Most of the applications are going directly to Mr. Marshall at his Columbia City home and the importunities have become so numerous and pressing that out of self-defense he has issued a statement in which he says he needs rest and begs to be given time to recuperate and to consider the reforms he will urge in his message. The word has reached Indianapolis that the interests of applicants will not be furthered by harassing the governor-elect and so the various aspirants, probably will content themselves with securing the endorsement of friends, waiting for an opportune time to urge their claims upon the newly elected governor.

A great many of the would-be officeholders are asking Stokes Jackson, democratic state chairman, for his help, but his answer to one and all of them is that he is taking no part in the distribution of patronage.

ERRORS FOUND IN DEMOCRATIC COUNT

Party Men Going Over Ballots Cast in Wayne County.

LOSSES AND GAINS SHOWN.

COUNT SO FAR PROVES BENEFICIAL TO REPUBLICAN STATE
CANDIDATES—MARSHALL LOSES A FEW VOTES.

Some errors in the official count of the election returns have been found by the representatives of the democratic party that are making the count in this county. Edwin Emerick, of Indianapolis, formerly of this city has been making an official count for the democrats. He is assisted by local men of the party. The count of Emerick will be used by the democratic party in entering a contest for the state office.

The count of Emerick showed that in the twenty-seventh precinct the republican candidate for governor ought to lose ten votes, but an inspection showed the votes had been cast. It was found that five votes ought to be added to those for Sims and Billheimer each in the twenty-second precinct. In another precinct it was found Marshall had been given five too many votes and in another precinct Watson had received five too many.

Emerick laughed and regarded the vote in the twenty-fifth precinct as "very funny" and "rather strange." This precinct is located in Riverdale. Both Marshall and Watson, candidates for governor, received the same number of votes, 113.

STAGE SCENERY.

Modern Settings Tax the Ingenuity of the Builders.

The big scenic artists do little actual painting beyond making the model, unless they have a panoramic effect. That they do themselves, standing on the paint bridge, many feet from the floor, while the canvas is raised or lowered. The panoramic effects are hard to handle. One difficulty is to avoid fluttering when a draft sweeps across the stage. Mountains that tremble hazily are not conducive to illusion.

With the elaborate productions of late years the importance of the builder of scenery has increased, says Everybody's Magazine. Formerly, when the scenery consisted merely of canvas stretched over a wooden frame, it was simple enough. But the struggle for realism and sensational effects has developed difficult problems for the builder of stage scenery to solve. Every piece of scenery must be made so that it can be folded into strips five feet nine inches wide, because the doors of the baggage cars in which it is transported are only six feet in breadth. Also every piece must be light and so constructed that one scene can be removed and another put in place within ten minutes. It may take thirty hours of continuous work to get the scenery "set up," and use a technical expression, after that it is brought into the theater. After that the work of changing a scene is comparatively easy.

A DOGS' CLUB.

London's Luxurious Resort For Aristocratic Canine Pets.

London is the only city in the world boasting a dogs' club. The club is in a pleasant suit of rooms near the Trocadero and close to Regent street. Handsome rugs cover the floors, the windows are veiled in lace and silk, and luxurious sofas are ranged against the walls, while a profusion of soft pillows are scattered about for the comfort of aristocratic dogs who prefer the floor for a nap. Dainty satin lined wicker baskets are provided for the smaller pets. The membership fee is half a sovereign, but this does not include meals, baths or tips to the attendants.

Ladies going shopping or to the theater leave their pugs and poodles at the club and give the attendants in charge at the time a few shillings for looking after it, but if the dog is fed half a crown is charged. This pays for a nutron chop and milk. A whole crown provides the little animal with minced chicken. For a half sovereign Fido is bathed, brushed and perfumed, and if he is a French poodle his hair is carefully curled. A veterinary is attached to the club to see that only dogs in perfect health are admitted, all sick members being quarantined in a separate room. Blankets, boots, collars, harness, soaps and brushes and all the accessories of a fashionable dog's toilet as well as dog medicines are sold at the club.—New York Press.

A Candid Critic.

"A criticism that has helped me a great deal in my work came from a man to whom I took a picture to be framed," said a young woman who spends much of her time copying in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. "As the picture progressed my friends told me it was fine. Some of the other copyists said it had value, character, good coloring and all those things, and even one of the guards in the gallery got real friendly one day and remarked that it was the best copy of that picture he had seen. I began to think that maybe, after all, my several years of study were beginning to bear fruit. At the framer's I picked out a nice frame, and the framer began to figure on the cost. 'I'll tell you, miss,' he said, 'that frame will come to $3.98. If I were you I'd get something cheaper for that picture.'—New York Sun.

The Victim of Drink

Needs Oritine Treatment—Cure Effected or Money Refunded.

Drink first destroys ambition; breaks up ties of friendship; it kills and buries love and eventually destroys the family life.

Some of the best men in the world have been victims of drink and if there is not some member in your family that is afflicted with this disease, you are indeed fortunate.

Drink cunningly destroys the will power, and while the drunkard wants to do what you tell him, he wants a thousand times more the drink that he craves. Medical treatment is necessary to destroy the craving, and this Oritine will do.

The remedy is absolutely harmless, is thoroughly scientific and is so uniformly successful that it is sold with a registered guarantee entitling you to a refund of your money if Oritine fails to effect a cure. Booklet on "How to Cure Drunkenness." Sent free on request in plain sealed wrapper. The Oritine Co., Washington, D. C.

Oritine is in two forms, No. 1 which can be given secretly without the patient's knowledge, No. 2 in pill form for those who wish to be cured. The price of either is $1, mailed on receipt of price in plain sealed package, and both are sold under the guarantee. Oritine is sold by A. G. Luken & Co., Richmond, Ind.

The Queen Termites.
Nearly all insects increase rapidly. The queen bee will lay eggs at the rate of 300 an hour, but even she cannot compete with the termite, the so called white ant. The queen termite has been known to lay 84,000 eggs a day and to keep up an average of 80,000 a day for the whole of the laying season, which lasts about a month. The life of the queen bee is, however, longer than that of the termite. She lives and goes on laying for four or five summers and in her lifetime lays at least 1,500,000 eggs.—Liverpool Mercury.

ROOSEVELT THE FATHER OF NEW AND GREAT PARTY

there has been a general getting together of the men who believe in the right, entirely regardless of party lines, and they gave their support to Roosevelt in all his fights and they have given it to Taft and they have made themselves the real masters of the nation.

They could not support the democratic party because the democracy had proved itself both incompetent and untrustworthy. It is as much difference, that the anti-republicans as the republicans, with this great difference, that he anti-republicans are not really progressive. They are men who cling to the dead issues of the past, who place a technical question of state rights above a question of national welfare, who construe the constitution as an impediment to progress rather than a bulwark of public liberty, and whose local environment and personal experience have given them no comprehension of the commercial and industrial needs of the most rapidly developing nation on the face of the globe.

Republican Triumph.
Not for a moment was anything more expected from the democrats of either house than support for the real measures of reform brought before the two houses by the president and his true republican supporters, as they were compelled to give to escape condemnation from their own constituents. It is, therefore, no wonder that in the nation the democracy showed that its strength had been constantly waning.

In some of the states, where there was no issue between progressive and reactionaries and especially in states where the republican organization of the state failed utterly to represent the progressive policies of the Taft and Roosevelt republicanism, the election returns made a different showing. But everywhere that the real issue could be presented to the people, and was properly and honestly represented by the republican candidates, the republican pluralities ran to almost unprecedented figures, and the new republicanism was everywhere triumphant.

There is speculation now as to how the democratic party can be reorganized and made once more a party for good. From present conditions, there is no reason why it should be reorganized. Its place has been taken by a truer democracy and this democracy is in the ascendancy. Mr. Bryan as a moral force can make himself effective by upholding those who have brought about this great victory for the people. The men who are sincere in their opposition to wrong in legislation and in government generally, who are opposed to special privilege and political corruption and who believe in the rule of the people, can accomplish most good not by clinging to the old traditional democracy, but by strengthening the power of the progressives, and aiding them in devising and in enforcing measures for the betterment of general conditions.

New Force in the Nation.
For a new force has arisen in the nation, a force in the creation of which Mr. Bryan has rendered great assistance, a force which has been commanded in its different divisions by men like LaFollette, of Wisconsin; Hughes, of New York; Cummins, of Iowa; Bristow, of Kansas and the many other progressive leaders, and which has been led in its tireless Theodore Roosevelt and will be led by William Howard Taft for the next four years.

It is a mighty force, based upon honest conviction and sturdy independence, a force as clean and as true in its purposes as that which stood behind Abraham Lincoln. It will continue to control just so long as it upholds the principles of right that have given it its victory.

THE THEATER
Vaudeville at the New Phillips.
One of the most marvelous exhibitions of daring ever seen on any amusement stage, is being seen at the New Phillips this week, where Tinkham and Company, dare-devil bicyclists, are holding forth. The bicycle riding is done in a rightly called "Cage of Death." It is a miniature track, surrounded by a side wall, which stands at an angle of over 80 degrees to the floor, the whole resembling a big tub. By the use of much skill, these bicyclists have trained themselves to hold sufficient speed to ride on the sides of this track. Two at a time, they ride, passing each other, crossing each other, at a terrific speed, and riding at nearly a parallel to the floor. But the most exciting part is the act of Mr. Tinkham himself, the motorcycle fiend, who rides on this little track, nearly perpendicular to the floor, on a 3½ horse power machine. Around and around he flies at a speed of a mile a minute, making the revolutions so fast that it is almost hard for the eye to keep up with him. Any slip of the hand, a momentary lapse of judgment a brief clouding of the eye, would mean instant death. It is a thriller, a nerve grapple, if ever any man dared to toy with death for the edification of the amusement seeker.

But the rest of the bill is right up to the standard. It is a variegated bill, containing as well as the stock

In trade, the act of Burk's Musical dogs. If any one has a lapse of humility and thinks himself intelligent, he should see those dogs. Actors, musicians, boxers and comedians, they are, and no exaggeration. They keep the audience in a continuous roar of laughter and astonishment.

Eddie Foyer, as a comedian, made a big hit last night. He is especially well known around Cleveland, where he is a general favorite, as a member of the Hippodrome family. His real stunt is in aquatic astonishments, and it was quite a surprise to see him in the role of monologist; but he carried off the palm without any trouble.

The singing and dancing act of Mr. Hayes and Miss Rayfield was an especially pleasing nature. Miss Rayfield brings on the stage the ingeniousness of a girl yet in her teens, and she sings extremely well. Mr. Hayes is an old favorite in Richmond, and only added to his laurels last night.

The ever popular illustrated songs, and the moving pictures complete the bill.

Partello Stock—Gennett.

An immense audience greeted the Partello Stock company on its initial opening of a week's engagement last night at the Gennett. "The College Girl" was the attraction and it was given an elaborate production by a capable and competent cast, headed by Geo. F. Carroll and Ida Parks. They interpreted the roles of Billy Bullock, "the coach" and "the girl" respectively, to a nicety. The remaining cast was excellent. The vaudeville between the acts was far above the average carried by a repertoire organization. Tonight the beautiful story "The Girl from the South," adapted from the late Mary J. Holmes novel "Tempest and Sunshine." Tomorrow afternoon "The Girl and the Thief," a rural comedy will be presented.
