

MARSHALL REFUSES TO ALLOW STATE TO PAY HOUSE RENT

present democratic member of the state tax board, has not made any arrangements to vacate the office when his term expires.

Two candidates are announced for the position of state oil inspector, which is now held by Sid Conger of Shelbyville. They are Joseph Kelley, secretary of the democratic state committee and John J. McEvoy, a member of the house in the last legislature. McEvoy is in this city now working like a beaver for endorsements and says he hopes to land the place. Kelley has not made any announcement of his candidacy but it is said that if the appointment comes he will not turn it down. The state oil inspectorship pays something like $6,000 a year, all in fees.

Perkins Favored.

There is a movement on foot to try to land a place as state labor commissioner for Edgar A. Perkins, president of the State Federation of Labor. This pays $2,000 a year. During the campaign Perkins led the fight of organized labor against James E. Watson, and his friends are insisting that there is nothing too good for him in return for what he did.

Tim Griffin, of this city, is an avowed candidate for custodian of the state house. He held the job for twelve years under democratic administrations. It pays $2,000 a year, and the custodian has the appointment of an assistant custodian and fifteen janitors.

Governor-elect Marshall has given out no intimation as to who will be his private secretary, but there is a rumor that it will be a South Bend man. Frank E. Hering, of South Bend, who was here last night was asked if he knew anything about it and he said he did not. The rumor did not go far enough to suggest the name of the man who is supposed to get the place.

The United States senatorship fight is becoming warmer right along. John W. Kern is tied up in a law suit and will not be able to do anything with the senatorial muss for several days, but he is receiving more promises of support right along in letters from over the state. Yesterday he received a copy of resolutions adopted by the democratic central committee of Hamilton county endorsing his candidacy.

B. F. Shively is here mixing among the senators and representatives as they come in, and he is making about the most active canvass of any of the candidates. John E. Lamb dropped in from Terre Haute yesterday afternoon to look in, he said, and L. Ert Slack comes up from Franklin almost every night for the same purpose. They will all open their headquarters here in a short time.

NOT AT OUTS WITH HUSBAND

DUCHESS OF MANCHESTER.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 13.—The Duke and Duchess of Manchester are not in danger of either divorce or separation, according to Mrs. Calvin S. Smith, of 3982 Lake avenue, who has just returned to Chicago after spending several weeks with them in England. The persistent rumors of conjugal infidelity in the ducal household, she says, are falsehoods.

Such a thing would never be thought of by any one at all well acquainted with the family life of the Duke and Duchess. They are perfectly happy and congenial. Their home life is ideal.

"The Duchess has a beautiful character and the Duke is everything that is charming and cultivated. There is no excuse for the printing of rumors that they are unhappy."

Hering Opposes Shively in Race for Senate Seat

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 13.—The name of Frank E. Hering, of South Bend, was added last night to the list of candidates for the United States Senate. Hering was here discussing the matter with friends. He will formally announce within the next week. His candidacy develops a new phase of the senatorial contest, owing to the fact that he and Ben Shively live in the same town. Hering and Shively are rival leaders of the St. Joseph County Democracy. Hering attributes his defeat for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor last spring to Shively's opposition. Both Shively and Hering were at the Denison Hotel last night interviewing members of the Legislature.

IN THE WOMAN'S WORLD

What They Are Doing--Little Things of Interest.

REFRIGERATOR DRAIN.

The Operation of Emptying It Cannot Be Attended by Disaster.

The blessings which come to us through the advancement of knowledge and science are never unmixed with their penalties. Take the refrigerator, for instance. It is a comfort and a convenience which has taken such a deep rooted hold on us that it is now a necessity, and no matter how humble it may be, there is no home without a refrigerator. But a nuisance attending it is the matter of emptying the drip pan, which must be done at regular intervals, and because of the necessarily flat shape of this receptacle so that it may slide readily under the ice chest the task of disposing of the accumulation of water is more often than not attended by some spilling. No matter what amount of care is exercised, it seems almost impossible to pull the pan from under the chest without accident.

In some of the most up to date hardware and house furnishing stores there is now being shown an article of this character which greatly facilitates the removal of the pan. The latter may be filled almost to the point of overflowing, yet it can be pulled out without giving the matter the least care and carried anywhere without the least danger of disaster. It is almost impossible to upset its contents. Care in handling is not at all essential. Clad in her finest dress, a woman can dispose of the refrigerator overflow without danger.

The new refrigerator pan looks like a kettledrum more than anything else. It is a low, flat cylinder. Unlike the usual pan for this purpose, it has a covered top. Being more or less familiar with the approximate location of the drip pipe, the new pan is thrust carelessly under the refrigerator. The drops falling anywhere on its top, the water is conducted into the interior of the receptacle by means of a series of channels which carry the drippings to an inlet at one edge. At this point on the circular side walls of the can there is also a handle by which it is pulled from its resting place and carried to the point of emptying. Under the handle there are also other openings to facilitate the precipitation of the contents, but in order that it may not overflow at this point they are covered with a hood of the same metal of which the pan is made. In transporting this receptacle from point to point, as is necessary, it is carried by the handle in precisely the same manner as a grip sack. This enables the pan to be made larger than those of the type in use at present because of its greater convenience, it being possible to carry a greater burden in this way. Any woman will recognize the convenience of this innovation and will wonder that the idea was never worked out before.

A Plate Heater.

For use in the butler's pantry to keep dishes and food hot a very convenient little heater has been designed on the order of those seen in hotel restaurants. The only difference is in the size, the family heater being considerably smaller, just large enough to hold a couple of plates or a small platter. The heater is made to attach to either the gas jet or an electric wire, and it can be regulated to any temperature desired. For breakfast this will be found a great help in serving crisp, hot toast or in maintaining the high temperature of coffee and water. No well equipped dining room or serving pantry is complete without at least one of these heaters, and in large houses several are installed to facilitate the serving of large dinners and luncheons.

Brushing a Dress.

In brushing a garment that holds dirt and dust place it upon the ironing board and sweep it with the whisk broom, always in the direction of the weave, which should be from the band to the hem. Even this process will be postponed until Tuesday afternoon, December third, as the usual time for meeting would fall on Thanksgiving day.

An enjoyable reception was given yesterday afternoon by the officers of the Home Department of the South Eighth Street Friends' church to its members and to the primary departments and cradle roll. Miss Esther Fletcher, superintendent of the primary department and Miss Margaret Wickett, superintendent of the Cradle Roll, had prepared a program which was especially pleasing. It was as follows:

Plano Solo—Miss Haley Harold.
Vocal Solo—Miss Alice Laning.
Plano Solo—Miss Ruth Peltz.
Address—Mrs. H. R. Keates.

Mrs. H. F. King gave an interesting account of her visit to Rome and audience with the pope. Children's games were enjoyed by the members of the primary department. The reception rooms were attractively decorated with ferns and flowers. Luncheon was served during the afternoon.

Grube, Joint Senator from Kosciusko and Marshall Counties; David Rodebaugh, Representative from Elkhart county; W. L. Sarber, Representative from Marshall County.
