First Heavy Snowfall of Year

Earth Is Covered by White Mantle Today and Children and Lovers of Winter Weather Made Happy.

"It snows," cried the Garfield pupil and hilarious with joy he snatched a handful of "the beautiful" from the sidewalk and rolling it into a ball pasted it at "Doc" Fuston, who was passing in his express wagon. Kerplunk resounded the compact of snowball against "Doc's" coat. Then thus did "Doc" respond: "There were other remarks, but—O, guess."

It was only one of a number of similar incidents that occurred throughout the city today. The first real snowfall of the season began about 8 o'clock. It came down in great big flakes that made all the children think "Mother Goose" certainly was doing a thorough job. When it was about one inch in depth, the pin feathers started falling and later these were converted into tiny rain drops. Everything was covered by the mantle of white and the first real winter day of the season had arrived.

An old axiom has it that the first three days of December govern the weather for the winter. No more beautiful days could be imagined for the season than the first three of this month. The air was clear, crisp and bracing, and the sky a clear blue without a fleck of cloud. But with the fourth day there came a change and now guesses are being made to the effect that may be Dec. 4 may count somewhat in determining the weather for the winter.

Now all small boys hearken—the annual warning of the police superintendent is due. He will tell of the awful things in store for him who throws snowballs. Think of the bug-a-boos of the super private office. Then, too, there are the school marm to be considered. They will write "touch not, taste not, handle not" on the blackboards in red chalk—fearful warning. Then you are to go home and wonder why on earth God made snow, if not to play in and smear on girls' faces.

ATTENDS SCHOOL WITH LEG BROKEN

New Parfs Boy Victim of Runaway Accident.

New Paris, Ohio, Dec. 4.—It was about a week ago that Raymond Souers, a senior in the high school, was injured in a runaway. He complained of his leg, but believed there was nothing seriously the matter, and continued to attend school. The limb continued to become worse and finally the boy went to see a physician about it. He was told one of the bones was broken. Now the limb is encased in plaster and Souers can not walk except upon crutches.

His subject, "Abraham Lincoln" is said to be one of the most beautiful discourses on the life of the great martyred president ever delivered, full to the brim of human interest, pathos, droll humor and beautiful incidents. WEEKLY MEETING FOR Y. M. C. A. BOYS

Reports of Dayton Meeting Made Last Night.

The meeting of the boys of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. last evening in the Commercial club rooms, was attended by some 120 members and was such a great success, that it was decided that the weekly meetings hereafter should be held on Thursday night. In this way all the boys can attend as their work after school will not interfere. Last evening the delegates who attended the Boys' conference at Dayton last week, gave reports, which were very interesting. In almost every case speech making was something new and several felt pretty weak about the knees. Music was furnished by a part of the high school orchestra, directed by Castle Hobson.

ORDINANCE WAS NOT OBEYED

Snow and Slush Allowed to Remain on Sidewalks.

"What became of the city ordinance requiring snow to be removed from sidewalks, today?" was the comment heard on all sides this morning. Evidently Main street business men must have forgotten it. There were other business men not located on Main street, who appearances indicated must have been too busy to know it had snowed. At any rate there was a number of walks in front of Main street store rooms that went uncleaned. Pedestrians tramped through the snow and slush and grumbled. In front of one hardware store was displayed a number of scoops and snow shovels. Evidently they were intended for use by other people. The walks in front of the store were not cleaned.

The city set a bad example. Although it had not snowed for two hours, the Main street crossings had not been cleaned by the street department at noon. Even the Eighth and Main street crossings were covered with the slush from melting snow. This is the most important corner in the city and thousands of persons pass each day.

TWO NEW CASES OF SMALLPOX

Two new cases of small pox were reported to city health officer, Dr. Chas. Bond, this morning. A case of diphtheria was reported in the family of John Sullivan at 96 State street. Sanitary Inspector Young was busy today quarantining persons who have come in contact with the patients and putting up "red" and "yellow" quarantine cards. All possible means are being employed to stamp out the disease. It is not known how the patients became afflicted with the disease.
