STATE SCORES
IN HAINS CASE

Witnesses for Prosecution
State There Was Interval
Between the Shots.

GRAPHIC STORY IS TOLD

DEFENSE PLANS TO SHOW RE-
VOLVER WAS FIRED SO RAP-
IDLY NO AID WAS POSSI-BLE.

Flushing, N. Y., Dec. 19.—The trial of Thornton Jenkins Hains on charges of aiding his brother, Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., in the killing of William E. Annis, was adjourned last night until Monday, after a day in which the state developed the strongest testimony so far adduced. Two witnesses, Herbert F. L. Funke and Arthur Andrews, both eye witnesses of the shooting, swore that there was an interval between the first shot fired by Captain Hains at Annis and the others that came in fairly rapid succession. Both of these club members declared positively that Thornton Hains pointed his revolver at those on the boat after the first shot and before the succeeding shots were fired. An exhaustive cross-examination on this point, material to the prosecution's case, failed to shake their testimony. Andrews stated that following the first shot he saw the defendant point his revolver at witness' father.

Tells of the Firing.
"There was a first shot, then an interval when there was some more shots in quick succession, then a pause and a last shot, which went through the sail. I ran when I saw Thornton point his revolver at my father and stood under the dock," said Andrews. The witness, Funke, gave a graphic description of the shooting of Annis. Standing by with his arms folded the army captain waited until Annis' boat swept up beside the float, said the witness, then lifting the obscuring sail, Captain Hains fired several shots at the publisher.

The prosecution claims that this evidence is another proof of the state's contention that the defendant was a principal and was aiding his brother to kill Annis. Counsel for Thornton J. Hains are preparing for a unique demonstration with which William E. Annis was slain to show that the writer was not a principal with his brother, Captain Peter C. Hains Jr., in the shooting. In the presence of witnesses the replica of Capt. Hains' revolver will be fired to prove that the seven shells in the weapon can be discharged within one and five-eighths seconds. It is hoped by counsel that the evidence showing the rapidity with which the weapon is discharged will refute the state's contention that while the shooting of Annis was in progress Thornton Hains drew his revolver and prevented Annis' friends from coming to his assistance.

Heard Only Four Shots.
Dr. L. N. McBride of Manhattan, a member of the club, was another witness today. "I was on the float when I heard the first shot," he testified. "I was looking under a rowboat when I heard the shot. I looked up and heard more shots. I saw the figure of a man with his hand holding a revolver and his arm concealing his face. I stooped down again."

After the shooting the physician said he got out of the way. He heard only four shots. On cross-examination Dr. McBride said he did not see Brechtfield, Andrews or Roberts on the dock, and heard none of the expressions which it has been testified that the defendant made about "keeping off" and similar threats to bystanders. John Tanning, the boatman who seized Captain Hains by the wrist at the time of the shooting, and who has been missing since early in October, has been located and he will likely be a witness in the case.

Court then adjourned until Monday.
Given the Mitten.
One cold day a lovelorn young man, who had for some time harassed a young lady with his attentions, was hurrying along the street behind this very young lady when he perceived, with delight, something drop from her muff to the sidewalk. Picking it up, the gallant young man rushed ahead and, accosting her, smilingly held out her recovered property. Without deigning to accept it, she eyed him coolly a moment, then said: "You may keep it. It's my mitten"—Brooklyn Life.

INSURANCE DEBATE

Will Be Held Week After the
Address of E. E. Perry,
January 11.

TO TAKE FINAL ACTION.

In order that the discussion of fire insurance by E. E. Perry, of Indianapolis, before the Commercial club, January 11, will be fresh in the memories of the members of the club when the question comes up for discussion, it has been arranged for the club to hold a meeting a week after Mr. Perry's visit. At this time the arguments will be made on the old line insurance. The person who will discuss this subject will be an authority on the subject and will be chosen by the local old line insurance members association.
The club will take action on the matter after hearing the discussion of both kinds of insurance; their advantages and disadvantages. The subject is very appropriate at this time because the local business firms and factories who have hazardous risks have to pay a higher rate under the new Dean schedule.

BEETHOVEN AND BUSINESS.

Selling His Music Was Distasteful to the Great Composer.
An extremely interesting article which has appeared in a German musical and theatrical paper under the above heading contains the following statement, says a London exchange: Beethoven never bargained in the ordinary way. His fees for a composition were demanded briefly and in a decided manner, and he always pointed out when mentioning a price that he meant guineas and not sovereigns, or, rather, their equivalent in Austrian coin. In 1801 he wrote to a music firm at Leipzig: "Now the unpalatable business part is done with. I wish things could be managed differently in this world. There should be only one music publisher to whom the artist might take a fee according to his requirements. As it is, he has to be partly a tradesman. Good heavens, how different and unpalatable this is!" But this plea was never fulfilled, and Beethoven had to remain "half a tradesman" to the end.
As a suggestion of how dedications are occasionally made, the following letter, which Beethoven wrote to the same publisher in 1802 from Vienna, is interesting:
"The lady in question can have a sonata, and I will do my best to carry out her aesthetic ideas. The price is 5 guineas (ducaten), and for this she may retain the sonata for a year as her private property, but not for publication. At the end of the year the sonata becomes my property—that is to say, I have the right to publish it, and if she thinks it an honor she may ask to have the work dedicated to her."
This, from the business point of view of the lady in question, is surely a tempting offer. At least, so the art patroness of today would think if she had a chance of suggesting to a Beethoven the "aesthetic idea" for a sonata, to retain such a treasure in her own hands for a twelvemonth and thereafter have it dedicated to her—and all for 5 guineas!

MANY WILL ATTEND

Local Sunday School Workers
Will Go to the State Convention.

A SPLENDID PROGRAM.

Invitations extended the local leaders in the Sunday school movements by those arranging for a special session of the Indiana Sunday School association, to be held at Indianapolis December 28 and 29, have in most instances been accepted. Inasmuch as the program includes many workers of international and national importance the opportunity for meeting these gentlemen is a big inducement to the local workers to attend. Among those most prominent who will be on the program are: Marion Lawrence of Chicago, general international secretary; W. C. Pearce of Chicago, superintendent of the international adult class department, and Dr. Franklin McElfresh, also of Chicago, and superintendent of the international training department. The invitations extended to heads of the Wayne County Association, are likewise extended to others who desire to attend.

A DREADFUL WEAPON.

The Slashing Sharks' Teeth Club of the Polynesians.
Clubs were the weapons of primitive and savage man. Ancient specimens from Mexico are heavy sticks grooved along the side for the insertion of blades of bositian—that is, volcanic glass. The Sioux club is a flat piece of wood, curving and widening away from the grip and terminating in a spherical head, which in modern times carries a long spike, while the blades of several butcher knives are commonly inserted along the margin. The national museum of the United States possesses a great variety of these shocking weapons, designed, as the frontiersmen say, to "knock down the white man and then to brain him and cut him into mince meat." The King-mill Islanders and other Polynesians make dreadful slashing weapons by securing rows of sharks' teeth along a haft of wood.
These weapons vary from a few inches to sixteen feet in length, and it has been said that in all the range of weapons devised by mankind there is nothing more blood curdling to behold. They show how the sword may have been evolved from the club even by tribes unacquainted with the use of metals. African weapons, again, are exceedingly complicated owing to the acquaintance of the natives with iron. The standard club is converted into a sort of tomahawk by the addition of blades or into a primitive spear by the addition of a sharp spud. The plain clubs in the African area are used chiefly for throwing.
The small knobbed clubs, or "kerries," such as are found among the Kaffirs and other African tribes, are generally used as missiles. Whereas the club proper was soon brought to perfection among savage tribes and was long ago abandoned as a weapon of civilized warfare, the missile—typified by the throwing clubs or "kerries"—is still being improved upon in boomerangs, bows and arrows, crossbows and firearms.
This concern was read carefully by Mr. J. H. Perry, of Indianapolis, who is a member of the club, and he is now preparing a paper on the subject of the club, which he will read at the meeting of the club on January 11.

BEETHOVEN AND BUSINESS.

Selling His Music Was Distasteful to the Great Composer.
An extremely interesting article which has appeared in a German musical and theatrical paper under the above heading contains the following statement, says a London exchange: Beethoven never bargained in the ordinary way. His fees for a composition were demanded briefly and in a decided manner, and he always pointed out when mentioning a price that he meant guineas and not sovereigns, or, rather, their equivalent in Austrian coin. In 1801 he wrote to a music firm at Leipzig: "Now
