

NEW PARIS WILL HAVE INSTITUTE

The One to Be Held Next Week Promises to Be the Largest and Best.

CULBERTSON TO LECTURE

HE WILL GIVE A SERIES OF ADDRESSES ON VARIOUS PHASES OF FARM LIFE—VERY INTERESTING PROGRAM.

New Paris, O., Jan. 9.—The eighteenth annual institute of the New Paris Farmer's Institute will be held at the Public Church, New Paris, Friday and Saturday of next week. The program for the sessions has just been given out and includes musical numbers and a large variety of subjects of interest to the farmers and their wives. William H. Culbertson of New Concord O., will lecture on many phases of the farm question. He is an authority on this subject.

The executive committee, including C. W. Bloom, president, R. E. Morrow, vice president; Earl Brandenburg, secretary; E. O. Murray, treasurer; Clarence O. Barr and Harry Bragg, believes that the institute this year will be the best yet given. The farmers of this community are promising to support the institute in a better manner than heretofore.

A question box will be maintained and every one interested in the subjects to be discussed may drop a written question in the box. Mr. Culbertson stated to the executive committee that he approves of this manner of bringing out what the farmers are interested in. It is the local conditions which he living in an entirely different community, may not be aware of unless the matter is suggested to him.

The program is as follows:

CHOSE PARK COUNTY

Commission Recommends Location for Proposed Tuberculosis Hospital.

COST WOULD BE $24,000

Indianapolis, Jan. 9.—The report of the State Tuberculosis Hospital Commission has appeared. The commission, composed of William S. Holman, Benj. F. Bennett, J. N. Babcock, Isaac R. Strouse and Dr. Henry Moore, was appointed by the Governor following an appropriation in 1907 for the purpose of selecting a site for a proposed State hospital for treating tuberculosis patients. The appropriation was for $30,000, with the understanding that a site of at least 500 acres was to be purchased. The report shows the selection to have been made in Parke county, near Rockville, at a cost of $24,000. Of the remainder, the commission returned $1,116.72 to the State treasury.

The site purchased by the commission contains 504 acres and is situated three miles east of Rockville, about one mile from two railroad stations, one the Michigan division of the Vandalla railroad and the other the Central Indiana, formerly known as the Midland railroad. The site is well equipped with excellent water, has 125 acres of bottom land, fifty acres of upland soil in cultivation, with the remaining rolling or hilly. Much material is found on the site for building purposes, such as sand, gravel, stone, timber, etc. While the commission can not select plans for proposed buildings, until an appropriation has been made, a number of recommendations have been made. Such an appropriation is earnestly solicited at the hands of the incoming Governor and the Legislature.

To Treat Tuberculosis.

The commission has found that tuberculosis can be successfully treated in Indiana climate, and that the most economical and effective treatment can be had in a sanatorium. Such an institution sufficiently large to permit treatment of 260 people is recommended. Admission to the sanatorium, it is recommended, should be through examination by a lung and throat specialist selected by the State, one in each congressional district. It is also recommended that a school for training nurses in the science of treating tuberculosis be maintained at the Sanatorium. An appropriation of $500,000 is asked.

A CLASH WITH TURNER.

Retort of the Print Seller Who Longed to See the Artist.

Turner, happening one day to pass a printshop, noticed in the window a copy of one of the engravings from his famous "Liber Studiorum." The print was in a very dirty, ragged state. Entering the shop, Turner asked to see the master and when the man came forward proceeded at once to blame him in no measured terms for having neglected so valuable a print and for having allowed it to become so disfigured. The man protested that it was no fault of his, as he did but offer the engraving for sale in the same state in which he had bought it from some other dealer.

This did not satisfy Turner, however, and he and the man continued arguing for some time.

At last the print seller lost all patience.

"Perhaps, sir," he said, "when you have quite finished what you have to say you will kindly tell me what you have to do with this engraving and what business is it of yours whether the print is clean or dirty."

"This is what I have to do with it," answered the enraged artist—"It was I who drew the original of that print. My name is Turner, and I did every line of that engraving with my own hand. Now do you wonder that I am angry at seeing my work in so disgraceful a state?"

"Indeed, sir," replied the print seller. "So you are the great artist himself! All my life long it has been my wish that I might some day have the good fortune to see Mr. Turner. Now that I have seen him I sincerely hope that I may never see him again."

REGULATING BALLOONS.

France Made the First Laws Governing Aerial Traffic.

In 1871, when French balloons from beleaguered Paris were dropping on the "sacred soil" of Prussia, a royal decree declared them confiscate as contraband of war. And on the conclusion of peace a measure was passed through the German reichstag which forbade under penalty of death any future similar aerial violation of German territory during time of war.

So long ago as 1830, again, balloon ascents were made illegal in Turkey, so far as regards Constantinople and forty miles around, and in 1872 the prohibition was extended to include the entire Turkish empire. To France, however, belongs the distinction of having made the first laws for the regulation of aerial traffic. In 1784 it was solemnly decreed that nobody should be permitted to go up in a balloon "or any other kind of aerostatic machine" which was worked by burning spirits of wine or any other means of making a fire.

Later, in 1811, it was enacted in France that henceforth no balloon, whether free or captive, should be permitted to ascend with any species of furnace or stove, that no one should be allowed to ascend in a balloon unless he carried a parachute and that ascents were not to be begun later than one hour before sunset nor earlier than an hour after sunrise. Furthermore, no ascents whatever were to be undertaken during the gathering of the harvest nor for six weeks prior thereto.

The First New Woman.

"We new women are really not so new as we think we are," said one of them. "In the thirteenth century there were lots of us. Can anything 700 years old be new? The University of Bologna had for professor of jurisprudence Matrella d'Andria. She was no mere new thing. Beautiful. Her charms were so overpowering that the trustees made her lecture behind a curtain. When she lectured openly the students, their minds wholly occupied with her beauty, could not attend to what she said. Madonna Manzolina was professor of anatomy, Matilda Trombont taught languages and Marie Magnesi held the chair of mathematics. This university was by no means a second rate one. On the contrary, it was perhaps the leading university of Europe. It had 10,000 students."

Called For the Author.

The Friars, an organization of theatrical press agents, dined a manager more conspicuous for his shrewdness than for his culture. When the menu had been properly discussed the guest of honor amused his hosts by making a speech notable not only for its grace and wit, but for some show of erudition. He sat down at last amid loud applause, when Augustus Thomas, at the same time joining the handclapping, shouted: "Author! Author!"—New York Tribune.

Emotional England.

Ours is a nation of sentiment. We are probably more sentimental in a tearful way than any other country in Europe. The strongest man in England can weep when he hears a hymn that used to be played on the organ of the village church when he was a boy, but there is not much depth in the tears. They are not very salt.—London Ladies' Field.

A True Heroine.

"What is your idea of a heroine, John?" asked the wife of his bosom as she looked up from the novel she was reading.

"A heroine, my dear," answered John, "is a woman who could talk back, but doesn't."—Chicago News.

Helps Some.

Church—And has he done anything to relieve suffering humanity? Gotham—Oh, yes; he has sent his daughter abroad to take her singing lessons.—Yonkers Statesman.

A Real Conversion.

"So you are converted, Maggie?" a maid's mistress said to her.

"I don't know, ma'am," said the maid seriously, "but I seem to be. A great change has certainly come over me."

"How great a change?" said the lady.

"Well, ma'am," replied the maid, "since that there revival I always sweep under the mats now."—Washington Star.

LOCAL DOG FANCIERS

Held Meeting Last Evening And Plan to Participate In Poultry Show.

MANY ENTRIES EXPECTED.

"A meeting of dog fanciers was held last evening with Mr. Allen, superintendent of the poultry and pet stock show to be given at the Pythian Temple, January 13 to 16, and it was decided to make an exhibit of dogs. Any one having a dog in any of the following classes are asked to exhibit it same at this show. A nominal entrance fee of 25 cents for each dog goes to the association. A free exhibitor's ticket will be given the exhibitor.

Fox terriers, English setters, pointers, bull dogs, bull terriers, Maltese terriers, poodles, coach dogs, mastiffs, great danes, St. Bernards, Scotch collies, red Irish setters, Boston bulls, Russian poodles, fox hounds, beagles, dachshunds.

All persons owning dogs in any of these classes are asked to exhibit them.

The indications are that over sixty dogs will be on exhibit. Those who desire to exhibit are asked to drop a postal card or telephone any of the following committee, not later than Monday noon, January 11, giving your name, house address, number of dogs you will exhibit and the breed.

Committee—O. C. Krone, L. M. Emmons, Joe Cook, Richard Thomas, John Thorman.

THE COCKET WRITERS.

What Happened When England Abolished Their Offices.

In the long room of the London custom house years ago were twelve officers styled "cocket writers." They wrote certificates that goods had been duly entered and the duties paid. They were also known as patent officers because appointed for life by letters patent from the crown. Their salaries were nominal, 600 a year, but they were permitted to remunerate themselves by extorting fees from the merchants—fees which in some cases amounted to a thousand pounds a year. In 1851 the treasury determined to abolish patent offices and called upon the twelve cocket writers to furnish a statement of their emoluments. The officers, ignorant of the treasury's purpose, imagined that the government intended to impose an income tax. Ten of the writers, therefore, returned a statement which understated their fees by several hundred pounds. The other two furnished an honest statement. In a few days ten clerks were surprised and disgusted and the treasury notified the cocket writers that their offices would be abolished and that they would be compensated by pensions rated according to the returns they had themselves furnished. There were gnashing of teeth and broad smiles in the long room. One of the two honest cocket writers enjoyed his pension for fifty-two years, during which time the treasury paid him £52,000.

Where Dollars Originated.

Joachimstahl, near Carlsbad, is historic as the birthplace of the original dollar. This was the silver gulden-groschen, coined in 1519 by order of Count Schlick from the metal of a recently opened mine, and it became known as the Joachimsthaler, or "thaler" alone for short. Before 1600 the nimble English language had already made "dollar" of this. Therefore this name was loosely used of all manner of coins, varying in value from 75 cents to $1.25 and belonging to all manner of countries, from Sweden to Japan. It was from the prevalence of the Spanish "dollar" in the British-American colonies at the time of their revolt that the modern "almighty dollar" was derived, while in modern English very recent slang has given the name to the crown piece.

What It Was.

She was visiting a Chinese restaurant for the first time and had ordered, among other things, an omelet. After sampling the succulent chop suey and the appetizing chow mein she turned her attention to what seemed a dish of pancakes. Puzzling over the combination of ham, onion and other ingredients, she suddenly exclaimed to her companion, "Why, there's egg in this!"

"Sure; it's the omelet," he replied.

THE PICTURE TRUST

Business Consolidated Into Easily Controlled Concern Of Big Capital.

WILL LICENSE ISSUES.

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—Grown to such enormous magnitude that the money involved runs into many millions; the moving-picture business has been consolidated into an easily controlled though huge business machine. The seven leading picture machine manufacturers, including Lubin, of Philadelphia; Edison, Paur, the Vitagraph and the Biograph companies, have merged their interests, and between them will exercise absolute control over the moving picture business of the country.

The first step was taken more than a year ago, when the film makers formed a hard and fast combination and came into complete control.

This resulted in the issuance of licenses to 100 selling agents. It also prevented the placing of any film or picture before the public before it was first approved by the combination.

The Feast of Dolls.

The feast of the dolls is the quaintest of all the little Japanese girls' festivals. In the storehouse, where are kept all the family treasures, there are boxes filled with dolls which have come down from the grandmothers and great-grandmothers. Each new bride takes her doll's house, and she keeps the feast each year till her eldest daughter is old enough to take it up.
