YOUNG COUPLE QUIETLY WEDS

Walter Snavely and Miss Reed Married.

A marriage license was issued this afternoon to Walter Snavely and Miss Ruby Reed, both well known young persons of the city. Mrs. Reed, mother of the young lady, notified this paper this morning that her daughter and Snavely were going to Indianapolis today to spend a few days with friends. The young folks were married before leaving the city by the Rev. S. W. Traum. Snavely is the son of John Snavely, claim agent for the Pennsylvania, and Miss Reed is the daughter of George Reed, a foreman at the Starr piano company's plant.

THE FIRST DIRECTORY.

Quaint Olden Time New York Business and Social Addresses.

In the first directory of New York city, which was issued in 1786, there are some peculiar and quaint entries. For instance, in those days it was not uncommon for medical practitioners to sell drugs, as is shown by the following address: "Samuel Bredhurst, physician and apothecary, 64 Queen (now Pearl) street."

Clergymen of that period were exceedingly precise regarding their titles. Thus, "Abraham Bache, reverend of the Church of England, 29 Smith street," and "Joze Phelan, clergyman of the Church of Rome, 1 Beekman street."

Below's Wonderful Memory.

Bülow had a wonderful memory, as was evidenced by his astonishing feat of memorizing Kiel's concerto, which the man who wrote it could not accompany without notes. His accuracy was almost infallible. He was once rehearsing a composition of Liszt's for orchestra in that composer's presence without notes. Liszt interrupted to say that a certain note should have been played piano. "No," replied Bülow, "it is sforzando." "Look and see," persisted the composer. The score was produced. Bülow was right. How everybody did applaud! In the excitement one of the brass wind players lost his place. "Look for a b flat in your part," said Bülow, still without his notes. "Five measures farther on I wish to begin."

The Word "Asphalt."

Of deceitful ancestry is the word "asphalt." Apparently it means "not slippery." The Greeks themselves were tempted to derive "asphaltos" from "a," not, and "sphallo," make to fall or slip. However, the word is really of unknown barbarian origin—Phoenician, some say. Asphalt was in use very early in history. It is said to have been the slime with which the infant Moses' ark of bulrushes was daubed and which the builders of the tower of Babel used instead of mortar.

Butchery in War.

In one of the Du Guesclin's victories so many English were taken captive that even the humblest soldier among the French had one or more prisoners. The victors, however, fell to quarreling, and ill feeling becoming rife in the French army in consequence of these quarrels over the prisoners, Du Guesclin ordered all the captives to be butchered, and the brutal order was carried out.

A Cautious Lover.

A correspondent of the London Globe tells of a gilded youth who left instructions at a jeweler's shop for the inscription of an engagement ring he had just bought. He wanted it inscribed, "From Bertie to Maud." As he left the turned back and added as an after thought. "I shouldn't—ah—cut 'Maud' too deep, don't you know."

Close.

She—Do you know I've induced my husband to give up cigars? He—Is that so? Well, I've known him for seven years, and I never saw him give up one.—Illustrated Bits.

It is the privilege of posterity to set matters right between those antagonists who by their rivalry for greatness divided a whole age.—Addison.

POULTRY A GREAT ATTRACTION TODAY

Many Farmers Paid Visit to Exhibition.

Today the last day of the poultry show at the Pythian Temple proved to be a source of much interest to the large number of farmers in the city. During the morning and the afternoon the crowds inspecting the prize winning birds were composed almost entirely of farmers. Predictions for tonight's crowd made by the promoters leads one to believe that it will be the largest of the week.

The complete list of poultry winners giving the scores, etc., will be published in tomorrow morning's issue.

A JOCULAR MONARCH.

Ivan the Terrible Had Cold Blooded Notions About Jesting.

Ivan the Terrible forgot neither his devotions nor his diversions. This palace alternately resounded with praying and carousing. For his pastime bears were brought from Novgorod. When from his window he perceived a group of citizens collected he let slip two or three of these ferocious animals, and his delight on beholding the flight of the terrified creatures, and especially on hearing the cries of the victims, was unbounded. His bursts of laughter were loud and long continued. To console those who were maimed for life he would sometimes send each of them a small piece of gold.

Another of his chief amusements was in the company of jesters, whose duty it was to divert him, especially before and after any executions, but they often paid dearly for an unseasonable joke.

Among these none was more distinguished than Prince Gvosdef, who held a high rank at court.

The czar, being one day dissatisfied with a jest, poured over the prince's head the boiling contents of a soup basin. The agonized wretch prepared to retreat from the table, but the tyrant struck him with a knife, and he fell senseless to the floor. Dr. Arnolph was instantly called.

"Save my good servant!" cried the czar. "I have jested with him a little too hard."

"So hard," replied the other, "that only God and your majesty can restore him to life. He no longer breathes."

Ivan expressed his contempt, called the deceased favorite a dog and continued his amusements.

Another day, while he sat at table, the waywode of Staritza, Boris Titof, appeared, bowed to the ground and saluted him after the customary manner.

"God save thee, my dear waywode. Thou deservest a proof of my favor."

He seized a knife and cut off an ear. Titof thanked the czar for his gracious favor and wished him a happy reign.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE COLD WATER ORDEAL.

It Was Once an Important Test of Guilt or Innocence.

The cold water ordeal was one of the most important tests of guilt or innocence a few hundred years ago. If the accused floated, he was guilty; if he sank, he was innocent. In the twelfth century some altar vessels were stolen from the cathedral of Laon, and the learned Anselm proposed that a child from each parish and then a child from each household should be put to the test and so on until the guilty one was found. The proposition raised a great outcry, and the people clamored that those who had easiest access to the church be the first to undergo the ordeal.

This looked reasonable enough; so the bishop ordered the six priests of the cathedral to prepare for the test. In the meanwhile Anselm thought to try the experiment himself as a preliminary test. So he was bound and placed in a tub of water. To his great satisfaction as well as discomfort he promptly sank. The day arrived and with it an immense crowd to see the trial. The first priest sank, the second floated, the third sank, the fourth floated, the fifth sank, and then suddenly Anselm himself—wonder of wonders—in spite of experiments and protested innocence floated around with the buoyancy of an air bubble. While he was straining his sentence in prison Anselm found time to write a learned treatise on the "Inexpediency of the Water Ordeal and Its Failure In Many Cases."

MARRIAGE ANNULED

Judge Rules Rhodius Was Mentally Incompetent When Union Was Made.

RICH MENTAL WEAKLING

Indianapolis, Jan. 16.—Judge Mason holding court at Greenfield this morning annulled the marriage of Elma Dare and George Rhodius of Indianapolis on the grounds of mental incompetency at the time of the ceremony. Rhodius was the sole heir to his mother's estate of nearly a million dollars. As a result of high living, he became a mental weakling and fell a victim to locomotor ataia. The Dare woman called for him at his hotel at two o'clock in the morning. She took him to Louisville. After she married him she fled to New York with him. Detectives later located them at Cambridge Springs, Pa. and brought him back to Indianapolis. Later a guardian was appointed who placed Rhodius in a sanitarium for treatment. The institution of annulment proceedings followed which resulted today in making him an unmarried man and shut the Dare woman off from any claim on his vast wealth. The attorneys for the woman will appeal the case to the supreme court.

Terrible Risky.

A fire insurance company recently received a call from an old man who desired to arrange for insurance on his house and furniture.

"Been carrying any insurance elsewhere?" casually asked the agent.

"No," said the old man, "just been trusting to Providence; but, as I says to my old woman only yesterday, that's terrible risky. I says—terrible risky!"—New York Herald.
