RICHMOND MAN IS LOSER BY FIRE

Matt Waltermann Interested in Milwaukee Plant, Destroyed Saturday.

HE PROMOTED CONCERN

BLAZE WAS A FATAL ONE, FIVE
FIREMEN BEING KILLED BY FALLING WALLS—INSURANCE
COVERS THE LOSS.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 15.—Five firemen were killed and about a dozen injured, two fatally in a fire Saturday afternoon, which damaged the plants of the Johns-Manville Manufacturing Company and the Waltham Piano Company. Matt Waltermann, of Richmond, Ind. is financially interested in the piano company. It was largely due to his efforts that the company was organized. The pecuniary loss is estimated at $250,000 covered by insurance. Of this amount $50,000 falls on the piano company.

Caught Under Mass.
Two companies of firemen were stationed on a wall and roof of the Waltham piano building, south of the H. W. Johns-Manville plant, when the rear wall of the Johns-Manville concern bulged outward and crashed down.

The firemen were caught under the mass of brick and timber, which smashed through the roof of the piano warehouse. It was some time before the accident became generally known. Then there was a rush to the rescue. One by one the injured and dead were dragged from beneath the debris until all had been accounted for.

The injured were taken to the emergency hospital and the dead to the morgue or to their homes. There were many affecting scenes at the hospital and morgue.

An Oil Explosion.
The fire was caused, it is said, by an explosion of oil.

Henry Ebert, cashier of the Johns-Manville Manufacturing company, shoved a pile of checks into a safe in the vault, but was unable to save a heap of cash on his desk before he was obliged to run. He believes that some one opened the safe door after he left and that the checks were burned. He is positive the vault door was left open and the records of the company are undoubtedly a mass of ashes.

Ebert in danger of suffocation, grasped a chair and hurled it through a window and made his escape from the building.

The bill says that the committees shall have the management of the affairs of the parties just as they have had heretofore, and that the members shall serve until their successors are elected.

How Could He?

Papa was becoming impatient at the lateness of the hour when he remarked, "I can't see why that young fellow who is calling on Minnie hasn't sense enough to go home."

"The dear little brother" of the family just then came in, heard his father's remark and ventured some light. "He can't go, father. Sister's sitting on him."—Exchange.

Hastys Relatives of Lincoln

However They Knew Little of the Emancipator and the Family Only Has One of His Letters.

That Abraham Lincoln, whose centenary anniversary was observed in every part of the world Friday was unknown and unheard of even among his relatives until he was elected president the first time, was established last evening through statements by local relatives, including Oscar, John, Marcus and Byron Hastys and Miss Lizzie Hasty, who were second cousins to the emancipator. The relationship between the Hastys is as follows: Their great-grandmother, Mary Lincoln, was a sister of Thomas Lincoln, father of Abraham Lincoln. With the exception of the relationship the local relatives can claim little knowledge of Lincoln. Practically no communication was held between Lincoln and his local relatives, the only instance remembered by them is a letter received from the president thanking two aged cousins, once removed, for a pair of socks knitted by them. These cousins of the president lived in Clinton county at the time.

Gives Family Tree.

Mrs. Hasty, widow of the late Martin Hasty of this city, when seen at her residence, 222 North Thirtieth street, outlined the relationship as follows: Mary Lincoln, sister of Thomas Lincoln, married Daniel Crum; their daughter, Sarah Crum, married James Hasty, one of whose children was Martin Hasty, who was a resident of this city until the time of his death a few years ago. He was the father of the above named.

The fact that there was relationship between themselves and Lincoln was established at the time of his election as president. One day some of the local relatives while visiting their kinsmen in Clinton county, Indiana, learned that their grandmother was named Mary Lincoln. Investigation lead to the establishment of the claim of relationship. This was done by the president himself who, after his election, was communicated with by his relatives. He wrote them a long letter explaining the relationship in detail and also thanked the two sisters for a pair of knit socks sent him by them. These two sisters whose names are not remembered by Mrs. M. A. Hasty—she being a young woman at the time and her memory since somewhat impaired now by old age—even spun the lambs' wool used in the socks given the president.

Never Knew Lincoln.

Local relatives never knew Lincoln nor had any communication with him. The only word ever received from him was by the two old women residing in Clinton county. Nothing which once belonged to the president is owned by the Richmond Hastys. It appears that they took but little interest in their distinguished kinsman. Many things accounted for this. One was the high price of postage, it then being necessary to pay ten cents to send a letter, now sent for two cents. Another reason given was that the mails were slower than now.

Left Old Kentucky.

Mary Lincoln Crum, great grandmother of the Richmond Hastys, and her husband emigrated to Ohio soon after their marriage. Their children, including the above mentioned sisters who resided in Clinton county settled in Indiana and Ohio. Sarah Crum, one of their daughters, married James Hasty, the grandfather of the local Hastys, and he was the first one to settle in what is now Camden, O.

Mrs. M. A. Hasty can remember several stories told by her mother-in-law, Mrs. James Hasty, regarding her mother's and grandmother's early life. According to these stories the early life of Lincoln seems have been filled with no more hardships than that experienced by other children. The impression was gained by Mrs. Hasty that Lincoln's family was in as good circumstances as the average pioneer family.

There are a large number of second and third cousins to the martyred president residing in Whitley county, Indiana and in Michigan. There are also several relatives living in Preble and adjoining counties in Ohio.

The Hastys and their relatives who were old enough to go to war during the period of civil strife, enlisted in the federal army.

"What does the president of the United States have to do, pa?"

"He is the captain of the ship of state, my son."

"And is the vice president the first mate?"

"No; he's only a deck hand."—New York Press.
