Richmond 7; Elwood 5.
Richmond, strengthened by the addition of Edington, the Ohio State league recruit, at center and the proper amount of confidence was able to defeat Elwood in a fast, exciting and interesting polo game at the coliseum last evening. The locals played together as they should for the first time this year, and also had their play systematized. The crowd was one of the largest of the season and all thoroughly enjoyed it.

Looks Like Real Team.
The Richmond team under its present line up impressed the fans as being a five man team instead of a two man team as the other clubs in the league appear to be. All five of the locals did creditable work. Lancaster started out with a bad inning but soon recovered himself and played his usual good game. Probably the hardest worker in the entire game was "Ikey" Houghton. He played everywhere and was always where the ball was rolling. Sharp played well in the first two periods but his hard efforts winded him and he had to retire in the third period. Bulla who took his place played the best game of his career as an Indiana polo league star.

Edington, the recruit, was in the game at all times and his work was a revelation to the fans in comparison with what they had been seeing.
Coasting works well with his new team mate.

For Elwood Williams at first rush and Smith at half back worked well.
The other players impressed the fans as having only mediocre ability. Line bers, to be appointed by the member-committee on committees, such as exists in the senate. The speaker was to be merely a presiding officer, and about as much a figurehead as the vice president is in the senate.

The net result of the fight is that the speaker will continue to appoint the committees and will be almost as much of an autocrat as he has been since the present rules were adopted during the regime of the late Tom Reed.

FRANCIS M'NUTT FOR FIRST TIME MAKES STATEMENT

made the subject of newspaper comment under large headlines you are correct. In every other sense you are wrong. Every one to whom I judged an explanation due has received one.
Several of the principal members of the Catholic hierarchy in America are fully acquainted with all the circumstances, as are also a number of men, prominent in public life, and all my connections and friends. For the enlightenment of any others who may be interested, I have no hesitancy in making the following brief statement:

Violated Ordinance.
The most that could be truthfully alleged against me was that I had violated a municipal ordinance and was consequently arrested one evening by an overzealous policeman who was ignorant of my identity. This policeman's accusation and the insinuation he afterward felt constrained to add, in order to vindicate his hasty action, were dismissed by the police commissary who, after hearing my explanation, declared the matter closed. And there this vulgar and otherwise trivial incident would have ended had any other than I been involved in it.

News of the occurrence having leaked out through the indiscretion of a police official, certain persons with whom my position at the Vatican had long since rendered me unpopular, saw therein the long-wished-for pretext for an attack upon me. Malice and ingenuity combined to foment an artificial scandal out of meager materials, and, as misrepresentation was busy, my best defense was to ask for legal proceedings to probe the statement of the policeman.

This I obtained in response to my letter addressed to the royal procurator, and the final outcome was to entirely exonerate me. The verdict of the Roman court was the most favorable possible in Italian law, and the judges went further to declare that no reasonable suspicion of any misconduct could attach to me.

No Case Against Him.
When this satisfactory result had been obtained I secured official copies, signed by the minister of justice and the five judges of the court, of all the proceedings in the case. These were afterward translated into English and submitted to several prominent lawyers in New York, who had consented to examine and pronounce upon the evidence. The verdict confirmed that of the Roman court and was further strengthened by the statement that no grounds were discover-able on which an American court of justice would have given the case a hearing.

Concerning the attitude of my former superiors in Rome, it is difficult for me to write, truthfully, without offending my sentiments as a Catholic.
Pius X sent me a letter congratulating me on the favorable verdict of the court. His holiness repeatedly declared that he had never believed me guilty of any fault, and that he was convinced that I was the victim of an intrigue, due partly to hatred of the Vatican; two high prelates of the pontiffical court brought me satisfactory assurances from the Pope, which still remain unfulfilled.

When or how they will be made effective I do not know. Meanwhile I am sustained by my perfectly clear conscience and by the sympathy of all who have impartially heard and judged the facts; nor do I despair of the slow working of the intangible forces which seem to me to act as the inexorable machinery of justice and ultimately cause the truth to prevail.

PEWS WERE TAKEN OUT

Shelbyville, March 16.—A meeting of the people residing in the vicinity of Toner's chapel in Hendricks township, has been held and it has been decided that the house of worship will not be torn down as was proposed a few days ago. At the meeting a purse of $165 was raised to show their good faith to District Superintendent Rawls.
The church, which is of the Methodist Episcopal faith, was a member of the Indiana Methodist Conference which met here last September. At the sessions, no pastor was appointed for the place, the members, seemingly having lost interest in the church. A few days ago the pews were removed to the Walkerville church. Then it was that the seventy-five men and women of that locality protested to Rev. Rawls and he has ordered the pews returned to the church and a minister will be assigned.

Howell—It is hard for a woman to understand statistics. Powell—I guess that is so. I told my wife that for every passenger the railroads of this country transported two tons of freight, and she wanted to know why the passengers were allowed to carry so much baggage.—Hager's Weekly.

marry me or are you going to make a fool of me?
She—Both, my dear boy.

MINISTERS HELD MEETING AT NEW CASTLE MONDAY

Make Arrangements for the Big Methodist Gathering to Be Held at Greenfield on March 31.

PROGRAMS FOR THE EVENT ARE PREPARED

Vote Taken at the Meeting Yesterday Asks for the Retention of Presiding Elder Rev. Guild.

Methodist ministers of the Richmond district of the Northern Indiana M. E. conference held a meeting yesterday at New Castle to discuss several questions to come before the sixty-sixth conference, to be held at Greenfield, Ind., March 31 to April 5. A resolution was unanimously adopted for the return of Rev. T. M. Guild, presiding elder of the district. A vote was taken on the question of redistricting the conference districts, to include five districts instead of six. Local Methodists are much interested in the conference to be held soon. The programs for the conference have been received by the local ministers and are attracting much interest.

The conference this year will be of six days' duration and will be held at the Bradley M. E. church, one of the largest and most beautiful in Greenfield. On Sunday, April 4, will be the big day and it is expected that a large number of Richmond people will attend.

Excellent Program.

Preceding the conference, meetings will be held in Greenfield Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Those of the first two days will be of a devotional character. On Tuesday reports will be made. Commencing with Wednesday, March 31, and extending through out the conference, services will be held during the day and evening. The conference will convene at 8:30 in the morning and continue in session until 9 o'clock. The program includes business to come before the conference, sermons, scripture reading, prayers and musical numbers. Included in the list of speakers to address the conference are Rev. C. H. Hill of this city; C. B. Wilcox, Don Nicholas, a prominent evangelist; F. P. Sigler, a member of the California conference; J. B.
Trimble; D. M. Wood; Frank P. Morris; J. H. Fitzwater; Bishop W. F. Anderson, of the conference; Miss Josephine Corbin; McIlvay Lichter of St.
Louis; Mrs. C. U. Wade, of Ft. Wayne; Mrs. J. M. Springer of Africa; C. U.
Wade; J. A. Mullinger and O. A. Trabue. The program for the meeting Sunday, April 4, is as follows:

led by G. H. Hill, C. E. Disbro, J. W.
Welch.

A Big Attendance.

At the meeting at New Castle yesterday, all the Richmond ministers were present. The vote in regard redistricting the district resulted in a tie. It is not believed by local ministers that any change will be made in the district boundaries. It was announced at the meeting yesterday that Dr. Madison Swadener of Kokomo would probably be returned to his present charge.

The quarterly conferences of the local churches will be held before the conference. That at the Grace M. E. church will be held this evening. The Fifth Street M. E. church Thursday evening and the Third M. E. church on Monday evening. It is probable that at each of these meetings the congregations will draw up resolutions asking Bishop Anderson to return the ministers in charge at present. The First M. E. conference was held last week at which time such action was taken in respect the return of Rev. Wade, pastor.

Maryland Lotteries.

A Baltimore man interested in antiquarian research made a collection of old lottery tickets which gives interesting testimony as to the development of public morals. Most of the tickets were given out by Maryland lotteries, but quite as large a collection could undoubtedly be made in other states.
Four of the tickets are in the Washington monument lottery, which was authorized by the legislature and was not given up until 1824. As early as 1753 a lottery was advertised to build a wharf. The drawing took place April 30, 1754. Ten years later one was undertaken to build a market house in "Baltimore Town" and for "buying two fine engines and a parcel of leather buckets." In 1782 a yearly lottery was authorized to aid the city expenses. Other objects for which money was raised in this way were personages, church bells, circulating libraries and gristmills.

Why He Wondered.

A certain Irish police inspector was reviewing a Belfast police station, the sergeant of which was a very bad speller. Looking through the books, he came upon an entry, "Found a pig wondering on the public road."

"Sergeant," said he, "what was the pig wondering at?"

"I don't know, sir," said the bewildered man.

"Well," said the inspector grimly, "I do. He must have been wondering why I promoted you!"

The Elemental Feminine.

Arthur, aged four, and Louise, aged two and a half, were disputing over a string which Louise claimed. All threats and force on Arthur's part were useless; she would not give up.
After a moment he used guile.

"Well," he said, "will you be my little wife?"

"Yes," she copy answered.

"Then give me the string," he commanded.

And she gave it without a murmur—Lippincott's.

DARK DOINGS.

The Reason One Woman is Disgusted
With the Voting Proposition.

When any one asked little Mrs. Pratt her opinion on the question of equal suffrage she had her answer ready.
"I don't want to hear anything about it," and I'd just as soon tell you why.
It's because there's got to be a concomitant and mystery about voting, and I like things open and aboveboard.
It's the way I was brought up and the way I shall always feel if I live to be a hundred.

"I've had one experience, and that's all I want. A friend of mine talked and talked to me about voting on the educational question till at last I said I would, because I was brought up to think a great deal of education, and I always shall. So I gave up an engagement to go to the polls and register (and the dress was almost spoiled on account of my missing that trying on, too, because she didn't wait to see whether it fitted or not, but stitched the seams right up), and then I took the greatest pains to go and vote just as they'd told me to, and what do you suppose Henry Pratt told me afterward? My vote was thrown out because I had the frankness to write my full name and address on it!"
"I told Henry that nothing would surprise me after that—nothing!"

Arago's Modesty.

Arago, the great French scientist, was never seen with a decoration on his breast. He valued honors lightly.
One evening Leverrier, the astronomer, called on him on his way to dine with a minister. He expressed a wish to appear decorated with an order to which he was entitled, having received the official notice of the honor, although he had not as yet the decoration itself.

"Open that drawer," said Arago,
"and take whatever you want."

In that drawer were all the crosses and ribbons which kings and emperors confer.

While Arago wished above everything to promulgate science and to make his researches useful, he did not attempt to identify himself forever with his discoveries by writing books.
He had no time for writing, but contented himself with noting the results of his work in the record of the bureau of longitude or announcing it verbally to the academy.

The Valueless.

The man with a wife and seven children hauled up in front of the hotel desk, registered, got his bellboy and was starting off when the clerk, thinking maybe he might jolly the new arrival, called to him.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "but hadn't you better leave your valuables in the safe?"

"Do you think I ought to?" inquired the man innocently enough, to hear him say it.

"Well, it is the best plan."

"All right," said the man, and, turning to his wife, "Here, Mary, pass the children over to the guest behind the counter. He'll look after them and give us a rest."

Whereupon the clerk apologized—Judge.
