MERCHANTS PLAN TO REORGANIZE

West Main Street Hustlers Will Take Action.

Merchants who were members of the West Main Street Business Men's club last summer are talking of reorganizing again this summer. If they do, the same features as pursued last year will be inaugurated. Band concerts will be given on the court house lawn each Saturday night, the street between Third and Sixth will be lighted up with a large number of additional arc lights. Last summer's experiment proved to be a boom for the merchants in that vicinity of Main street.

WANDERS FROM JAIL

Verling Kendall, the insane young man held for safe keeping at the county jail, wanted to see if the grass in the pasture at his father's home near Chester had grown, and Thursday wandered away from the jail. He went to the home of his brother, also near Chester, but was returned to the jail. Kendall is not regarded as dangerous, but feeble minded. He was committed to jail after having set fire to the barn on his father's farm. The structure and the barn of a neighbor were destroyed.

MRS. EMMA EAMES HAS A SOUL MATE

That Mme. de Gorgorza Alleges in Her Alienation Suit.

ASKS DAMAGES FOR HUBBY

SAYS FAMOUS PRIMA DONNA HAS HIM COMPLETELY FASCINATED—LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN OPERATIC ROW.

New York, May 15.—Mme. Elsa De Gorgorza's alienation suit for $100,000 against Mme. Emma Eames, the famous prima donna, it was learned today, is based on the charge that her husband, Emilio Gorgorza is the "soul mate" of Mme. Eames.

"He is a soul mate in the truest artistic sense," Mme. Gorgorza charges. "He is under a spell wrought by the prima donna."

She refused to discuss the case further, but her lawyer made the following statement:

He Was Fascinated.

"This case will rest upon the allegation that there has been artistic destruction of the husband's affection. The question is in a sense a psychological one. Mme. Eames has fascinated De Gorgorza, and now she must answer for it. The case will be pushed vigorously, and it will be shown that the two singers look upon themselves as ideal 'soul mates.'"

In an interview recently attributed to Mme. Eames, she dwelt upon "artistic affinity," in opera singing. She said that she had found De Gorgorza possessed of such a temperament that her finest singing was done when her notes came in reply to his.

Papers Are Served.

Mme. Eames was served with papers in the suit as she was leaving the Bellevue-Stratford hotel in Philadelphia. She fled and it was reported that she was hiding in this city.

Following her disappearance the following statement, believed to have been prepared by her, was given out: "Gossip has linked the names of Mme. Eames and De Gorgorza for several years, and a romance was even hinted at as wild and romantic as that of Trilby and Svengali. After her divorce from Julian Story, it was said the consequent trouble and anxiety had robbed her voice of much of its former charm and power.

"For months opera lovers feared their favorite's days of greatness were over, until one night at a concert at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, De Gorgorza made his first American appearance, the prima donna sang again with all her old-time fire and expression. He was a member of the company and together they sang the leading roles of many operas with such unparallelled effect that the audience audibly questioned whether art alone could give such sympathy and feelings to the prima donna's tones. For more than a year the gossips have been busy, and in opera circles the suit will be little of a surprise."

Mrs. Rebecca Neumogen, Mrs. De Gorgorza's mother, in an affidavit, discusses Mme. Eames' alleged influence over her son-in-law, saying: "As soon as Eames arrived he remained away from home and neglected his wife. He finally told me that he was going to Newport, and when I asked him why he did not take his wife with him, he said it would interfere with his business."

Silence. Silence is a language understood in every country.

Were silence to be enforced on all of us for a single day the fools would go mad. The wise would talk less thereafter.

Silence in the shallow man means that he is out of breath.

A man is known by the silence he keeps. A silent man may not be thinking, but the burden of proof is not on him. To be silent in company is to invite the suspicion that "you have something on your mind." The reason is obvious.—Life.

The Sun a Star?

The sun is one of a stream of stars moving in the same direction and with equal velocities. Thus says Professor Kobold of the observatory of Kiel, who has become convinced by his studies of star currents that the sun does actually form part of such a current, which is moving toward a point on the edge of the Milky way. Kapteyn of Groningen has come to the conclusion that the stars drift in two directions. This conclusion is based on the examination of 2,500 stars observed repeatedly.

Discouraging.

Mother—Why, Ethel, you mustn't be sad on your birthday. What is it? Ethel—Well, Tommy 'll be eight next month, and then he'll be a year older than me again, and I've tried so hard to catch him up.—London Punch.

Serious.

"She says there is only a platonic friendship."

"Then why has she begun to take cooking lessons?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Charity, like a dower, looks best in seclusion. Bring it into the glare of publicity and it loses color.—Exchange.

New York has raised $1,075,000 for the Hudson-Fulton celebration which begins September 25 next, and $15,000 of the amount will be devoted to aeronautic features. The reproduction of Fulton's little steamboat will have a right setting with fast motorboats and airplane skimming around as it moves upstream.

COURT ROASTED THE DEFENDANT

Stated That Elisha Mills Was The Man Who Should Go to Prison.

WIFE GRANTED A DIVORCE

JUDGE SAID THAT IT WAS BECAUSE OF SUCH MEN AS MILLS THAT WIFE DESERTION HAD BEEN MADE CRIME.

After granting Mary E. Mills a divorce from Elisha Mills in circuit court today, Judge Fox stated Mills is such a man as ought to be in the penitentiary. The court said it is against such men as he that the statute providing prison sentence for wife deserters was made. Mrs. Mills testified her husband left her after she refused to wash and do house work for his support. She claimed to have provided for him by her labor until she became tired of the whole business and told him she had decided to quit. She said her husband soon afterward left her. The plaintiff claimed her husband had tried to induce her to resort to immoral practices to earn money.

An Able Bodied Man.

It was represented to the court the defendant had been a strong able bodied man while living with his wife and well able to work. Mrs. Mills said whenever her husband obtained money he spent it for intoxicants. She claimed the last time she had heard from her husband he was in Minnesota. The plaintiff claimed the defendant left her with two small children when he made his departure.

STAGECOACH ROBBERS.

How the Express Companies Deal With Old Time Highwaymen. It was the treasure box of the Wells Fargo company which transported practically all the gold and silver from the mining camps that was the special object of the old time stagecoach highwayman. A shrewd band of robbers would not hold up a stage unless they had good reason to think it carried a large shipment of gold, and they used every means to find out when these shipments would be made. The company, on the other hand, tried to detect and trap them, and there was a war of wits as well as weapons. A favorite method of the company when their stages had been repeatedly robbed by some band whose success showed they had inside information as to the time of shipment was to let a rumor leak out that on a certain day a large amount of gold dust would be secretly sent out by special stage. This, of course, would reach the ears of some of the band and a robbery be duly organized. A spy would see a number of heavy boxes placed aboard and report all well. When the highwaymen halted the stage the driver and guard would meekly give up and crawl to the ground. Then just when the bands had grown careless from easy success there poured from the stagecoach a deadly fire that at each short range wiped out the entire gang at the first volley, for the coach was a decoy, filled not with gold, but with men expert with the rifle. In 1886 three bands were thus blown to bits on the old stage line between Virginia City, Nev., and Sacramento, Washington Post.

ARREST MADE IN TELEGRAPH CASE

More Light Shed Today Upon Pittsburg Western Union Scandal.

TWO ARRESTS MADE TODAY

SUPERINTENDENT SAYLOR RESIGNS AND SEVERAL ARE DISCHARGED—WIRE TAPPING IS THE CHARGE MADE.

Pittsburg, May 15.—Two additional arrests were made in the Western Union Telegraph company's wire tapping case. Wm. L. Thompson and Wm. H. Smith, furnished $1,000 bail each for hearings. Isaac N. Barlo, general wire and repeater chief, was arrested on two charges of misdemeanor and in default of $12,000 bail, he was committed to jail. These arrests were in connection with the alleged placing of tickers in certain offices without the knowledge of the company.

Weeding Them Out.

As a result of the scandal, Superintendent Saylor resigned and several employees were discharged. Chicago board of trade members assert that its quotations in which it has a property right, were given without its knowledge and to the detriment of the board of trade and those grain brokers who paid for the privilege of receiving the quotations, and through its representative, H. A. Foss, joins the Western Union company in making the charges.

BODY OF A BABY IN A SUIT CASE

Discovery Made at the Jamestown, N. Y. Station.

Jamestown, N. Y., May 15.—A suit case left in a ladies' waiting room at the Erie railroad station here a week ago, and since unclaimed, was opened today by the station agent and found to contain the partly decomposed remains of a three days' old baby. It was well dressed and a thousand dollar bill was pinned to the clothing. The suit case was not locked.

THE STORE BUYER.

His Task of Selecting "Good Sellers" Is a Hard One.

Whoever has had difficulty in deciding which of two or more articles on a counter he will purchase may be able to appreciate the task which confronts the buyer of a stock of merchandise, says a writer in Collier's. The numbers of varieties offered for selection are almost beyond belief. In the toy department of a large wholesale house the following figures were obtained in regard to the goods actually being shown at one time in the sample rooms:

Magic lanterns, 250 varieties; boats, 300 varieties; horns, 1,000 varieties; Christmas tree ornaments, 2,000 varieties; dolls, 12,000 varieties.

In gathering this assortment of Christmas tree ornaments it was necessary to deal with 750 manufacturers throughout Europe, and the selection of 2,000 samples represents only a fraction of the samples submitted by manufacturers.

When it is considered that almost every person uses dishes at three meals a day and that the prices of plates range from a few cents each to $1,000 or more a set, it is not surprising to learn that the same wholesaler would display in his sample rooms over 250,000 varieties of articles in china.

The buyer has within such ranges of variety opportunity to "make or break" the patronage of a store by the wisdom he uses in making his selections.

Kettledrum a Perfect Instrument.

The kettledrum, Gabriel Cleather contended, was perfectly competent to produce atmosphere as well as rhythm. Even to tune the instrument three things were required—a perfect musical ear, a fine sense of touch and five years' experience. After playing over a kettledrum melody written eighty years ago from Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable," Mr. Cleather continued, "I venture to say that outside of the musical profession not one person in a hundred of those who listen to an orchestra in England today knows that timpani have notes and can give out a melody." No instrument, he added, had a greater range of power than the kettledrum, for none could be played more softly and none had greater penetrating power.—London Standard.

A German Memorial to Napoleon.

It will come as news to most persons that there exists in Germany a monument to Napoleon I. This curiosity is to be found about eleven miles from Alseny, in the grand duchy of Hesse. The monument is situated near the Vorholz hunting lodge, at the summit of a wooded hill, and the spot is known as Napoleon's garden. It is a dwarfed pyramid of three sides, rather more than three feet in length. Upon it stands the inscription, in Latin, French and German, showing that it commemorates the marriage of Napoleon I. to Marie Louise, grand duchess of Austria, on April 1, 1810.—London Globe.

The Sportsman's Club, of Canandaigua, N. Y., is making an experiment in restocking the woods in its neighborhood with game birds. It has recently released twenty pairs of Hungarian partridges, in the hope that in a few years they will multiply enough to supply good sport for its members.

KILLS HIS FAMILY

After Illinois Farmer Commits Fiendish Crime He Suicides.

ARE SHOT IN THEIR BEDS

Boyleville, Ill., May 15.—Henry Williamson, a wealthy farmer, this morning murdered his wife and two little children and then suicided. He shot them dead as they were asleep in their beds. Just before shooting himself he poured kerosene on the floor and ignited it. A hired man discovered the flames and extinguished them before the corpses were cremated. The children were four and five years respectively. The cause of the deed is unknown.

EXAMINATIONS FOR MANUAL TRAINING

Order Issued by the State Superintendent.

Upon an order from State Superintendent Aley, it has been arranged that applicants for a license to teach manual training, sewing and cooking may take examinations at the same time the regular examinations for public school teachers are held, the last Saturday of each month. Supt. Jordan received a letter from the state superintendent today and the examinations may be taken during the months of May, June, July and August at the office of the county superintendent.

A teacher of manual training or domestic science is not regarded in the same class with the teacher of the regular line of work. Heretofore it has been necessary for those desiring to take an examination to go to Indianapolis. The new order will prove an added convenience to those desiring to become instructors in these lines.

SUCCESS IN LIFE.

What the World Owes a Man and What a Man Owe the World.

The supposed indebtedness of the world to a man has not often been reduced to specific terms, but many a man has had the feeling that his failure was the world's fault, not his own, and that the world owes him something, ought to be compelled to pay for its callous indifference to his personal welfare. Some men spend a good deal of time wondering or discussing whether life is worth living. Other men are so busy living that they don't care to take time out for the discussion of the question. It is not the workers, the men who carry forward the world's business, who indulge in speculation as to its debt to the world's indebtedness to themselves. It is the men who have no business but sordid speculation, like the endless day dreaming of the Indian fakir, which comes out of the same door as that by which it entered.

If the man has something to sell, which is of market value the world will buy it from him and pay him for it. It is a perfectly fair and straight business transaction. A man has no more right to expect the world to purchase from him what it is not worth than he has to expect an individual customer to purchase an unnecessary article. No self respecting man, unless sheer necessity compels him, will demand that the world shall single charity with business and pay him for something it cannot use.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE VALENTINE MYTH.

One Theory as to the Origin of the Variety Stage.

It is not easy to trace the variety stage back to its earliest beginnings, for the scent begins to grow faint in antebellum days, and the trail leads itself beyond recall in the early days, about which period we can gather traces of what may be called the "Valentine Myth." This I will relate as it was imparted to me by Mr. Valentine himself in the small County Island pavilion that he conducted during his later years.

Mr. Valentine's story is that, many years before the civil war, probably in the early fifties, he opened a small place of amusement somewhere on the east side of New York city. (It must have been small indeed, for there is no record of it in T. A. Alden Brown's "History of the New York Stage.") Uncertain what to call his place of entertainment, he applied to a friend for a fitting name.

"What sort of an entertainment are you going to give?" said the friend.

"Well, I'm going to give a variety of things," said Mr. Valentine.

"The way you put it is a variety show," suggested the other.

And thereupon, according to the myth, the term "variety show" came into use.—James L. Ford in McClure's Magazine.

Leaving Her Car.

A heavy laugh at the pointed query of an interesting four-year-old girl was enjoyed a few days ago by a number of persons waiting on a platform at Broad street station for the departure of a certain western accommodation train. The little lady had been gazing intently at a Pullman observation coach and after a brief mental contrast of the more pretentious car with the ordinary passenger coach which she was about to take asked of her mother, "Mamma, what kind of a car is that one with the beautiful windows and green plush covered seats?" "That is a parlor car, my dear," was the reply. "Well, I guess our car must be a kitchen car, then, isn't it?" was the very suggestive question, which as yet has not been answered to the child's satisfaction.—Philadelphia Record.
