EARLHAM IS WINNER

Defeated the Moore's Hill Aggregation by Score Of 12-to-6.

WHITE SAVED THE QUAKERS

Earlham's baseball nine defeated the team from Moore's Hill College on Reid Field yesterday afternoon by the score of 12 to 6. The visitors had but one chance to win. That was in an early inning. Swain opened the game on the firing line for Earlham. His arm was sore and he retired in favor of Richey, a new twirler. But Richey was as whimsical as a coed and his inability to locate the plate caused his retirement. White was called upon to finish the pitching.

Moore's Hill has an aggregation that plays pretty good town lot baseball. The team as it played yesterday was no match for Earlham and the game might have gone for a practice contest. It seemed almost like a waste of time for the Earlhamites to toy with their opponents.

A SUCCESSFUL MOVE

BIG MEETING WAS HELD

Success of the recently organized Wayne County Fish and Game Protective Association is assured as the result of the meeting held last evening at the court house. The attendance was large and there was every indication that the project will be an organization of value to the county. A committee composed of H. L. Dickinson, George Brucker, Nimrod Johnson, W. H. Kelley and Edward Cooper was appointed to go to Indianapolis within the next two weeks and confer with the Marion county fish and game club. All those desiring to join the new association must submit their names to the secretary, H. E. Penny, before July 1 and pay a fee of $1. The organization is not for pecuniary advancement. The annual meetings are to be held the second Monday of February.

ESCORTING THE COURT.

Official Pomp and Splendor in Old Colonial Times.

In colonial days York, Me., was the county seat to which the judges and lawyers from New Hampshire and Massachusetts often went, and the court sessions were attended with much official pomp and ceremony. In "Old Colonial Houses in Maine" Emma Huntington Nason quotes from a record left by John Adams, who as a young barrister went to York in 1774 and who made at that time the following entry in his journal:

"When I got to the tavern on the eastern side of the Piscataqua river I found the sheriff of York and six of his deputies, all with gold laced hats, ruffles, swords and very gay clothes and all likely young men who had come out to that place to escort the court into town." This gives us a hint of the pomp and splendor affected by the court officials of those days, "when the judges wore robes of scarlet with large caubric bands and immense wigs and the barristers had gowns and also bands and tie wigs."

As the judges approached the shire towns the sheriff met them with an escort and flourish of trumpets. Their arrival was announced by cannon, and the daily summons to the court before bells were introduced was by beating a drum.

One thousand copper-colored followers of Chief Joseph, a once powerful leader of the Nez Perce tribe in the panhandle of Idaho, will join the prohibition forces in the fight against the rum shops in Nez Perce county when the campaign is started to make the district a part of the arid zone. The Indian Voters' League has organized its forces under the direction of James Stuart, a district forester, and is instructing the reds in the duties of citizenship.
