Legislators Show Gallantry: Anti-Big Hat Bill is Killed

Springfield, Ill., May 22.—Members of the lower house of the Illinois general assembly displayed their chivalry when by a tremendous vote they sacrificed their manly comfort for the delight that woman takes in fashion's fads and defeated the measure intended to sound the death knell of the "bushel basket" hat.

Minority Leader L. O. Browne made the leading argument in favor of the bill. The independence of man was put forward as a reason why the bill should pass. Browne told the house that a member had just informed him that he would like to vote for the bill, but that he could not and go home. As the roll call proceeded and mem-

AGED PAIR WEDDED Groom, Aged 58 Years, Takes A Blushing Bride of 68 Years.

MARRIED AT COURT HOUSE

Married life is bliss, according to an old saying, and such must have been the thoughts of John W. Gruell, aged 58, and Mrs. Rachel Fetherling, aged 68, both of Dublin, as hand in hand they gazed into the future. This may have been the reason, at any rate, why Cupid's arrows went true to the mark, because today the two were married by Squire Abbott at the office of County Clerk Harry E. Penny, court house. Just like two "young things" the aged couple were oblivious to everything and everybody, except themselves. The marriage certificate, which the state prepares in variegated color and sells to those who want them for the purpose of framing, was purchased, but forgotten after the ceremony, as the couple left the office arm in arm. Mr. Gruell has been married twice now. This is the third venture for Mrs. Gruell.

JUDGMENT IS GIVEN

Judgment for $625.40 was granted by the court today against Edwin M. Campfield, for supplies furnished him by Theron I. Crane of Philadelphia. The debt was incurred while Campfield was building the Southern Indiana hospital.

No Wonder Jim Went.

An excited middle aged lady bounced into the local police station the other day and accosted the officer on duty. "Where's my Jim?" she demanded. "Beg pardon, madam—dog, I presume," said the officer. "Don't you dare presume nothing of the kind," snapped the lady. "Dog indeed! No, sir! Husband—my husband. He's missing, disappeared, de-camped!"

"You don't say so?" "But I'd have you to understand that I do say so, young man. How dare you sit there and flatterly contradict a taxpayer—leastways the lawful wife of one? I'll report you, sir. Do you hear that? I'll report you! Where's my husband?" "My dear madam—" "How dare you call me your dear madam? Do you think I come here to be insulted? I tell you my husband has de-camped, and you sit there like a dummy! What do you think of that?" "Well, madam," responded the polite inspector, "I haven't the pleasure of your husband's acquaintance, but I should say he's a very wise man. Considerable Blunt, show this lady out."—Pittsburgh Courier.

bers voted in the negative, there were calls of "There is another one of them who couldn't go home." In explaining his vote O'Toole said, "I vote no; I want to go home." R. E. Wilson said, "I have no home; I vote yea." Representative Galligan raised a big laugh when he said, "Representative Browne told you that he sat in a box and could not see through the big hats. I sit in the gallery with the boys, where there are no big hats." Browne replied to this sally with the remark, "It was not necessary for the gentleman to give us the information that he sat in the gallery; we all know it."

SMALLPOX NOW HAS ABOUT RUN COURSE

At Present Only Six Cases Are In the City.

The smallpox epidemic has been reduced almost to a minimum in this city, according to Sanitary Officer George Young. There are but six cases in the city at the present time. Three patients were released today, while but one new case, that of Mrs. Frank Ralston, colored, North Sixteenth street, was reported. Those released were: Child of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Schaefer, 103 South Second street; child of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Griffin, colored, who was rooming with Mr. and Mrs. Joe McElroy, 413 South Ninth street.

The World "Person." It is said, once asserted that a woman was not a "person," and a London suffragette insists that the word "person" in its legal sense includes woman. The word has had an interesting history. Signifying by etymology something to make a sound through, the Latin "person" began by meaning an actor's mask with its mouthpiece. Then it meant the character represented by the player—"dramatis personae." Then it came to mean the part or character one sustains in real life, and so the "persona ecclesiastica," the man who represented the church, became known as a "person" in a special sense and was eventually spelled as "person." On the other hand, "person" faded away to mean just anything. And so, though a woman naturally represents being referred to as a "person" in ordinary talk, many women no less naturally desire to count as "persons" in the eye of the franchise law.—Chicago News.

Bishop Butler's Generosity. So many examples of episcopal cupidity have been cited of late that the average reader may be excused for believing the bishop of a century or so ago to have been an incarnation of greed. But against the Luxmoires, the Watsons and the Portousses may be set the saintly Butler, whose "Analogy" is still used as a text book for clerical examinations. Butler kept house at Durham, where he dispensed hospitality with a lavish hand. On one occasion a man called at the palace soliciting a subscription for some charitable object. "How much money is there in the house?" asked Butler of his secretary. The secretary after investigation replied that there was £500. "Give it to him, then," replied the philosopher bishop, "for it is a shame that a bishop should have so much."—London Chronicle.

His Occupation. A big, heavy fellow in answer to a question in a justice's court as to what he did for a living said: "Well, sir, in the spring I catches an' sells young mackin' birds, in the summer I mostly sells rattlesnake buttons for rattles for the babies, but in the winter I sometimes has to chop wood."—Atlantic Observer.

DON JUAN AMATEUR

Italian Husband of Tom Johnson's Daughter Views Americans.

ELINOR GLYN IS DENIED

New York, May 22.—Do you play the game of love?

If you do—and, according to Mr. Frederico Mariani, who has written a play on the subject, nearly every one does—you will be interested in learning what an expert has to say about it. Mr. Mariani has played the game himself, though on the only occasion when there was an official scorer he lost—which is to say that having married Miss Elizabeth Johnson, daughter of Tom L. Johnson, mayor of Cleveland the young woman, after a six weeks' honeymoon, called for a new deal and went back to her father.

The mystery of this amazing marriage has never been explained, and Mr. Mariani says there is no clue to the solution in his play "The Game of Love." But the play does embody the rules of the greatest game in the world, and the playwright does not deny that he hopes it will become the official guide to followers of the game.

"The scene of my play," said Mr. Mariani today at the Hotel Stratford, "is laid wherever the game is played. Most of the characters are Americans. I have lived in this country eight years, and certain things I have observed are in my play."

American Women Influential. "I will explain to you how differently they play the game of love in this country to European countries. In the first place, American women have not the influence over the men that European women have."

"Here in America women have all rights, but no power over men. In Europe they have no rights, but they rule men absolutely. Yes, they rule Europe. My own country owes its independence to France. But why did France help Italy throw off the Austrian yoke? Because the Emperor Napoleon III was in love with the Countess of Castiglione, a beautiful Italian woman. And so it has been throughout history."

JAPANESE CADETS.

Military School Exercises Include Hans to Hand Conflicts.

In the Japanese military school, where I saw a Spartan system of education, the exercises of the cadets with pikes, rifles and broadswords were not approached by anything of the kind that I had witnessed in Europe. It was fighting of the fiercest character. At the end of the struggle there was a hand to hand combat, which lasted until the victors stood triumphant over the bodies of the vanquished and tore off their masks.

In these exercises, which were very severe, the cadets struck one another fiercely and with wild cries, but the moment a prearranged signal was given or the fight came to an end the combatants drew themselves up in a line, and their faces assumed an expression of wooden composure.

In all the public schools prominence was given to military exercises, and the scholars took part in them with enthusiasm. Even in their walks they practiced running, flanking and sudden, unexpected attacks.

The history of Japan was everywhere made a means of strengthening the pupils' patriotism and their belief in Japan's invincibility. Particular stress was laid upon the country's successful wars, the heroes of them were extolled, and the children were taught that none of Japan's military enterprises had failed.—McClure's Magazine.

COLOR IS FACTOR AS TO FEELINGS

Court Rules Races Do Not Suffer Equally by a False Arrest.

A NEGRO'S BALM TRIMMED

JURY GIVES A PULLMAN CAR PORTER $2,500 DAMAGES BUT NEW YORK SUPREME JURIST SHAVES IT TO $300.

New York, May 22.—A negro and a white man do not suffer equal humiliation for false arrest in the eyes of the law, according to the Appellate division of the Supreme court, which sustained an order of Justice Dugro of the Supreme court reducing the amount of damages awarded George Griffin, a Pullman porter, from $2,500 to $300.

The negro was arrested in Montreal charged with stealing a pocketbook, but the charge was not substantiated, and he was released. He brought suit for false arrest against Daniel H. Brady, a New York manufacturer, who had caused his arrest.

Thought $2,500 Was Too Much. Griffin asked for $10,000 damages. When the suit was tried before Justice Dugro last November the justice decided that the verdict of $2,500 returned by the jury was excessive and should be set aside unless the plaintiff stipulated that the verdict be reduced to $300. Counsel for Griffin would not consent to the reduction.

The records in the case which went before the Appellate division disclose interesting remarks to the jury by Justice Dugro, among which were the following:

"I regret, gentlemen, that your verdict is so large, for I must set it aside. No such verdict would stand. This man was earning less than a dollar a day, according to his own statement; his loss of wages was, therefore, only $2 or $3, and then the humiliation and anxiety of mind."

Men Must Be Considered. "He was a colored man, and while you have no right to weigh difference you must consider men. You can not consider what I would like to have this happen to me. I would not take a million dollars to have this happen to me, but that is no reason why you should award a million."

"No such verdict as $2,500 ever would stand for a moment in any court. He was a porter, and while he is just as good as the president of the United States, and if he is imprisoned wrongfully he should be paid for it, it would be bad argument to say he is just as good in many senses. He would not be hurt just as much if put into prison as every other man would be. If he is a colored man is to be considered. You cannot say he is just the same as a white man when you come to say how much shame he will suffer. He might suffer more."

Communities Also a Factor.

"In one sense a colored man is just as good as a white man, for the law says he is; but he has not the same amount of injury under all circumstances that the white man would have. Maybe in a colored community down south, where white men are held in great distrust, he might be more injured; but after all this is not that sort of a community. In this sort of a community, I dare say, the amount of evil that would flow to a colored man from a charge like this would not be as great as it probably would to a white man. I am satisfied that this plaintiff did not suffer $2,500 damage through that arrest."

Wouldn't Do For a Minister.

A carping old Scotchman said to her pastor one day:

"Dear me, ministers mak' muckle ado about their hard work, but what's two bits of sermon in the week to mak' up? I cud do it mesel'!" "Weel, Janet," said the minister, "let's hear ye."

"Come awa' wi' a text then," quoth she. He repeated, with emphasis:

"It is better to dwell in the corner of the house than with a bawling woman and in a wide house."

Janet fired up instantly. "What's that ye say, sir? Dee ye intend anything personal?"

"Stop, stop!" broke in her pastor. "You wud never dae for a minister."

"A' what for no?" asked she sharply. "Because, Janet, you come over soon to the application!"

The New Phillips.

The lines for the New Phillips the last three days of this week have been entirely comedy. The first in importance is put on by a capable company of three. The young man and young woman are experienced actors and fit into comedy perfectly, while the other member of the trio is the laugh of the show. He only weighs about 350 pounds and is taking the part of a little boy. This combination is poor if it is not put on correctly, but there is nothing poor in Ed Dunkhorst's acting, for Ed has been on the stage for several years and knows what it takes to make the public laugh. Ed was at one time a prize fighter of ability, and like all prize fighters, when he quit the ring, he got heavy. It is admitted that he is one of the biggest men ever seen in any kind of a show, not barring the circus.

The Imperial Comedy Trio appears in a singing act, with a whole lot of comedy thrown in. They have a dressing room scene that is so realistic that a company of actors visiting the Phillips nearly broke up the show laughing at it.

The Beardsley Sisters are a couple of sweet little girls, who have a good line of new songs. They complete a bill that is first class in every way.

JERICHO.

The Famous City, Its Walls and the Curse of Joshua.

The walls of Jericho, remains of which have been excavated by German archaeologists, are, of course, chiefly famous in connection with the miraculous destruction by Joshua. It is recorded in the book of Joshua, chapter vi, that, by command of the Lord, Joshua's army compassed the city, going roundabout it once a day for six days, headed by seven priests bearing seven rams' horns before the ark. On the seventh day they compassed it seven times. Then, on Joshua's command, "The people shouted, and the priests blew with the trumpets, and it came to pass when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, that the people shouted with a great shout, and the wall fell down flat, so that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city," destroying all that was in it, except Rahab the harlot, who had hid the messengers sent by Joshua to spy out the city and her father's household. The date of this destruction is placed at B. C. 1481. In spite of Joshua's coming on any one who would rebuild the city, it was rebuilt in the reign of Ahab in B. C. 883 by Hiel, a native of Bethel, and this recorded in I Kings xvi, 34, how the curse of Joshua was fulfilled. The immediately succeeding and under David the Great became important. It was destroyed by one Shimeon, slave-officer, Judahite, the son of Hiram, furnished some towers on the plain, which he had garrisoned with palmiers. Jericho was finally destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar in B. C. 586.

Lady First, Then Governor.

With regard to the contest for the governorship of the state of New York, it is recorded in the history of that state that he took this position on a occasion when General Washington visited Cambridge. The question was:

"But, madam," responded the general, "I am not a woman, and I am not a governor."

"Yes, sir," replied the general, "but you are a woman, and you are a governor."
