High School Notes

Mr. Cassel Hobson, one of the local high school boys, is experiencing a very sore head. Recently while Hobson was diving at the Y. M. C. A. he fell backwards upon the stone floor, and was knocked unconscious for a short time. A gash about two inches long was cut in the back of his head. Dr. Thurston sewed up his scalp, and today Hobson is at school and looks like the "Spirit of '76."

Miss Louche, who is at the head of the drawing department, will enter several of her pupils' best work at the Art exhibit in June.

MEET FOR PRACTICE

The candidates for the Y. M. C. A. baseball team of the city league will indulge in their first practice at the public play grounds this afternoon. A number of fair players have signified their intention to try for the team. The position of pitcher will be one of the hardest to fill.

TAKE OUT HEAVY INSURANCE FOR ART TREASURES

Canvases and Sculpture Work Received for the Local Exhibit Covered by $32,000 Insurance.

ARE MANY VALUABLE PIECES IN EXHIBIT

Association's Campaign for New Members Meets With Great Success and Will Excel Former Records.

Insurance to the amount of $32,000 was taken out yesterday by the Richmond Art association on the pictures, pieces of sculpture, handicraft work and other articles to be exhibited this year at the annual art exhibit, to be held at the Garfield building. A large portion of the exhibit arrived yesterday from Muncie and was taken immediately to the Garfield building.

The association is protected against damage done to the pictures by fire or by other means. The cost of the premiums is one of the largest items of expense to the association, as fire insurance companies claim the risk is very great, owing to the inflammable nature of the risk. The period of insurance is a very short one, dating a little over two weeks or until the exhibit is shipped to some other association.

Many Valuable Works.

The exhibit received from Muncie includes about 150 different pictures. Eighty of this number are paintings selected by Mrs. M. F. Johnston while visiting the Eastern and Chicago art exhibits, held early in the spring. A few of the individual paintings are valued at $2,500 to $3,000. The other pictures to be exhibited include those by Richmond and Indiana artists.

Work on arranging the hanging of the pictures was started this morning. The crates will be opened tomorrow, and the pictures which are to be placed in Superintendent T. A. Mott's office will be hung Monday. Work on arranging the exhibits in the other rooms of the building will proceed as rapidly as possible.

Getting New Members.

The catalogue of all the articles to be exhibited will be fully completed and placed in the hands of the printer in a few days. The association's campaign for membership is resulting satisfactorily and the membership for the ensuing year promises to be the largest in the history of the organization.

A number of entertainments will be given in connection with the exhibit. Musical recitals will be arranged for, which will be given by local musicians of prominence. Several lectures will also be given. Arrangements for Flag day, June 14, which is usually observed in connection with the exhibit, have not been made, although it is very probable that such will be observed.

Instead of the entire estate of Joseph Gatzek, for many years one of the leading merchants of the city, who died last January, being valued at $500, as published, its value is $10,000, according to a communication received from one of the relatives. It was his personal estate which was valued at $500.

No doubt the youngest "proud papa" in the city is Albert G. Medsker, 608 South Sixth street, whose age, according to the health report, filed by Dr. R. A. Schillinger, with City Health Officer Dr. Charles Bond, today, is 14 years. His wife, whom as Miss Mary Garrison, is but 17 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Medsker are the parents of a baby girl. In an effort to locate Dr. Schillinger and Dr. Bond this afternoon, to confirm the age of Mr. Medsker, as shown on the report, neither could be found.

Takes a Derrick to Get a Fat Oil Magnate out of The Water

New York, May 28.—Hatred of water is a well known characteristic of all Wall street operators, and particularly of that group designated as "the Standard Oil crowd," yet one of the biggest of them—he weighs 250 pounds and is 6 feet 2 inches tall—plumped into the East river at the landing of the New York Yacht club, at Twenty-third street. John D. Ryan, president of the Anaconda Copper Mining company, was the unlucky man.

Urban H. Broughton, son-in-law of the late Henry H. Rogers, has a fine 150 foot steam yacht, the Visitor. In

Mr. Broughton and Mr. Ryan took a trip up Long Island sound Wednesday afternoon. They returned at 6:30 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Broughton negotiated the jump from the yacht's deck to the pier in safety, but Mr. Ryan with a tremendous splash and a loud "who-o-o!" of astonishment tumbled between the yacht and the pier.

"He can't swim!" Mr. Broughton called out.

Michael Mulligan, a youthful attendant of the club, avoiding the maelstrom formed by the immense body of the copper magnate, dived off the pier and grabbed Mr. Ryan just as the latter floated to the surface, spouting like a whale.

Mulligan is a little chap, but he clung to his huge burden as a plucky little tug sticks to an ocean liner. Ryan, floundering, grabbed Mulligan by the hair and pushed his head under. Mulligan ducked and coming up, shouted to some one to jump in and help him. A sailor of the Visitor jumped overboard and aided Mulligan in supporting the magnate until men arrived to their rescue in a launch of the yacht Winchester, owned by Peter W. Rouss, son of the late Charles Broadway Rouss.

It took a deal of clever maneuvering to get Mr. Ryan into the launch and then upon the pier, but this was done by rigging tackle around him.
